UNITED STATES NOT TO INTERFERE WITH MEXICAN SITUATION

Friendly Non-Interference Probably Will Be Wilson's Attitude Throughout Any Mexican Dissension

HUERTA WON'T RESIGN; WILL FIGHT TO THE END

General Unrest Permeates All of Huerta's Country—Federals Declare They Are Ready for Active Campaign

(By Associated Press.)

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 2.—Foreign interference in the conduct of task of pacification will not be tolerated by Provisional President Huerta. He purposes to stay in the presidency, and will brook no interference on the part of nationals or foreigners. This determination was expressed in a statement issued this evening by Dr. Aurelliane Urrutia, Mexican minister of the interior, on behalf of the president.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—While President Wilson has not yet announced the policy which he thinks the American government ought to pursue toward Mexico, there is every reason to believe he is evolving a plan of non-interference in the internal affairs of the southern republic.

Two developments today emphasized the trend of affairs toward an attitude of friendly non-interference. It became known that the president, in conference with members of the house military affairs committee, had discouraged the idea of making preparations for a volunteer army. Likewise Secretary Bryan's request for an appropriation of $100,000 with which to transport destitute Americans from Mexico in emergencies developed a feeling in official circls that the American government would endeavor in any crisis to remove Americans expeditiously from the trouble zones.

This procedure, it is felt, would minimize the chances for international difficulty, as any destruction of property would be cared for through indemnification, and there is every indication incidentally that the Wilson administration will pursue a vigorous policy toward recovering damages to foreign property in Mexico.

With Americans out of Mexico, or at least out of those parts where chaos may develop, the United States government would feel less responsibility for the progress of events there and would assume the role of an observer rather than a participant, the latter position being one which, despite strong efforts from many quarters, it is fairly well determined President Wilson will not countenance. He never has allowed the thought of armed intervention to enter his consideration of a solution for the Mexican problem, and on the other hand, his efforts in working out a policy for the American government in this situation and those like it in the future are directed toward a peaceful program.

Hope that the Mexican factions will agree on a provisional president to succeed Huerta still prevails here. The constitutionalists, however, are making repeated representations that if permitted to obtain arms on an equality with the Huerta government, they soon would triumph and restor peace.

With the idea of obtaining first-hand information about the situation, especially in connection with the pleas being made to lift the embargo on arms, the senate foreign relations committee has determined to permit a number of persons representing the factions in Mexico to appear before it.

General Eduardo Hay, who took part in many battles in the Madero revolution, as well as in the present conflict, and a former speaker of the Mexican chamber of deputies, will give the senate foreign relations committee the constitutionalists' side of the argument next week.

Suggestions were made today that Mrs. Francisco Madero, widow of the former president, and Alfonso Madero, a brother, be invited before the committee. It is said they would refute the statement of conditions recited by Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson recently, and there is a feeling among senators that they should hear both sides in the controversy over the events which led to Madero's death.

The senate committee, likewise, desires to be in position to understand the general situation when President Wilson submits to them his recommendations or policies.

United States Arrests Man at Mexico's Request

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The arrest in New Orleans today of former Governor Brite, of Campechi, Mexico, was the result of a request by the Huerta government, through the Mexican embassy here, for his extradition as a fugitive from justice, charged with murder and robbery.

Both of the offenses are extraditable, but Mexico must submit within thirty days evidence of criminality and prove that the acts were not political crimes.

Officials of the departmentof justice were stirred today by the arrest of its agents, Matthews and Bolton, on charges of blackmail in connection with the attempts to apprehend Brite. Plans were laid for an immediate investigation. Comment was withheld pending a report from a special agent sent from Washington to New Orleans to make the inquiry.

A. Bdue Bielaski, chief of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice, expects a telegraphic report from the investigating officer on Monday.

Frisco Mexicans Ask Wilson to Expel Diaz

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 2.—When General Felix Diaz, Mexican envoy to Japan, was attending an informal reception given in his honor last night by Consul Pena Y Cuevas, 500 other residents of the Mexican colony here, it was learned today, met and wired a request to President Wilson to expel Diaz from the United States. General Diaz is expected to leave tonight for San Francisco. Whether he will continue his journey to Japan is not known.

CASTRO SUPPORTERS SURPRISE AND KILL OFFICIALS AT CORO

Overwhelming Federal Army Prepares to Crush Invasion by Former President, Who Continues to Push Forward

CASTRO STYLES SELF AS "SLAVE TO DUTY"

Declares War Inevitable, and That Actions of "Traitor" Gomez Have Called Him to Save Venezuela

(By Associated Press.)

CARACAS, Venezuela, Aug. 2.—It was reported here today that all the Venezuelan government officials at Coro, in the state of Falcon, were surprised by former President Ciripiano Castro and killed or taken prisoners.

An overwhelming government army has been prepared and is ready to march with the intention of crushing Castro and his followers in the first battle.

In a proclamation, dated Coro, July 27, Castro says in part:

"War has become inevitable. I declare myself in a campaign against Jose Vicento Gomez, whose treason and usurpation of power since 1908 have become a real catastrophe, calling me from private life.

"Crime extends its horrible wings over the whole republic of Venezuela.

"The crazy and ferocious Gomez bears on his forehead the eternal mark of a traitor. His brutal look and his perfidious smile encourage his few followers to finish the ruin of the fatherland. Venezuela acclaims me again to revindicate her rights.

"I am a slave to honor and duty, and I accept the honor.

"My program is to save my country from threatening anarchy and my foreign policy is to join hands with civilization and progress on the basis of equity and justice.

"Everybody in Venezuela should take arms and contribute to the salvation of the fatherland."

Concerts and Autos Tempt Hands to Farm

(By Associated Press.)

DEVILS LAKE, N. D., Aug. 2.—Warned by scarcity of men to harvest this year's grain crop, farmers in this region have agreed to call a halt to work at 6 p. m. daily. In many instances they will furnish automobiles to enable the men to spend their evenings in town. Concerts are to be provided for a big amusement day to end with a big water carnival.

OVER 50 POISONED IN COUNTRY TOWN; ONLY TWO DOCTORS

ATLANTA MATRON AND HER DAUGHTER VICTIMS

All Automobiles Obtainable in County Pressed Into Service in Heroic Efforts to Prevent Death

Report of what appears to have been almost a wholesale poisoning of the whole countryside around Toonigh, in Cherokee county, at a Sunday school picnic yesterday, was telephoned to The Journal last night by W. H. Lee, an Atlanta city salesman in camp near the scene of the picnic. Several people are expected to die, it is said.

Ptomaine poisoning was the diagnosis of the physicians. Salmon salad served in sandwiches at the picnic is blamed as the cause. Only two doctors were available. At 8 o'clock Saturday evning reports from several families indicated that not less than fifty people had been stricken by the poison in the Toonigh neighborhood, and it was said then that the first message from Mill Creek neighborhood indicated that others there had been poisoned. It was impossible then to estimate how many cases would develop but it was said that the physicians feared almost a catastrophe as the results of the picnic.

Among those poisoned were named an Atlanta matron, Mrs. Grace Ragsdale, and her daughter.

LIST OF VICTIMS.

Following is a partial list of the victims:

J. S. Dorn, of Toonigh, owner of the Little River mill.

Mrs. John Hillhouse, wife of the superintendent of the Woodstock Oil and Fertilizer company.

Miss Addie Freeman, Toonigh.
Miss Mae Freeman, Toonigh.
Miss Blanche Freeman, Toonigh.
Miss Bessie Cox, Toonigh.
Mrs. Grace Ragsdale and daughter, of Atlanta.
Miss Bertha Yother, of Toonigh.
Paul Yother, Toonigh.
Roy Yother, Toonigh.
Mamie Yother, Toonigh.

Mrs. W. D. Yother, wife of a prominent farmer, Toonigh.
Mrs. Jim Benson, Toonigh.
Mrs. H. F. Fleming, wife of a traveling salesman, Toonigh.
Mrs. Wade Hillhouse, wife of a prominent farmer, Toonigh.

Several more families were calling for aid, but particulars were not available.

ADOPT HEROIC MEASURES.

Heroic measures were being adopted by the physicians here. W. O. R. Rhodes and Dr. J. R. Boring, both of Woodstock, to gather the stricken picnickers into Woodstock for treatment. Every automobile in and around Woodstock was impressed into service when the seriousness of the situation became manifest.

Some 300 people were gathered at the picnic, which was the combined outing of the Toonigh and Mill Creek Sunday schools. The picnic was held at Little River mill, two miles out in the country from Toonigh.

Determination of 11-Year-Old Girl Results in Capture of Negro Thief

Mary Wesley Had to Weep, but She Convinced Her Father Burglars Were There

An 11-year-old miss, Mary Elizabeth Wesley, helped her father, Paul Wesley, of 674 Spring street, to capture a burglar for the police Saturday evening and became the heroine of the neighborhood. Mr. Wesley, who is a building contractor, caught the burglar, a youthful negro, leaving the home of B. H. Day, a neighbor, and for 10 minutes held th eintruder while his watchful little daughter telephoned to the police.

Officers Palmer and Shumate, on motorcycles, made a record run from police headquarters, and relieved Mr. Wesley, who declared that his arm had grown a little tired from keeping the muzzle of his revolver toward the cowering negro.

Little Miss Wesley was sitting with a chum in her father's automobile at the curb when they saw two negroes coming along the street. Each girl went to her own home and Mary Elizabeth, ensconced behind the curtains, watched the negroes. She saw them go upon the porch of the Day residence, where the family was not at home, saw one unlock the front door, and both enter. Then she ran to her father, at supper in the dining room, and told him what she had seen. He teased her about it, thinking she was perpetrating some childish joke on him, whereupon she fell to crying while she protested that things had happened exactly that way.

To please her, Mr. Wesley got his revolver and went over to the Day home. When he saw the front door standing open he approached more cautiously, and was just in time to intercept one of the negroes with a purse in his hand. Mr. Wesley brought the gun into play and made the negro hold up his hands; and in doing so the negro threw his booty into the darkness.

Mr. Wesley stated to the police that he saw no sign of the other negro. The police surmised that the second burglar escaped at the back of the house. They made a thorough search of the premises. The captured negro gave his name as Lanford Early, age 17, of 52 Parsons street.

FATHER KIDNAPS SON; IS PURSUED BY POSSE

Despite Chase and Capture, However, Millard McGrath Gets Custody of Child

An automobile chase with an Atlantian and his little son as the quarry and with the sheriff of Douglas county leading his posse in five automobiles as the pursuit, came to an end on the roads between Douglasville and Atlanta Friday afternoon when the automobile that was pursued went into a roadside ditch and shook up one of the passengers rather severely. There it stayed until the pursuit caught up.

The sheriff and members of his posse helped to put their quarry back on the road again, and thereupon the whole procession reversed its course and went back to Douglasville. Millard McGrath, a sign painter of Atlanta; W. F. Brown, a friend, and John Quinn, the chauffeur of the rented machine, spent the night as the guests of the sheriff under custody in a hotel in Douglasville. Saturday morning they returned to Atlanta, Mr. McGrath bringing with him his little son.

The charge against the party Friday afternoon was kidnaping, it being alleged that they had kidnaped the McGrath child from the street in front of his mother's home. Mrs. McGrath, it is said, is separated from her husband and has had the child in her custody. An agreement of some nature was reached, it is said, and the Georgia law at present making the father the legal custodian of his children, he won that point. The Atlanta police, receiving a telegram from the Douglasville sheriff's office to catch the alleged kidnapers, were on the lookout until Saturday morning, when they dropped the case after learning the details and the fact that an agreement had been reached. They stated that McGrath left for Augusta Saturday morning to deliver his son, aged eight, named George, over to his sister there for further custody.

EIGHTEEN KILLED IN COAL MINE EXPLOSION

Rescue Party Works to Save Pennsylvania Miners Cut Off by Gas

(By Associated Press.)

TOWER CITY, Pa., Aug. 2.—At least eighteen men lost their lives today in a double explosion in the East Brookside mine of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company here. The exact number of dead may not be known for several days. The colliery was not in operation today, and the victims of the explosion are mostly repairmen, colliery officials and tunnel men.

There were two explosions, the first of dynamite and the second of mine gas which had been liberated by the dynamite. It is believed that the greatest loss of life was caused by the second blasts.

DEFENSE WILL INTRODUCE WITNESSES

ASKED FOR MARY PHAGAN'S PAY

MISS HELEN FERGUSON,
A co-worker with Mary Phagan in the National Pencil factory, who testified Saturday that she asked Superintendent Leo M. Frank for Mary Phagan's pay on the evening before the murder, and that he declined to deliver it to her.

FRANK TRIAL WILL RUN INTO THIRD WEEK; DEFENSE WILL BEGIN TESTIMONY WEDNESDAY

Indications Saturday, When Court Adjourned Until Monday Morning at 9 O'Clock, Were That State Would Require at Least Two More Days Before Concluding Presentation of Its Case Against the Factory Superintendent

DEFENSE'S DECISION TO INTRODUCE EVIDENCE MEANS THAT THE TRIAL IS NOT YET HALF OVER

Dr. H. F. Harris Will Take the Stand Again Monday Afternoon and Will Probably Be Under Cross-Examination for Several Hours—Conley Will Be State's Last Witness, and a Big Battle Will Rage Around His Testimony

"IT'S TERRIBLE FOR AN INNOCENT MAN TO BE CHARGED WITH CRIME"
—Leo M. Frank.

Leo M. Frank is apparently standing the strain of the tedious trial remarkably well, and the expression of his face seldom changes during the introduction of evidence. According to his jailers he still sleeps soundly every night, and he has never lost his appetite.

Few people have ever discussed the actual evidence in the case with him, and no expression of an opinion from him about the case, which the state has put up against him, has reached the pubic.

Frank is quoted as having made only this comment before Saturday's session started: "It is terrible for an innocent man to be charged with a most damnable crime. Even if he is cleared he can never get over the fact that he was charged and tried for the crime."

State's Case Against Frank As It Stands After Week's Testimony Is Shown Here

Most Important Points State Has Sought to Prove Are That Mary Phagan Was Killed Shortly After Entering Factory---That Crime Was on Second Floor, and That Frank Was Not in His Office at the Time He Says He Gave Her the Pay Envelope

An entire week has been given over to the trial of Leo M. Frank, charged with the murder of Mary Phagan, and so far the state has not shown or attempted to show any direct connection on the part of the defendant with the crime. Solicitor Dorsey has worked systematically to weave a chain of circumstantial evidence about Frank.

Those who have watched the progress of the trial day by day are impressed with the fact that he has endeavored by the introduction of circumstantial evidence to pave the way for the testimony of James Conley, the negro sweeper, who will be the climax witness for the state and upon whose evidence the case against Frank will largely stand or fall.

The state swore but twenty-six witnesses when the trial began Monday afternoon, but up to date it has called thirty and the indications are that still others are to be put upon the stand. The defense has not put up a single witness and can not do so until the state rests its case. However, Attorneys Rosser and Arnold, counsel for Frank, have administered severe cross-examinations to the more material of the state's witnesses and in many instances have succeeded in minimizing the evidence given by them on their direct examination.

The state has sought to show by its witnesses:

First. That Mary Phagan was murdered within an hour after she left her home just before noon on April 26 to go to the pencil factory for her pay.

Second. That she was rendered unconscious by a blow upon the back of the head and that she died from stransulation.

Third. That she was murdered on the second or office floor of the factory and that her body was taken to the basement on the elevator.

Fourth. That no one saw her enter or leave the factory and that Frank was the only person who saw her while she was there.

Fifth. That at the exact hour Frank has stated that the girl came into his office he was himself absent from the office although he claims not to have left it from about 11 o'clock until between 12:30 and 1 o'clock.

Sixth. That the girl was not criminally assaulted, although she had suffered some kind of violence five or ten minutes before her death.

Seventh. That about 1 o'clock, several minutes after the murder was committed, a negro was seen sitting on a box on the first floor near the foot of the stairs.

Eighth. That on Sunday morning Frank was very nervous and excited and that he would not look upon the face of the dead girl when he was taken to the undertaking establishment.

DR. HARRIS' TESTIMONY.

The most significant evidence so far offered by the state was the testimony of Dr. H. F. Harris, secretary of the state board of health, and Monteen Stover, a fourteen-year-old girl, who formerly worked at the pencil factory.

Dr. Harris made a post-mortem examination on the body of Mary Phagan a few days after her death. He testified that she had undoubtedly died from strangulation produced by the tightly-drawn cord around her neck; that the blow on the back of the head undoubtedly rendered her unconscious; that she had died within from a half to three-quarters of an hour after having eaten some cabbage and bread; that she had not been criminally assaulted but that she had suffered some kind of violence between five and ten minutes before death.

Dr. Harris explained that the cord had left a deep indentation in the girl's neck which was badly contused and swollen; that the blow on the back of the head had caused a slight hemorrhage beneath the skull, but not sufficient to kill; that he had examined the contents of the stomach and found pieces of cabbage and bread which were almost totally undigested; that his examination of the organs of the body convinced him that no criminal assault had been made upon the child, but that

SOLICITOR General Hugh M. Dorsey admits that he has practically completed his "circumstantial" case against Leo M. Frank, although the state has several witnesses who will be put on the stand this week before the state's case is concluded.

It is generally believed that the witnesses who form the links of the circumstantial chain have simply paved the way for the testimony of Jim Conley, who claims to be almost an eyewitness to the killing of Mary Phagan for which Frank is being tried.

While Solicitor Dorsey refuses to deny a rumor that the state would not use Conley, the rumor is not credited, and it is generally believed that the dramatic climax of the trial will be the testimony of the negro, and the efforts of the attorneys for the defense to break down Conley's story that Frank called him to help in disposing of Mary Phagan's body.

It has been definitely announced that Dr. H. F. Harris, up to the present probably the most important witness, will again take the witness stand at 9 o'clock Monday afternoon.

The direct examination of Dr. Harris, who swore that Mary Phagan met her death within an hour after she ate lunch on April 26, had not been concluded Friday when he collapsed on the witness stand.

When he is cross-examined the attorneys for the defense are certain to make strenuous efforts to weaken his testimony, and his cross-examination will probably take several hours. In other words eliminating Conley, the state can hardly conclude its evidence by Monday.

When Conley goes on the stand he will stay there probably a day, and the result will be that Wednesday will have been reached when the state finishes its case.

The Journal has definitely learned that the defense will introduce testimony to combat the state's evidence. As a result it appears that it will be the middle of next week or the end of next week before the case of the state against Leo M. Frank goes to the jury.

Although many character witnesses have been summoned, no intimation has been made by the attorneys for the defense as to whether or not they will put the defendant's character in issue.

While questions to state witnesses have made it appear as if the defense was seeking to show that almost anyone could have committed the crime of which Frank is accused, it is said that when the defendant's witnesses are put on the stand they will concentrate on Conley, and seek to clear Frank by showing that the negro is guilty.

The battle about Conley is certain to be a strenuous one, and Frank A. Hooper, who is assisting Solicitor Dorsey, is authority for the statement that the negro sweeper makes a good witness, who will not be easily cowed.

Conley has been schooled for the grilling which Attorneys Luther Rosser and Reuben Arnold will give him by his many "sweatings" at police headquarters.

The "third degree" with Jim Conley has become a casual everyday affair, to be taken as a matter of course and is part of his daily routine.

Detectives have grilled him for hours, putting his answers in writing. Then they have returned a week or ten days later to his cell with the same set of questions, and if Conley makes the slightest discrepancy in his answer, he has been rigidly called to account for his mistake.

The negro is said to be naturally quick witted, and ready with his answers the second a question has been completed.

JURORS ALLOWED MAGAZINES.

The twelve men, who are to decide Frank's fate, remained in their rooms at the Kimball hotel all of the afternoon Saturday until Bailiffs A. F. Pennington and Charles Huber escorted them to supper at a nearby restaurant.

A number of carefully-censored periodicals have been allowed the jurors and by reading these and telling stories they are whiling away the time.

Sunday the jurors, guarded by the bailiffs and several deputies, will probably go for a walk.

ENGINEER OF WRECKED TRAIN CONTINUES RUN

Open Switch Causes Smash-Up at Terminal—Eubanks, Injured, Took New Engine

Hours late, the Atlanta and West Point limited steamed out of the Terminal station at 10 o'clock Saturday night, Engineer Bob Eubanks at the throttle, his body aching and sore from the wreck by which he nearly lost his life a little earlier in the evening.

Despite the fact that the cab of his locomotive had been splintered from end to end in collision with a freight train at 8 o'clock, he was nervy enough to take out a new engine on the regular run at 10.

The wreck occurred as Engine No. 37, A. & &W. P., started south from the Terminal station, with Eubanks as engineer and Will Travis, colored, fireman.

Not a hundred yards from the station, in the gloom beneath the Peters street viaduct, the engine clanked through an open switch and smashed full into the rear of a long train of Southern freight cars backing into the yards.

Both trains, it is said, were going at the rate of about ten miles an hour. The collision threw No. 37 from the track, the locomotive slid its length along the bare ground, the roof was torn away, the cab smashed to flinders.

How Eubanks and the fireman escaped they themselves could not say. They were hurled against the side of the car, but, beyond several bruises, were unhurt.

The last freight car was badly damaged, while it will be some time before Engine No. 37 is out of the hospital.

The engine and tender were the only cars to leave the track. Ten passenger coaches, filled with men, women and children, came to a stop behind the wreck. Only a few of the passengers knew that the sudden jar and halt meant a close shave for each one of them.

The wrecking crew was called. The battered freight car was removed, the passenger coaches were taken back into the station and hitched to a new engine, and Bob Eubanks climbed into the cab to make his run.

It was many hours before 37 was coaxed back to the rails. From 8 o'clock until late into the night a wrecking crew was at work beneath the viaduct.

SLADE GIVES ARGUMENTS AGAINST MILITIA RULE

Senator Declares Governor's Proclamation Is Best Argument Against Martial Law

Representative J. J. Slade, of the Muscogee delegation, author of the two bills in the house seeking to restore to civil authorities jurisdiction over the militia when called out for riot duty or in case of so-called insurrection, made public Saturday what he terms the foundation of his argument against the military law passed last August, and which in less than two months directly produced that dreadful calamity in Augusta last September."

Following is the written statement of Captain Slade:

"The clearest exposition of the law is set forth in the governor's proclamation of September 27, 1912, as follows:

"First. 'The military commander will assume charge of the situation.

"Second. 'No publications, either by newspapers, pamphlets, handbills or otherwise, reflecting in any way. No article commenting in any way on the work or action of the military authorities will be permitted.

"Third. 'Crimes will be tried by military commission or courts as may be most practical, as the governor may decide.

"Fourth. 'All assemblies in the streets whether by day or night are prohibited.

"The state constitution explicitly declares with no shadow of exception, the habeas corpus shall not be suspended. Art. 1, Sec. 1, Para. 11. The governor says: 'The militia commander shall assume charge.'

"Now look at the second quotation from the governor's proclamation, per contra, the constitution says in no doubtful language:

"'No law shall ever be passed to curtail, or restrain the liberty of speech or of the press. Any person may speak, write and publish his sentiments on all subjects, being responsible for the abuse of that liberty.'

"Again the governor says: 'Crimes will be tried by the military commission.' But the constitution says:

"'The civil authority shall be superior to the military.' Art. 1, Sec. 1, Para 19.

"Again the governor's proclamation says: 'All assemblies in the streets whether by day or by night are prohibited.'

"What does the constitution say?

"Art. 1, Sec. 1, Para. 24: 'The people have the right to assemble peacably for their common good, and to apply to those vested with the powers of government for redress of grievances by petition or remonstrance.'"

GRUBBS AND VARNERS IN FAMILY REUNION

The eighteenth annual reunion of the Grubbs-Varner family will be held at Grant park on next Thursday.

This event is annually one of the largest family reunions held in Atlanta and last year an actual count of those in attendance showed more than 200 persons, 85 per cent of whom were born in Fulton county and 65 per cent of whom are still living here.

It is expected that the record for attendance will be broken this year.

PIMPLES ON HANDS LIKE BLISTERS

Spread Half Way to Elbow. Itched and Burned Till Could Not Sleep. Couldn't Do Work. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

604 Greenville Ave., Staunton, Va. — "I got my hand poisoned some way and it kept getting worse until my whole hand was in a raw sore. Every time I would put it in water it would break out with new pimples like blisters and would spread about an inch until it went half way to my elbow. It itched me so I had to keep a cloth on it to keep from scratching. It itched and burned me till I could not sleep. It had been all summer that I couldn't do my work. They said it was eczema.

"I saw the advertisement about Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I got both. I did not use half of the Cuticura Soap and Ointment till my hand and arm was cured entirely and it has never broken out any more. Now my hand is sound and well." (Signed) Mrs. E. V. Decourcey, Sept. 30, 1912.

REV. E. H. NEIGHBORS AT THE TABERNACLE

Pastor of Athens Tabernacle Is a Stirring Preacher

Rev. E. H. Neighbors, of Athens, one of the most stirring preachers in Georgia, will preach Sunday at the Tabernacle Baptist church. In the morning he will choose as his subject "The Threefold Vision of God," depicting Christ on the Cross, Christ at the right hand of God ,and the resurrection. In the evening an evangelistic meeting will be held.

Rev. E. H. NEIGHBORS.

Mr. Neighbors is pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist church at Athens, and during his one year's residence there has built up a strong church. By his congregation he is called "a regular tabernacle builder."

Before Mr. Neighbors went to Athens he was pastor of the Tabernacle church at Spartanburg ,and during two years' service there made his church recognized as one of the strongest in the south.

INSURANCE MEN FAVOR NEW INVESTMENT BILL

Local Companies Seek to Remove Disabilities as Compared With N. Y. Corporations

That all of the fire insurance companies of Georgia and practically all of the life insurance companies are behind a measure introduced at their instance in the general assembly, is the assertion of C. A. Bickerstaff, secretary of the Association of Southern Fire Insurance companies. The measure was introduced in the lower house by Representative Meadors, and in the upper house by Senator W. D. McNeil. It seeks to give more freedom to the domestic insurance companies in their investments of capital and surplus.

"The bill is copied largely after the New York law on this point," says Mr. Bickerstaff. "And when one considers that New York has built up the most prominent insurance companies in the land, there remains no reasonable doubt that its effect will be good.

"It prescribes first the manner in which the minimum capital required by law shall be invested. That is for the protection of the state and the policy holder.

"Then the bill provides the new freedom of investment by Georgia insurance companies. As the law now stands, the Georgia companies are not privileged to invest the residue of their capital in stocks and bonds of corporations and in loans on real estate, except in the discretion of the state insurance commissioner.

Foreign companies operating in this state, governed by the laws of their home states, are permitted to make those investments freely. This gives them a manifest advantage over the Georgia companies, inasmuch as it is a fact well known that insurance companies make their larger profits from investments and not from underwriting. The law now pending seeks to remove the restriction on our home companies, and give them equal opportunity with foreign companies."

The house bill was before the committee on insurance last Thursday afternoon, and arguments in its behalf were offered by some seven representatives of Georgia insurance companies.

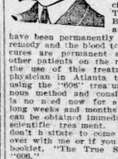
Blood Poison or "606"



I have been giving the "606" and 914 for the treatment of Specific Blood Poison for the past two years and have given something near eight hundred treatments. I have proven, in connection with other leading Specialists, that "606" is THE remedy for Specific Blood Poison. Numbers and numbers of patients have been permanently cured by this wonderful remedy and the blood tests has shown that these cures are permanent and I have numbers of other patients on the road to recovery through the use of this treatment. I was the first physician in Atlanta to begin advertising and using the "606" treatment. I use the intravenous method and consider it the best. There is no need now for a patient to go through long weeks and months of waiting when results can be obtained immediately by the use of this scientific treatment. If you need treatment don't hesitate to come in and talk the matter over with me or if you can't call, write for my booklet, "The True Story of Salvarsan," or "606."

Booklovers' Bulletin

G. A. B., Atlanta, Ga.—All pictures were drawn to fairly represent the title of a book as the party who ordered the picture saw it. No two men would order pictures alike, and we doubt if the pictures could be made fairer than we made them. As you say yourself, it is just as fair for one contestant as the other. If the pictures were all made easy it would be no contest at all and would not be interesting to anyone. A great deal of time and care was taken to select titles that would make the campaign interesting to all Journal readers, and the many letters of praise we received from all over the south prove to us that the contestants are nearly all well pleased. It is almost impossible to please everyone in a campaign of this kind, and we are satisfied to know that we did please the majority of the contestants who took part in the delightful game. As the titles were all selected and placed in a safety deposit box in the Empire Trust and Safe Deposit Company's vault room, one week before the close of the contest, it is useless at this time to talk of one title fitting a picture better than the one we selected. All these titles stand as selected, and could not be changed now, even though we wanted to change them.

ICE COLD WATER AT NEGRO CHURCH

Public Drinking Fountain in Front of First Congregational Church

A public drinking fountain which will supply ice-cold water has been opened in connection with the institutional department of the First Congregational church (colored), corner Courtland avenue and Houston street, Rev. H. H. Proctor, colored, pastor. It is the gift of James O. Connally, one of the members of the church, who was inspired to it by a sermon of the pastor recently on the use of water. The fountain is supplied by a pipe connected with the water supply of the church and is run through a coil in an ice box on the inside of the church before it reaches the sanitary fountain on the outside. This coil consumes one hundred pounds of ice a day.

PATRICK HENRY PICTURE MISSING FROM LIBRARY

The Carnegie library has announced the loss of a portarit of Patrick Henry, 10 by 12 inches in size, which disappeared Friday. Police have been asked to search for it. The picture is in a red plush frame.

CLAIMS POLICEMAN BEAT HIM WITHOUT PROVOCATION

D. M. Sanders, aged forty-eight, of 109 Main street, arrested last night by Special Officer Jack Lawson, of the Exposition Cotton Mills, and turned over to the city police on a charge of being drunk and disorderly, alleged to the police at headquarters that Lawson had beaten him without provocation. The man had been beaten so severely that City Physician Martin had to be called in to dress his wounds. The police promised an investigation of the circumstances.

H. H. HOOTEN EXPLAINS HIS AUTO HITTING BOY

H. H. Hooten, of the Adams Grocery company, who accidentally struck a boy with his machine Friday, states that the boy was but slightly injured.

According to Mr. Hooten the boy was riding a bicycle which slipped from under him, throwing him against the rear fender of the machine. He was scratched behind the left ear, but when taken to the hospital by Mr. Hooten it required only about fifteen minutes to attend to his injury.

POLICE CHIEFS TRY, BUT FAIL TO CATCH BURGLARS

When neighbors saw two men going from room to room in the home of William E. Englett, 52 Loomis avenue, Saturday evening, they telephoned to the police that burglars were at work, the neighbors knowing that the family was away.

Chief Beavers, Assistant Chief Jett, a couple of patrolmen and Special Deputy Newt Garner, of the solicitor general's office, went out in Chief Beavers' automobile. The burglars evidently had started their work, the police think, for indications of a slight disarrangement of the contents of the house were noticed, but somehow they were frightened away before the officers got there.

Deputy Garner, helping in the thorough search of the premises, climbed upon the roof and slipped, gathering a number of splinters but saving himself from what might have been a bad fall.

DR. MILTON N. ARMSTRONG GIVES TO NEGRO SCHOOL

Dr. Milton N. Armstrong has given $50 to the Atlanta Normal and Industrial institute, colored, toward a fund for the accommodation of pupils who wish to enter the school on Wednesday, September 24, at which time its third term begins.

Richard D. Stinson, principal of the school, says that he expects more pupils this year and that the facilities for those who work their way through will be better.

Dr. Armstrong has contributed to the school twice before.

Dix Diamond Grading Absolute Safety to Buyers

The first consideration of every prudent buyer is the feeling of absolute safety and confidence that he is getting best goods at prices really the lowest.

Our positive guarantee to buy back our diamonds at 90 per-cent of purchase price at any time within one year, and to allow full purchase price in exchange on a more expensive diamond at any time, whether in one or ten years, should inspire this feeling of absolute safety.

Discriminating buyers know that it is not all the price, but that grade, weight, color and perfectness are all to be considered. It requires years of experience and much technical skill to grade diamonds to a proper classification.

The grade, weight and price of our diamonds are marked in plain figures. Absolutely nothing is hidden. If a stone is not perfect, the shape or cutting not correct, or if it is "off color" (which is hard to distinguish without a careful comparison with a better grade), it is so marked.

We send selection packages of diamonds anywhere to responsible people and pay express charges both ways. You assume no obligation to buy, as we appreciate the opportunity to show our diamonds and prefer that our customers have opportunity for leisurely inspection and comparison.

Our deferred payment plan enables those who may not want to pay all cash for a diamond to pay 20 per cent down and divide the balance into as many as ten monthly notes with a small interest account.

We would like to have a copy of our Diamond Book No. 5 in the hands of any one, no matter how slightly interested. A postal card will bring it.

ATLANTA GETS BIG AUTO SPEEDWAY NEXT AUTUMN

Jack Prince Stages Another Chance for the Speed Maniacs

The sewer committee of council and the bond commission agreed Saturday morning to lease certain property on Peachtree road for the purpose of building an enormous motordrome where automobile races will be held beginning some time next fall.

The company which is leasing the property is headed by Jack Prince, famous as rain-maker and promoter of motor races such as have set Atlanta speed fans wild at his Jackson street motordrome this summer.

Leading automobile dealers of Atlanta are backing the racing proposition. It will be a tremendous advertisement for the city, they say, and point to Indianapolis as a sample of a city which owes much to its great speedways.

The track will be built of lumber, said to be capable of supporting much greater speed than an asphalt track. Two million feet of lumber have already been ordered with which to build the new speedway, and it is expected that it will be completed by October 20.

The track will be located four and one-half miles out Peachtree road, two blocks to the left, on what is known as Collier road, where the old city disposal plant once was. It will be one mile around, with an age of forty-five degrees on the curves. It will be capable of supporting a speed of 100 miles an hour.

On October 20, according to present expectations, the automobile speed devils will be turned loose. Jack Prince met with some of the foremost drivers in the country at the Los Angeles recently and signed up the best in the bunch to race in Atanta.

The track will be opened in a blaze of glory and roar of motors with a big 100-mile race the first day. On the second day there will be a 200-mile race and on the third day a 300-mile race.

The track will have the additional advantage of a first-class polo field of Bermuda grass in the center, where it is expected several polo games will be staged later on.

Such leading automobile dealers as Wiley West, Mark Nabors, George Hanson, Dan Walraven, Thomas Webb and others have been working hard to get the big track for Atanta. They are enthusiastic over their success and look forward to some thrilling times next autumn.

COMMITTEE FAVORS NEW RESOLUTION ON W. & A.

It Provides for Commission of Seven to Investigate Road

The various bills now in the senate affecting the future of the Western and Atlantic railroad appear to have been condensed in a resolution introduced by Senator J. L. Sweat, of the Fifth, favored by the committee at a meeting last Tuesday night.

This resolution is a substitute for another of the senator's and provides for the appointment of a commission to investigate the status of the road and, if deemed proper, receive bids for its re-lease. The latter provision was made in an amendment offered by Senator W. W. Stark, of the Thirty-third.

The resolution provides for a commission of two members of the senate, to be appointed by the president of the senate; three members of the house, to be appointed by the speaker of the house; two citizens of the state experienced in railroad building, to be appointed by the governor. They will meet, according to the resolution, immediately on the adjournment of the general assembly.

Senator Sweat's resolution is now before the senate and stands a good chance of passing early in the week. It will then go to the house for concurrence.

the dilated and inflamed blood vessels satisfied him that external violence had been committed, and that the condition of the inflammation caused him to believe it occurred not more than ten minutes before her death.

A bottle containing the undigested cabbage taken from Mary Phagan's stomach was tendered by Dr. Harris, as were two other bottles containing partially digested cabbage, which he said he had taken from the stomachs of two healthy normal men an hour after they had eaten it.

Dr. Harris was too ill to finish his testimony, and the defense had no opportunity to cross-examine him. He will doubtless be recalled this week.

MONTEEN STOVER'S EVIDENCE.

Monteen Stover testified that she went to the pencil factory for her pay at 12:05 o'clock on Saturday, April 27, that she stepped into the outer office where she could have a good view of Frank's private office; that she saw no one in either office; that she sat on a bench outside the office until 12:10, when she went back home.

A statement made by Frank to the detectives was read to the jury. In it Frank says Mary Phagan came to his office about 12:05 or 12:10; that he gave her her pay envelope and that she then went out.

In their cross-examination of several witnesses Attorneys Rosser and Arnold brought out the fact that it would be almost impossible for a person to see into Frank's private office from the outer office when the safe door was open; that the door was so large that it practically cut off all view into the inner office. It is presumed that the defense will later attempt to show that the safe door was open at the hour the Stover girl says she looked into Frank's office.

DR. J. W. HURT.

The testimony of Dr. J. W. Hurt, the coroner's physician who performed the autopsy on Mary Phagan's body, Sunday morning following the murder, differed in several important particulars from that of Dr. Harris in his testimony. He agreed with Dr. Harris that the girl came to her death by strangulation, but admitted on cross-examination that the only accurate way to prove this was by an examination of the lungs, which he had not made. He also agreed that the blow on the head was delivered before death and produced unconsciousness, but admitted on cross-examination that such blows rarely result in concussion of the brain and in death.

Dr. Hurt corroborated Dr. Harris in the latter's statement that the girl had not been criminally assaulted, but differed with him as to her having undergone external violence. Dr. Hurt says he never found any indications of violence and that the dilated and inflamed blood vessels could have resulted from natural causes.

He would not attempt to estimate how long the cabbage had been in the stomach, but admitted that mastication had a great deal to do with digestion and that some persons digested food sooner than others.

MRS. J. W. COLEMAN.

Mrs. J. W. Coleman, mother of Mary, testified that the girl left her home at 11:45 to go to the factory, and just prior to leaving ate the partook of a meal consisting of cabbage and bread.

Attorney Rosser developed from Mrs. Coleman that it was two blocks to the car line from her home and that she had no way of knowing how soon Mary caught a car.

George Epps, a newsboy, swore that he boarded the car with the girl at Olive street and Bellwood avenue at 12 minutes to 12 and that they left the car at Marietta and Forsyth streets about 12:10. He was not sure of the latter time, as he judged it by the sun. The girl, he said, walked on across the Forsyth street viaduct toward the factory, two blocks away.

The position of blood spots on the second floor of the factory, near the girl's dressing room was testified to by R. P. Barrett, a machinist at the factory; Mell Stanford, another factory employe, Detectives Starnes and Black, Mrs. George W. Jefferson, also a factory employe, and Chief Beavers. Dr. Claude A. Smith, city bacteriologist and chemist, testified that he had made an analysis of the stain upon chips taken from the floor and found that it was blood.

Barrett swore that he had found hair upon the handle of his turning lathe in the metal room; that it was not there Friday when he stopped work, and that no girls worked in the factory on Saturday. He also testified to having found a pay envelope under Mary Phagan's machine.

Attorneys Rosser and Arnold brought out from a number of witnesses that paint spots, both red and dark, could be found in all parts of the factory and that it was not an uncommon thing to find blood spots around the women's dressing rooms and toilets of factories when large numbers of women were employed.

WHAT DARLEY SAID.

One of the state's witnesses, N. V. Darley, general manager of the pencil factory, stated on cross-examination that about 175 pay envelopes were scattered over the factory on every pay day, and that lengths of cord, similar to that found around Mary Phagan's neck, could also be found all over the factory; that it was frequently carried to the basement in the trash. He declared further that red rubber bands and tablet paper of the character upon which the notes found by the body were written, could be picked up in all parts of the factory, and that pencils were everywhere plentiful.

Both Darley and E. F. Holloway, the day watchman, testified that the switch box on the elevator was unlocked on Sunday morning, and Holloway recalled under cross-examination that he had left it unlocked the day before.

Mrs. J. Arthur White stated that she was at the pencil factory from 12:30 to about 1 o'clock on the day of the murder and that as she walked down the stairs to leave she saw a negro sitting on a box on the first floor a few feet from the staircase.

In his affidavit Conley claims that it was just before 1 o'clock that Frank called him up to aid in disposing of the body. Conley's statement has not yet been produced in court.

FRANK'S NERVOUSNESS.

Among the witnesses who swore that Frank was very nervous on Sunday morning when he was brought to the factory were Detective John Black, Detective J. N. Starnes, W. W. Rogers, a bailiff, and Darley.

Upon cross-examination practically all of these witnesses admitted that they had never seen Frank before and knew nothing about his natural demeanor. Some of them said he was not very much more nervous than others at the factory that Sunday, and Darley declared that on two former occasions he had seen Frank fully as nervous and excited—once just after he had seen a child run over by a street car and once after Frank and a pencil factory official had quarreled.

Detectives Black and Rogers did not think that Frank had looked upon the dead girl's face when taken to the undertaking establishment, but neither would swear positively that he had not. Black admitted that Frank was between him and the body and that he had seen the face.

Pinkerton Detective Harry Scott testified that Frank had told him that he had not left his office from the time he returned from Montag Bros.' about 11 o'clock, until about 1 o'clock, when he went upstairs to tell Mrs. White that he was going to lunch and lock the front door, and that she had better leave if she wished to get out before he returned at 3 o'clock.

THE STATE'S WINESSES.

A list of the witnesses so far introduced by the state follows: Mrs. J. W. Coleman, mother of Mary Phagan; George Epps, a newsboy; Newt Lee, the negro night watchman at the factory; Police Sergeant L. S. Dobbs, who found the notes in the basement beside the body; Detective J. N. Starnes, W. W. Rogers, a bailiff; Miss Grace Hix, an employe at the factory, who identified the dead girl; Detective John Black, J. M. Gantt, former shipping clerk at the factory, who testified that Frank was nervous and jumped when he encountered him at the factory door about 6 o'clock the day of the murder; Pinkerton Detective Harry Scott, Miss Monteen Stover, R. P. Barrett, Mell Stanford, Mrs. George W. Jefferson, who saw the blood on the metal room floor and who swore no paints were ever kept in the metal room; Detective S. B. Haslett, who said he saw Frank in his office on Monday morning and that he was nervously pacing back and forth; William A. Gheesling, the undertaker, who embalmed the body; Dr. Claude A. Smith, E. F. Holloway, Mrs. J. Arthur White, N. V. Darley, Call Officer W. F. Anderson, who responded to Newt Lee's call for thhe police to come to the factory Sunday morning about 3 o'clock; Dr. H. F. Harris, G. C. Febuary, stenographer tto Chief Lanford, who identified a statement made by Frank to the chief; Albert McKnight, husband of the cook at the Frank home, who swore Frank reached his home on the day of the murder about 1:30, remained but a few minutes and left without eating luncheon; Helen Ferguson, who testified that she asked Frank for Mary Phagan's pay on the Friday before the murder, but that he didn't give it to her; Detective R. L. Waggoner, who rode to police station in the automobile with Frank on Tuesday following the murder and who swore he was nervous; Dr. J. W. Hurt, Police Chief James L. Beavers and Patrolman Lassiter, who with some of the other officers, swore that he saw a trail in the basement, leading from the elevator to the body which indicated that the dead girl had been dragged.

KNOXVILLE EXPOSITION WANTS ATLANTA EXHIBIT

Committee to Meet Business Men and Manufacturers This Week

A committee representing the board of directors of the National Conservation exposition, to be held in Knoxville during September and October, will be in Atlanta Monday or Tuesday for the purpose of meeting the representative manufacturers and business men of Atlanta, and getting them interested.

The National Conservation exposition means much to Atlanta and Georgia. It will open in Knoxville September 1 and will exhibit not only the ideas of conservation, but the commercial and manufactured resources of the southeast. Many of the southern cities have engaged large amounts of space, Cincinnati having taken some 5,000 square feet, but Atlanta as yet has not provided for representation.

Conservation of natural resources of the great Appalachian and Piedmont section, with the view of making these natural resources permanent wealth-producers, is the slogan of the exposition, and concerns both the present and future generations.

Coonel Robert J. Lowry, president of the Lowry National bank, has been in correspondence with the management of the exposititon for some weeks past, and he and other prominenh business men of the city will meet the committee from Knoxville, probably at the chamber of commerce and go over the matter in detail.

Poetess of Nurseries Braves Hydrophobia To Save Two Children

(By Associated Press.)

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 2.—Elise Parish, writer of children's verses, and Mrs. William Sterling, of Pittsfield, sucked the wounds of two children bitten by a dog at Miss Parish's summer home. It was later determined by Cornell chemists that the animal had rabies. All today show symptoms of hydrophobia and are under treatment.

Mad Dog Creates Panic in a Church

(By Associated Press.)

LACROSSE, Wis., Aug. 2.—A maddog that dashed into St. Mary's Catholic church today started a panic among the worshipers as they rushed for exits. The animal, finding no human target, hurled himself at the altar until a policeman, decoying him outside, shot him dead.

Two Governors Will Compete in Working Roads, in Overalls

(By Associated Press.)

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 2.—"Missouri would like to borrow the governor of Kansas for a few days for its road campaign," said Governor Major, of Missouri, to Governor Hodges, of Kansas, here today.

"The Kansas governor will be glad to come if you have a pair of overalls that will fit and if you will let him work," replied Governor Hodges.

"We'll have the overalls," Governor Major replied. "And you will have to work some it you do as much as the Missouri governor intends to do."

"That challenge is accepted," returned Governor Hodges.

Agrees to Mediate

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Commissioner William L. Chambers, of the federal board of mediation, today agreed to mediate a labor dispute between the St. Louis and Southwestern railroad and some of its conductors and trainmen.

Maxwell Motor Company

Incorporated

Detroit, U. S. A.

THEY SAID—what did they say? What mattered what they said? They were competitors much perturbed—so what could they say? What must they say—being competitors—much perturbed?

4,000 DEALERS will handle Maxwell Motor Cars for the season of 1914. Season dated from August first—deliveries at new prices now being made.

THAT'S OUR ANSWER to all they said. That tells the story. What is it they say about "he who laughs last?"

MAXWELL CARS WILL DOMINATE the trade for 1914 in the three big classes which command the greatest popularity.

THE FULL SIGNIFICANCE of the line "4,000 dealers," may not have occurred to you. It means, in a word, that we not only have the cars the connoisseurs desire, but that we are now ready to manufacture them in numbers sufficient to supply the insistent demand.

YOUR DEALER SEEMS TO HAVE a kind of sixth sense when it comes to picking the winner in the selling field from season to season.

HE KNOWS. He has his finger on the pulse of the buyer, his eyes on the makers all the time. And he seldom guesses wrong. The successful dealer never—that's why he succeeds.

THIS IS A FAST-MOVING, quick-forgetting business. Watching it is like looking thru a kaleidoscope. It is ever changing.

THE DEALER KNOWS—and you can't go wrong by following his lead for you see, he is looking for the same things you are seeking—only from a different angle.

HE WANTS CARS that sell themselves. You never knew a dealer to go gunning for trouble, did you? Or looking for hard work?

NOT HE. HE FOLLOWS THE TREND of fashion in design, the progress of the science of metallurgy and manufacture. And when he sees a concern leading in these, he goes hot-foot after that line of cars.

WE HAVE CONCENTRATED our tremendous factory facilities, re-arranged and re-equipped the plants for economical production of automobiles in large quantities.

AND EACH MODEL WILL dominate its class—because a better car—better material, better workmanship and better finish for the same or less money.

DO YOU WONDER dealers are clamoring for the Maxwell line for 1914? They would belie their reputation for astuteness if they didn't.

WHY, LAST WEEK we shipped the first 50 cars of the Maxwell "25" model to 50 points in the United States and invited all dealers to come and see and try out this wonderful car.

THEY CAME, they saw and the new "25" Maxwell conquered. It was great to see their enthusiasm when the car carrying five dealers aggregating 1010 pounds sped up "Abbey Hill"—the stiffest grade on Manhattan and a double-S turn—on high gear as if it were on the level.

OVER AND OVER AGAIN they put the car to the test—climbing the hill at all speeds down to 8 miles per hour on high gear—just a 'pullin' all the time.

BUT WE ARE DIGRESSING—so enthusiastic about that wonderful "25" we forgot our text for the moment. Let's discuss the entire line—for there isn't a dead one in it—no model that is a load on the others. Each is supreme in its class.

1914 PRICE is $1975.

THERE'S A LINE that will create consternation in the trade. They all expected it would be $2,400—in fact we said so. That was the price we had decided on, but—

PERHAPS, YOU'VE NOTICED there's a wicked war on for supremacy in this class of car. We concluded that, so long as other makers had started it we would give them a real six at a real price and see how far they can go. Watch it—it will be interesting—and the buyer will be the beneficiary.

IT WILL BE UP TO makers of $3,500—$4,000, yes, and $5,000 sixes to demonstrate wherein they give the difference in value.

AND WHAT ABOUT the manufacturer who stuck to fours for one season too long? Having himself failed to progress he would stop all progress. He would sweep back the sea with his tiny whisk broom? He protests that folk will still pay $2,000 for fours—and convinces no one but himself.

IN SEVEN PASSENGER CARS the six is now supreme. It is not coming; it is here.

THEN THE MAXWELL "35"—This is, we firmly believe, the greatest car ever made in the so-called intermediate price class—a big five passenger car for that great class of buyer who wants all there is of comfort and power, at a price he can afford.

1914 PRICE IS $1085 without and $1225 with electric starter and lights. Equal this if you can—in a car of anywhere near the quality.

BLOC-CAST MOTOR—fourth year unchanged. A motor such as you can't surpass in a $2000 car. And all other features equally excellent. This car will lead—distance all others in its class, which is to say anything under $1500.

AND FINALLY THE "25"—the car the trade has been talking about, looking for, waiting for.

IT IS HERE—WE ARE DELIVERING—and while we may not hope to supply all who want them, we will be able to appease 30,000 buyers during the next twelve months.

THIS IS A REAL AUTOMOBILE—full 25 horsepower, bloc cast motor; 103" wheel base; same size tires all 'round, 30 x 3½; full five passenger body; 3 speed selective transmission, cone clutch, worm and sector steering gear, left-hand drive; center control; magneto—all the features of a high priced car.

AND AT A PRICE no other maker has ever before been able to produce such a car—$750 plus the freight.

THE RESULT OF MORE concentrated experience, engineering and metallurgical knowledge, manufacturing skill and financial resources than any other, this car justifies our efforts and fulfils our fondest hopes.

IT WAS DESIGNED to meet the ideas and the needs of tens of thousands of discriminating buyers—not beginners but experienced motorists—who must consult the purse and yet who detest and decline to wear a uniform and are willing to pay a little more for a car that is a lot better.

WE WILL BUILD 30,000 of this model; 12,000 of the "35" and 2,000 to 3,000 of the Maxwell 50-6 in the next twelve months.

THAT'S SECOND LARGEST in the world—and still we are not satisfied. Watch the Maxwells.

The Senate's Duty to the State.

The serious fiscal problem with which the Legislature is now confronted can have but one solution in keeping with the interests and integrity of the State, and that is the adoption of some adequate measure of tax equalization. Unless the school teachers are to go unpaid and public institutions be beggared and urgent enterprises involving the people's welfare are to be abandoned, some fair and effective means to increase revenues must be provided.

That can be done without adding to the average citizen's tax burden; indeed, it can be done in such a manner as to lower the average citizen's tax burden. It can be done simply by inaugurating a businesslike system under which all men and all counties will pay their just portion of the government's expenses. That is the beginning and the end of the tax equalization plan, the only plan by which Georgia's honor can be maintained and her continued progress assured.

The House has appropriated some two hundred and eighty thousand dollars in excess of the State's anticipated income; yet it has provided no means whatsoever for meeting this large deficit. It proposes to incur debts for which there will be no money when they fall due. An individual who pursued such a course would soon lose his credit and standing in the community. Surely, a State should guard its business honor no less vigilantly than any of its citizens.

The Senate should not concur in this appropriation bill as it now stands. If the House will not agree to some measure whereby revenues may be evened up to appropriations, then it will be the Senate's patriotic duty to even down appropriations to revenues. This, to be sure, cannot be done without the sacrifice of vitally important interests. But neither can the State plunge blindly and hopelessly into expenses which it cannot meet without exposing itself to ruinous consequences.

The appropriations bill is within itself none too large; if anything, it is too small, measured by the range and importance of public needs. But any appropriations bill that allots money which will never be in the treasury is unsafe and unjust. The Senate should, therefore, stand immovably against a policy which would increase the State's obligations without increasing its income. It should endeavor first of all to vitalize the ineffectual tax reform bill which the House has passed, but, failing in that effort, it should refuse unflinchingly to accept the present appropriations bill.

We do not believe that the latter drastic course will be necessary. Certainly, it will not be, if the gentlemen of the House take a sober second thought and rightly weigh the grave responsibility they must bear, should they persist in sacrificing public progress and welfare to an antiquated tax system. In the meantime, the Senate's duty is plain: it should insist upon efficient, honest business methods for the State.

The self-cranking automobile is a comparatively recent departure, but the self-cranking conversationalist has been with us always.

The people who are jumping on Bryan have about decided that it does him no harm and is rather too strenuous an exercise for the hot months.

The Governor's Mansion.

It is commonly agreed that it will be to the State's best interests to dispose of the present site of its executive mansion. This lot, situated as it is in the heart of a rapidly growing commercial district, is in no way suited to the purpose it now serves. The very conditions, however, that render it undesirable as a place of residence make it especially valuable from a business point of view. Thus at one stroke the State can provide a new mansion and keeping with the proprieties of the office of Governor and also utilize to great practical advantage property, the real worth of which is now being sacrificed.

For several years past various committees have been appointed to look into this matter, but in no instance have they produced results, simply for the reason that they were given no responsibility or power to act. If the present mansion site is ever to be disposed of on terms profitable to the State, a competent commission must be created and authorized to deal conclusively with the affair in hand. Otherwise the State will go on indefinitely from year to year with nothing accomplished. A resolution which seems to meet the needs of the situation in a thoroughly safe and practical manner has been introduced by Senator J. N. Watts, chairman of the public properties committee of the Senate. This resolution, which protects the State's interests at every point and at the same time opens a way for definite action through a responsible commission, should commend itself to the Legislature's approval.

Conserving the Interests Of the W. & A. Railroad.

If the Legislature is to deal competently with the future interests of the Western and Atlantic railroad, it must lose no time in providing for a careful inquiry into the many far-reaching questions which this matter involves. To that end there should be created at the present session of the General Assembly a trustworthy commission, empowered to investigate this vital issue in all its bearings, to work out in detail practical plans and methods and to submit as promptly as possible a report toat will afford a basis for businesslike action. Thus only can the State be prepared for the numerous and weighty problems that must be met when the present lease of the Western and Atlantic expires a little more than six years hence.

It need scarcely be said that the duties and powers of such a commission should be delegated only to men who are unquestionably capable and who are also unquestionably free from the influence of any special interest. They should be men seasoned in experience and judgment and at the same time unbiased by any alliance either actual or sympathetic with private railroad concerns. Otherwise, the commission would forfeit public confidence and in the very outset its usefulness would be destroyed. There should be no difficulty, however, in the Legislature safeguarding this point and in securing the appointment of commissioners who will be at once competent, open-minded and truly representative of the people's welfare.

There are three especially important questions to be determined in dealing with the future of the Western and Atlantic. In the first place, whether the road should again be leased or should be operated by the State, provision must be made for its improvement and development, in order that its value to the State may continually increase. Furthermore, the terminal areas at Atlanta and Chattanooga should be considered with a view to utilizing, more profitably than now, such land as is not essential to railroad purposes. And perhaps most important of all is the question of extending the Western and Atlantic to the sea. Each of these matters demands the painstaking consideration which only an able commission, working along definite lines, can give.

The State's road should be worth vastly more fifty years or even ten years hence than it is today. But if that is to be assured, the road must be steadily improved in equipment and in facilities for handling business. The line between Chattanooga and Atlanta should be double tracked and in every other respect the property should be kept up to the highest standard of efficiency so that its earning power will constantly grow. Any plan for the re-leasing of the road should contemplate such improvements, for they are no less important than the question of the rental price.

Everyone who has given intelligent and disinterested study to the Western and Atlantic terminals at Atlanta and Chattanooga seems agreed that a part of these lands could be devoted to business purposes without in any way imparing the value or the rental of the railroad itself. In Atlanta, for instance, the State owns a large tract of central real estate now used as a switching yard. This land is far too valuable to be sacrificed to such ends when the State owns adjacent land that would serve terminal needs equally as well. It seems clear, therefore, that in renewing the Western and Atlantic lease the State should exclude from railway uses that portion of its property which extends from the Forsyth street viaduct to Central avenue. This land can be leased for business development on terms that would be highly profitable to the State; and, if similar plans are worked out for the Chattanooga terminals, the State will thus derive a revenue larger perhaps than that it now receives from the entire Western and Atlantic lease. It would have two sources of income—that from the lease of the railroad proper and that from the lease of these appurtenant lands—where it now has but one; and this could be accomplished, as we have said, without impairing the service or reducing the rental of the railroad a dollar.

If the Western and Atlantic railroad is to grow in influence and value it must undoubtedly be extended to the sea. Otherwise, it will remain merely a local line, limited in power and earning capacity and largely at the mercy of competing systems. If extended to the coast, thereby establishing independent traffic connections between interior towns and the advantageous ocean routes to and from the east, it will be proof against combination to lessen its value and will become the permanent and natural arbiter of freight rates in Georgia.

Several plans for such an extension have recently been suggested. The Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlanta railroad is soon to be sold under foreclosure proceedings. If the State could acquire that line on advantageous terms, it would have ready at hand the means of linking its own road to a port. It has also been proposed that partly through the purchase of short intervening roads and partly by constructing new lines, the State could secure an ocean outlet at St. Marys. These propositions call for thorough inquiry. Like the question of the new lease that must soon be made and the question of the terminal areas at Atlanta and Chattanooga, they should be submitted to the investigation of a commission especially detailed to consider this subject in all its phases.

The future of the Western and Atlantic road is the weightiest business problem Georgia has ever faced. It involves millions of dollars and the vital interests of the people. It can be solved only through careful consideration; and solved it must be in the near future. Let the Legislature look to this great task without further delay.

Ths New Weather Chief.

The new chief of the United States weather bureau, Mr. Charles F. Marvin, has been engaged in this and related fields of government service for thirty years. His appointment by President Wilson has the hearty approval of scientists and will no doubt earn that of the general public. Mr. Marvin is highly and justly distinguished for his research, his writings and inventions. His knowledge of meteorology is said to be as exact as it is liberal; and he is also credited with the executive capacity of which the department has been in grievous need.

Nothing, perhaps, comes home to more men's businesses and bosoms than the weather. Its very commonplaceness in conversation signifies its importance to economic and human interests. Farmers, merchants, sailors, travelers and, indeed, every one from the financier who is investing fortunes in wheat to the simplest Izaak Walton who wants to go a-fishing eagerly awaits the weather bureau's predictions. The science of meteorology is as yet on the borderland of its development and usefulness. Its earnest devotees are hopeful of making of it more and more account in the world's practical affairs. A student of aviation recently said that when the range and accuracy of weather forecasts are duly extended, it will be possible for an airship to fly acrosss the Atlantic. Certain it is that upon the perfection of this science, the progress of agriculture, the security of commerce and, in some instances, the safety of human life considerably depends.

To so important a sphere of service, the government should give generous support; and the President has done particularly well to place in charge of this work a man who has been bred and trained in such duties.

The Friendship of Brazil.

In this hour of lowering Mexican problems and a threatened revival of Castro rule in Venezuela, when the relationships of our nation to its neighboring republics in the South may become more responsible than ever before, it is assuring to hear one of the foremost diplomatists and students of Brazil declare that the United States "has no better friend" than the country he represents.

Manoel De Oliveira Lima is described by the New York Times as "a publist and writer of established reputation, who has traveled widely in all quarters of the globe and is an authority on on the history and present condition of Brazil." He is now his Government's minister to Belgium. In discussing the relationships between the United States and Latin America he recently said with peculiar timeliness and significance: "The reciprocal attitude of the United States and Brazil that is of the two greatest Powers of the western hemisphere, always very friendly are now most cordial, resting on a basis of loyal understanding and mutual respect which excludes all idea of protection and subordination—an essential condition for unreserved and profitable intercourse."

This utterance appears all the more noteworthy in view of the recent visit to this country of Dr. Muller, prime minister of the Brazilian cabinet, who was given one of the heartiest welcomes ever accorded a foreign visitor and who, in turn, spoke in unreserved praise of the United States, its diplomacy and its people. Brazil is one of the most interesting and vigorous nations not only of this hemisphere but also of the entire world. Its commerce is growing by leaps and bounds; its influence is widening; it has a stable and liberal government, a rapidly developing navy, resources beyond measure; its friendship is an asset which the United States may well prize.

The true test of the new tariff will come when we go to buy those Christmas presents.

Too bad about Ambassador Wilson being touched by a pickpocket just as he is about to lose touch on his Mexican job.

In the absence of any specific government report to the contrary, it must be concluded that the amateur garden crop is all right.

Editorials In Brief

Realizing that mules have feelings, the superintendent of a coal mine at Brazil, Ind., has issued orders that all the drivers in the employ of the company shall do away with the use of whips. Drivers who are unable to get desired results without the use of the "black snake" have been replaced by men who can persuade the mules to work without beating them. Some of the mules also had to be discharged, but, as a whole, it is said that much better service is obtained.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

An appellate justice of New York, speaking of a famous jurist of the higher courts of the same State, now deceased, remarked in conversation with a friend that the late Justice So-and-So looked upon jurisprudence as "a game to be won on points." This hit off very aptly the old spirit of the American judiciary. That there is a new and better spirit appearing is evident from the fronical comment itself, and it is shown concretely in the announcement of the Alabama Supreme Court that it will reverse no more decisions on grounds merely technical. The Alabama deliverance is epochial. It must naturally be followed by the subordinate courts of that State and cannot but have a bracing effect on reviewing tribunals of other States.—Newark Evening Star.

The Journal's Letter Box

Editor The Journal:

I read with a great deal of pleasure your editorial of July 25, 1913, headed "Interurban Trolley Lines," particularly that part which states tha "Atlanta's future growth depends largely on the development of her outlying territory' and there few surer means to that end than the establishment of well considered trolley lines."

I think your editorial throughout is timely, and indorse it fully, and feel that if you will keep the matter before the chamber of commerce and the people of Atlanta and surrounding country until the trolley lines are extended in all directions giving the people in every community an equal chance of developing and building up the neglected localities which they will certainly do, it will add thousands of people to the population of Atlanta and Fulton county.

The Georgia Railway and Power company have a system of trolley lines far in advance of what the people of Atlanta ever expected to see at this time, and I feel sure that when they extend the lines that they are contemplaing on the west side that the increase in population on that side of the city will be simply marvelous.

Very truly,

W. A. VERNOY.

"England's New Dramatists"

If the theater of Pinero and Jones did not "represent life," and if Mr. Bernard Shaw was too prone to "argue about it," the path that St. John Hankin opened up has been followed by other writers very clearly. Mr. Granville Barker, in "The Madras House" especially, has pushed further along it than Hankin even saw; while Mr. Galsworthy has kept very austerely to the path of life as he sees it lived in the big world outside the theater. The work of these two men is so well known, however, that we may turn at once to the younger workers. Since Miss Elizabeth Baker has failed up to the present to follow up her admirable and sympathetic play of clerk life, "Chains," Miss Githa Sowerby and Mr. Stanley Houghton must be regarded as the two most promising of recent recruits to the theater. Miss Sowerby also has only one play to her name that need be seriously considered, but there is plenty of time for her to follow it with others. "Rutherford and Son" is the study of a middle-class household and of its dominance by the father, given with something of Ibsen's spareness and economy. Mr. Houghton is a typical product of the English repertory theaters. His apprentice work for Miss Horniman's theater at Manchester—which included the amusing comedy for parents, "The Younger Generation"—preared one for his admirable achievement in "Hindle Wakes." Here is a play that is at once exciting, as a good play should be, and almost perfectly faithful in its adherence to real life. One may think that the mill girl who refuses her employer's son in marriage is not, in her concluding outbreak, quite innocent of the suspicion of having studied Mr. Bernard Shaw; but for three-fourths of his play Mr. Houghton is master both of his story and of the best way to tell it in the theater; there can be no two opinions about that. I would group with Mr. Houghton, Mr. Charles McEvoy, Mr. Harold Brighouse, and Mr. G. S. Hamlen, each of whom has come to the London theater after a period of service with the repertory theaters in the country.—F. P. Howe, in the August number of the North American Review.

As Henry James First Saw London

Henry James' description of London as he saw it as a little boy in the 50's is not only one of the most interesting portions of his biographical work, "A Small Boy and Others," but should be cited by those who contend against current opinion that Dickens' characters are exaggerated. For instance, he says in one place: "The London people had for themselves an exuberance of type. We found it in particular a world of costume, often of very odd costume, the most intimate notes of which were the postmen in their frock coats of military red and their black beaver hats; the milk women, in hats that often emulated these, in little shawls and strange, short, full frocks, revealing enormous boots, with their palls swung from their shoulders on wooden yokes. . . . The range of character on the other hand reached rather dreadfully down; there were embodied and exemplified 'horrors' in the streets beside which any present exhibition is pale . . . figures reminding me of George Cruikshank's Art Dodger and His Bill Sikes, only with the bigger brutality of life . . . and culminating far to the west in the vivid picture, framed by the cab window, of a woman reeling backward as a man felled her to the ground with a blow in the face."

Hagar's Farewell

Farewell, farewell! white tents of girlhood days,
Or maidenhood and of that nameless vale
Where Love first bloomed; and in whose skies yet soil
The dreams of romance, which cannot avail
With which old Memory plays
And in whose handling finds some scanty joy.

Like argosies upon some ample sea!
But, ah, the bitterness your sight brings back to me;
The birth of Love, its bloom, the agony
Of motherhood, but most of all the pain
When Love was scorned, and I
Touched hands with Jealousy,
The memory of which will never die.

See yonder waste, Oh, Ishmael, my own!
See yonder sands where never lifts a tree,
Or oasis to shelter you and me;
That is our home. This, with its mystery,
The endless plain, with heat and hunger sown,
Is our abode. Only the stars above,
The Orient stars, so full of light and love,
Shall compensate us; these, and liberty.

Who's Grand Exalted Rhymester at the Court of Old St. James and now will mix the jingles for the titled ginks and dames? Who'll henceforth have to keep his pipes in tune so he can sing at any hour, by day or night, on order from the king? Who'll add to the excitement with a piece of poetry when British subjects congregate to boost his majesty? Who'd throw for Tommy Atkins boy a rhythmic fit or two if e'er again he'd tally as he did at Waterloo! (But, drat it, Waterlooing has been rather dull of late!) SCHOOL HYGIENE

By Frederic J. Haskin

The fourth International Congress on School Hygiene, which will be held in Buffalo August 25 to 30, in some respects will be the most important meeting from an educational standpoint that ever has been held in this country. The education discussed is along physical lines, but it is a recognition of the true principle of all education, the development of a healthy body to contain a properly developed mind. The leading nations of the world are co-operating in an effort to discover all the conditions which act in any way upon the health of the school child in order that those which are injurious may be overcome.

This is the second of these congresses to be held in an English speaking country. The movement started with the first International Congress on School Hygiene held in Nuremburg in 1906. The one now being arranged for in Buffalo brings the English speaking people into leadership once more.

The sessions will not be exclusively in English, however, for French, German, Spanish and Italian will be recognized as official languages, and papers and addresses in each of these will have places upon the program. Every known subject pertaining in any way to school sanitation will be brought forward at this congress and discussed by experts. Experiments which have proved successful in other countries will be described in order that suggestions may be made for reforms that can be adapted to suit the needs of each locality represented.

The exhibits will comprise an interesting feature of this congress. These will represent each foreign country, showing types of school buildings, systems of heating, lighting, ventilation, plumbing, etc. The United States bureau of education will have several exhibits. One of them is a collection of the recent literature which has been published upon school hygiene in all parts of the world. It has been arranged by Dr. Fletcher B. Dresslar, of the school hygiene department of the bureau of education. A correspondence with over 3,000 persons was necessary to secure this exhibit, many arti les of which are translations from foreign languages. Another American exhibit, which cannot but be greatly appreciated, is a collection of photographs showing public school buildings from the different states. Some of these pictures are of great historic value, representing school buildings connected with the earliest development of the country. One which comes from Delaware was used for school purposes before the Revolutionary war. Several of the western states have sent in pictures of mud huts and sod houses which served as a place of education for the children of growing towns until more imposing structures could be erected. Frequently a picture of an old unattractive building will be accompanied by one showing an up-to-date school house with all modern equipment, thus indicating the progress which has been made. Other pictures show only too clearly the improvements which should be made for the good of the children of some community. These pictures have been collected with painstaking care by Mrs. Goldberry, of the bureau of education, and are her personal contribution to the congress.

In America, perhaps more than in any other country, the need of the best sanitary conditions of school buildings are felt because, especially in large cities, there is so large a percentage of underprivileged children whose parents give little attention to the sanitation of the home. It frequently happpens that even in well-to-do communities the public schools are poorly cared for as to be a menace to the health of the general public.

An exhibit for the purpose of improving the sanitary conditions of the public schools was held in Greenwich, Conn., a few months ago, and it had the desired effect of arousing public sentiment to demand immediate action regarding some of the worst conditions. Greenwich is said to be the second richest town of its size in the country. It includes in a population of 17,000 at least fifty-seven millionaires and a larger number of near-millionaires. It seems that the rich people have established themselves there without wishing to be troubled with local improvements outside of their own grounds. And in a town where living conditions are especially high the poor people are working too hard to make both ends meet to take any interest in the conditions of the school attended chiefly by the poorer classes.

The exhibit included photographs of crowded halls, narrow stairways and cellars with water standing upon the floor so that the janitor had to go through it to reach the furnace and coal bin. There were buildings in which the number of school children crowded into a single low-ceiled room made it impossible to give them the proper amount of breathing air. Consequently they were dull, listless and sickly. The undrained cellar was shown to be responsible for a scourge of malaria which in damp weather considerably lessened the school attendance. In some of the school buildings the partition walls were so thin that they seemed to serve as sounding boards. Accompanying the photographs showing these things were the following verses:

Johnny Jones declines to study.
'Twould hardly seem expedient
To call him disobedient."

A collection showing broken down furnaces, ceilings with holes in the plaster, broken walls, battered water buckets and dippers on a broken bench and other defects bore the legend:

"When a school is old
And its rooms are cold
Does it inculcate
In the childish pate
A feeling of self respect?"

Stirring addresses made by leading physicians and other public men succeeded in creating a furore in favor of a social hygiene campaign in that town that promises well for the sanitary equipment of the school houses in the near future.

The disgusting and menacing water bucket and its single dipper, used indiscriminately by all the children, has been abolished. Sinks have been put in with neat faucets and a good supply of running water which each child may drink from his own cup, although the introduction of the paper drinking cup is advocated.

The introduction of medical inspection into the public school system is only one development of interest in school hygiene. When a child is taken to a physician's office to be treated the physician is frequently unaware of the conditions under which the child pursues his daily studies. When a physician is brought into the school room his scientific sense quickly reveals the fact that the air is bad, causing headache and indigestion; that the room is overheated at times and chilly at others, causing unnecessary colds; that the lighting is bad, causing unnecessary eye strain, and a thousand and one other things which, even the teacher is too absorbed in her work to heed.

Much attention is now given to school architecture with a view to securing the best sanitary conditions in the building. The heating and ventilating engineers, master plumbers, oculists and many other specialists are all interested in securing the best results in school room arrangements now because public sentiment is urging them to it. In small towns and the rural districts, where no sewerage is provided, the matter of toilet rooms is worthy of attention, and among the exhibits of of the school hygiene congress will be model plans and pictures for these buildings, some of which have already had satisfactory trial in other countries.

GEORGIA AND HER POLITICS

What Will the Senate do With the House Tax Bill?

The fact that the senate went after the general appropriations bill of the house hammer and tongs, reducing constitutional apropriations 7 per cent, and cutting off all special items in the budget, thereby bringing about a reduction of $280,000, is taken to indicate that the upper body will likewise have a few amendments to tack on to the tax equalization bill when it comes up for consideration this week.

It is generally understood that the senate is in favor of drastic tax reform in order to meet the present deficiency of over three quarters of a million dollars in the treasury and to raise enough money to meet all appropriations for the maintenance of the state institutions and take care of applications for funds not included in the general budget.

President J. Randolph Anderson has been outspoken in favor of tax equalization by a state board, the very salient features of the house bill of Representative Frank A. Lipscomb, of Clarke, which was passed by substitute Friday afternoon, the substitute embodying only county boards with no central jurisdiction over the valuation of property by counties.

There appears to be a general sentiment among the members of the upper house to accede to the expressed desire of Governor John M. Slaton for definite and far-reaching tax reform.

Just what the senate will do when it gets its hands on the bill cannot be forecasted to any definite degree, but it is an admitted fact that the bill will go back to the house amended so as to insure an equitable state-wide valuation.

Many, many happy returns of the day to Clerk John T. Boifeuillet, of the Georgia house of representatives.

Sunday, August 3, he celebrates his birthday in Macon surrounded by his family, children and grandchildren. Yesterday afternoon he left Atlanta in order to be with them.

When the house convened Saturday morning for the introduction of new matter and the passage of local bills Mr. Boifeuillet was at his post, the same immaculate, debonair and impressive figure that is known to every politician in the state.

Very few of the members knew that he stood on the threshold of another link in life's chain of years. But the fact remains that it was his birthday eve, the last day of a year well and successfully spent, a year characterized by continuing success and the honor of the mention of his name for congressman from the Sixth district to succeed Congressman Charles L. Bartlett.

The house, with the senate concurring, will congratulate Mr. Boifeuillet and wish for him many more years of life and happiness.

When Representative Shuptrine Occupies the Speaker's Chair.

During the past week of strenuous debate on the question of tax reform, Speaker W. H. Burwell, of Hancock, would take an occasional rest and a smoke on the side by inviting some one of the house members to preside for him.

During the long six-hour session of Friday Mr. Burwell tired of wielding the gavel and tendered the chair to Representative Herman C. Shuptrine, of Chatham, who was finding nearly an attentive listener, but taking no part in the oratorical battle between the opponents and advocates of the measure pending.

As everyone knows, the session was a stormy one and the speaker was kept on the alert recognizing members for the privilege of a question. "Mr. Speaker," came a voice from the left of the stand just as the house was in a turmoil. Bang, came the gavel on the pounding board. "Mr. Sumter, of Sheppard," said Mr. Shuptrine, again lustily pounding for order.

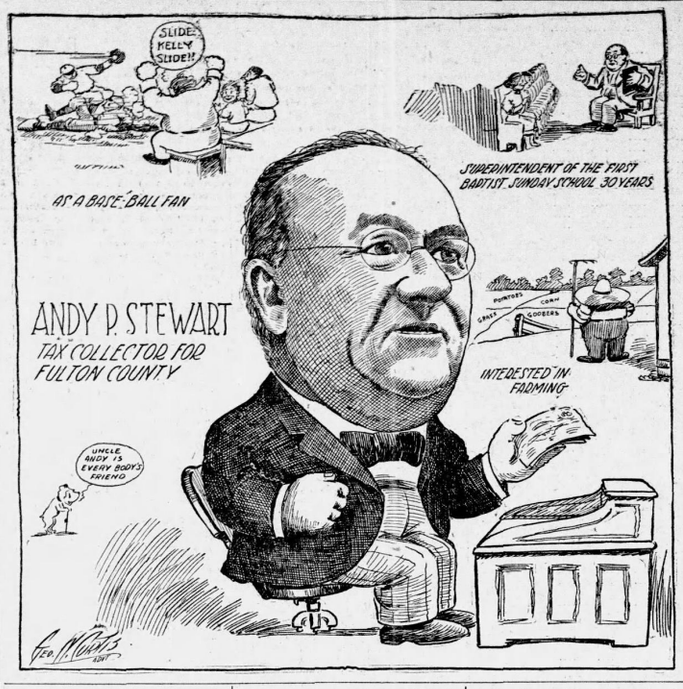
"I object to changing the name of the grand old county of Sumter in any such manner," snorted Mr. Wheatley, also of Sumter, whereupon the speaker joined in the general laugh that, for a moment, relieved the tension of feeling between the opposing cohorts.

House Works Saturday, But Senate Does Not.

The members of the Georgia state senate evidently are a home-loving bunch of legislators. At any rate, you can't get 'em to miss that week-end trip to the family fireside. They simply will not hold a Saturday session.

IN THE LIMELIGHT

BY CURTIS.



Whereas the house has held a number of Saturday meetings since the 1913 term started, the senate not once has failed to adjourn on Friday to meet again Monday morning.

Yet there is always some senator who proposes a Saturday session, and always the vote on it is a close one. Even at that, however, the senators who favor the Saturday sessions have a smile and not a frown when they are defeated.

Attack on Dr. Soule Beneficial, Says the Athens Banner.

Commenting editorially on the recent attack on Dr. A. M. Soule, president of the State College of Agriculture ,the Athens Banner comes loyally to his support with the assertion that instead of hampering him and the progress of the institution, the enemies have made both stronger than ever before.

The editorial, in part, follows:

"The movement to damage and misrepresent Dr. Soule and the institution has brought forward the friends who have not failed to let it be known that the people of Georgia are not to be misled and carried off on demagogue lines.

"A hasty denial on the part of certain parties and their activities ceasing suddenly have caused the case to rest and unless the friends of the institution press the matter further, it is not believed that the instigators in this case will continue, but that they are now ready to keep hands off for fear the investigation might go so far as to reach some who are not in a position to defend their action in the case.

"The question of moving the Agricultural Experiment Station to this city from Griffin is a matter of minor importance. Certainly this worn-out issue should not be injected into the controversy.

"Regardless of the efforts of these gentlemen, who have seen fit to attack the institution, the college is going on doing its work in this state, benefiting the farmer, the merchant, the business man and the professional man. It has grown to be too strong to be overcome and destroyed by a few who are interested only in their own behalf. The college will be here long after many of its enemies are gone and it will continue to grow on and on until it becomes so great and beneficial that all Georgia will be proud of it."

Can State Refuse This Appeal From County School Teachers?

Apropos of the action of the house of representatives in adding $50,000 annually for the next two years to the general school fund, the Pike County Journal, of Zebulon, Ga., prints in a current issue a larconic editorial based on a conversation between "The State" and "Miss County School Teacher."

The editorial follows:

50,000 DOLLARS

to the school fund added by the legislature.

The State to Miss County Teacher:

"My dear, we have added $50,000 to your school fund."

"Have you? But where is my long-past-due salary?"

"We haven't it nor, so far, any way to get it."

"Well, when will the $50,000 be paid?"

"I really can't tell, as there is no appropriation for it, nor funds to pay it out of."

"Why did you appropriate this amount if you did not have it and no way to get it?"

"Oh, well, dearie, just to make you feel like I am doing something for you."

"Do you think we can eat your hot air and dress with your gas?"

"Oh, dearie, be reasonable; we are doing the best we can."

"Will you kindly tell me who else is employed by the state whose salaries are held up like ours?"

"Really, my dear, I can't recall any one."

"Have you any idea when we will get a small part of our salaries, as our debts are pressing us?"

"Damfino, my dear!"

Lieutenant Governor Bill Wins Out in Committee.

Once again has the lieutenant governor bill of Representative Wheatley, of Sumter, survived the committee on constitutional amendments, and once more will it go to the house with the recommendation that it "do pass."

Such was the committee's action on the pet measure of the gentleman from Sumter Friday afternoon. Mr. Wheatley himself appeared before the body and argued for a favorable report on the bill. He is the father of the effort to create the office of lieutenant governor and has advocated legislation to this end from thetime he became a member of Georgia's lawmaking body several years ago.

In the past, where the bill met with favor in one branch of the general assembly it was killed in the other, but the author has never given up hope. He is making every effort to get it through the legislature at the present session.

Strong Sentiment in Favor Of Mother's Custody Bill.

Each day that passes finds sentiment growing in favor of the mother's custody bill of Representatives Smith, of Fulton, and Olive, of Richmond.

The bill, that seeks to keep a child in the care of its mother until fourteen years of age, thereby superseding the present barbaric law whereby her little ones may be taken away from her, was introduced in the house last week and will come up for a hearing before general judiciary committee No. 1, of which Representative Wohlwender, of Muscogee, is chairman, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Emory H. Evidently Hadn't Consulted the Senator.

Over at the state capitol the subject of conversation turns at times to the rather remote possibility of moving Georgia's executive department to Macon—building, officers, governor and all, not to speak of the annual gathering of the general assembly.

Such was the trend of conversation yesterday morning among a bunch of newspaper men as they waited in the governor's reception room for the daily audience with his excellency. Present also were Representative Henry J. Fullbright, of Burke; the governor's private secretary, Major Jesse G. Perry; Senator W. D. McNeil, of the Twenty-second, and young Emory H. McNeil, the bright and manly son of the distinguished member of the upper house.

Senator McNeil was about to move the capital by freight in piecemeals to his home, the Central City, when Mr. Fullbright committed the fatal error of asking the younger McNeil, who was looking at the pictures of great men on the walls, what he thought of it.

"What are you talking about?" inquired the youngster, at once alive to the subject.

"Why, about moving the capital to Macon," answered the gentleman from Burke.

"Hadn't thought of it," returned Emory H., "and I don't think much of it anyway. We haven't got any place to put it."

Whereupon all had a laugh at the expense of the senator, who seemed to enjoy the joke. It was evident that the younger McNeil had not consulted his father on the rmoval question.

LaCrosse Barkeeps Enjoin "High Cost Of Free Lunches"

(By Associated Press.)

LACROSSE, Wis., Aug. 2.—While saloonkeepers of Connecticut are preparing to resist the law forbidding free lunches in saloons, liquor men of Lacrosse are circulating a petition which will be presented to the common council asking for the passage of an ordinance making the free lunch unlawful.

All saloon keepers in town except two have signed it. Downtown proprietors who have been in the habit of setting up expensive lunches declare the cost of meats and vegetables is so high they no longer can afford it.

MANY SECURE DAMAGES FROM W. & A. RAILROAD

Long List of Suits on Account of Dalton Picnic Train Wreck

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

DALTON, Ga., Aug. 2.—Whitfield superior court adjourned this afternoon, following a memorable week. The week saw the settlement of about ten of the few remaining cases against the Western & Atlantic road, which grew out of the disastrous wreck of the Calhoun picnic train. There are now about four of the wreck cases remaining.

The Ray cases were settled this week, John W. Ray and six minor children receiving approximately $8,500 and attorneys' fees, the entire amount being about $10,000. In the cases of Mrs. W. C. Fuller and F. M. Bolding, the former was awarded a verdict for $1,500, and the later a verdict for $750. The railroad company, however, filed motion for new trials in both of these cases. The James Huston case was settled for $3,500.

The company settled many of the cases outside of the court house, and there are now only a few pending.

Some Persons "Flinch" When Truth Hunts Them

"If any man is able to convince me and show me that I do not think or act right, I will gladly exchange, for I seek the truth, by which no man was ever injured."—Marcus Aurelius Roman Emperor

Some shrink and try to close their eyes and ears to the haunting fact that the little 2 1-2 grains of Caffeine in every average cup of coffee is the demon which relentlessly pursues and starts various ailments, such as biliousness, headache, nervousness, sleeplessness, bowel trouble, heart failure and a long string of aches and ails, taking one form in one person and another in another.

The effect of repeated doses of coffee, on those who are susceptible to caffeine poisoning, is so complex that it is difficult to foretell where its hurt will be most serious; in Heart, Head, Eyes, Nerves or where.

The stroke of trouble will come somewhere if the daily doses are persisted in.

Of course if anyone prefers to treat his body in that way it is useless to suggest relief.

Let him "follow the trail" until badly wounded.

There is a mighty army of sensible ones, however, who have bravely tested the truth with their own bodies to see whether or not it was the truth that coffee caused their ailments.

It's an easy test. Quit coffee absolutely for 10 days. Take Postum hot and well-made and keep track of the change toward health day by day.

It's the most exquisite pleasure in the world to be perfectly well with all the delicate and beautifully adjusted machinery of the body working in harmony, not interfered with by drugs, one of the most insidious and deceptive of which is caffeine in coffee.

This is Truth.

Meet it bravely with head up and a hearty handclasp.

Truth thus made welcome will prove your best friend.

These are facts without regard to our own opinion or to whether or not you use Postum.

However it is well to consider that famous food-drink because it supplies a hot beverage of the deep seal-brown color of coffee, which turns to the rich golden-brown when cream is added.

It has a snappy flavor much like the old-time real Java, but there is no "sting" in it, no caffeine or other drug of any sort. It is skillfully manufactured of wheat and a trace of New Orleans molasses.

It comes in two forms. One called Regular Postum, must be boiled full 15 minutes.

The other, Instant Postum, is in powder form and a level teaspoonful in a cup of hot water makes the beverage instantly. Grocers keep both kinds.

Reports of Good Rains in Texas Caused Rapid Decline in Cotton

One of the Heaviest Sellers of New Crop Months Was Prominent Spot House Acting on Advice From Its Agents

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Reports that the drouth in eastern Texas had been effectually broken by showers caused a rapid decline in the cotton market today. October selling at 11.12c, or equal to the previous low point touched in July. From the very opening, which was easy at 7 to 15 points decline, the market showed the effects of heavy selling due to the rain news, and there was but little reaction at any time during the forenoon, the close being near the lowest and 19 to 29 points under the previous night.

One of the heaviest sellers of new crop months was a prominent spot house, which was thought to be acting on advices from its agents in Texas as to the amount and extent of the rainfall. It was pretty well established that fair to good showers covered about all of the large producing counties of Texas where drouth has been complained of, and as more rain was predicted for the southern part of eastern Texas tomorrow, the trade felt assured of more optimistic crop advices from there next week.

In the eastern belt, where continuous showers have begun in many sections of cotton, clearing conditions were indicated in the forecast. Liverpool was closed today, and will be Monday also, about the only signs of interest from trade sources was contained in a wire from Macon, which said there had been some inquiry from the east, August to November shipment. Some of the estimates from Texas were as high as 5,500,000 bales, the idea prevailing that previous damage from dry weather had not been as serious as reported. Demand today was mostly from shorts.

The effects of yesterday's bullish government report seemed to be entirely offset by the great improvement in Texas weather conditions, and sentiment was correspondingly bearish, although bulls were looking for a good trade demand to set in around the 11 cent level, and, besides, claimed that unless followed up by further precipitation, today's rain would prove of little permanent benefit.

ANSTIN & RAIT COTTON LETTER.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Cotton: The important event of the week has been the government report on the condition as of July 25. Trade operations during the week discounting at first an improvement in the crop, but established that fair to good showers covered about all of the large producing counties of Texas where drouth has been complained of, and as more rain was predicted for the southern part of eastern Texas tomorrow, the trade felt assured of more optimistic crop advices from there next week.

In the eastern belt, where continuous showers have begun in many sections of cotton, clearing conditions were indicated in the forecast. Liverpool was closed today, and will be Monday also, about the only signs of interest from trade sources was contained in a wire from Macon, which said there had been some inquiry from the east, August to November shipment. Some of the estimates from Texas were as high as 5,500,000 bales, the idea prevailing that previous damage from dry weather had not been as serious as reported. Demand today was mostly from shorts.

The effects of yesterday's bullish government report seemed to be entirely offset by the great improvement in Texas weather conditions, and sentiment was correspondingly bearish, although bulls were looking for a good trade demand to set in around the 11 cent level, and, besides, claimed that unless followed up by further precipitation, today's rain would prove of little permanent benefit.

ANSTIN & RAIT COTTON LETTER.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Cotton: The important event of the week has been the government report on the condition as of July 25. Trade operations during the week discounting at first an improvement in the crop, but rains and hot and other selling creating new low levels on the first date of the week, but with the approach to the government report it was seen that the market was in an oversold condition and short covering has been the rule. We think that from the usual evened-up condition, or approximately so, was the basis as well established.

Cotton is now reported moving from extreme southern portions of Texas with prospects of an earlier movement from the eastern belt than it was at first thought possible. Financial conditions at home continue to improve and prospects for enlarged activity in all lines this fall are good. Western reports lead to optimism, but they also state that what business now needs is to be "let alone" for a spell. And with no decision on tariff matters they would propose with regard to that to be "let alone" and now quieting.

European reports have not been of such an optimistic nature as they have previously, in the long drawn out struggle in the Balkans has engaged such an enormous amount of capital (idle up) and the monetary losses are now regarded as staggering that this adjustment can only result in a slackening of business in all Europe until they are in better position financially to take care of same. New capital issues are pressing on a market already over-stocked and a note of sound caution is expressed.

We should now proceed to market our crop with the usual bodge pressure on the market in the near future and this will supply contracts to a market that has felt the absence of same for many months. The price can safely be said to be on debatable ground with every opportunity for an advance according to the weather during the next and critical four weeks. The crop of 11 cents in New York should, however, be remembered as much magnitude that covering operations when started should create rapid upswings. The new options have been bought by some who have sold October but this straddle operation does not appeal to us and we still believe in purchases, particularly of October, and think the new crop options can soon be sold for deferred profits.

THE WEATHER

Forecast till 7 p. m. Sunday.

Atlanta and Vicinity: Fair tonight and Sunday.

Georgia: Fair in north, probably showers in south portion tonight or Sunday.

Alabama: Fair except probably showers in extreme south portion tonight or Sunday.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

Cloudy weather, with scattered showers, continues to prevail in the cotton belt, light rains having occurred again in scattered sections of Texas, Alabama, Georgia and the Carolinas. The area of showers extended northward along the Atlantic coast to the New England district.

Throughout the remainder of the country, including the middle states, Lake region, Ohio valley, and the entire Rocky mountain region fair weather conditions have generally prevailed.

Fair weather is indicated for tonight and Sunday, with moderate temperatures.

WEEKLY COTTON REVIEW

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—The cotton market has been somewhat irregular during the past week and as a result from rather violent fluctuations in July contracts to a fine distinctly healthy market, prices have been without any particular feature, the last day of trading in July deliveries, quite a flurry of covering developed, which sent the price up 46 points, and again emphasized the firm old crop situation, while early week declines in the general list alone were recovered yesterday on the publication of the government August report, showing a crop condition slightly under the ten year average, but this rally is now pronounced as also encouraged by renewed buying by the trade, which has been active in the southwest. The light showers reported during the previous week have been considered adequate by many authorities and the reports of dry, but weather has been followed by increasing complaints of deterioration, particularly from south Texas. Yesterday there seemed to be better indications of local showers and showers, but while accounts as to the immediate progress of the crop are more or less conflicting, most of the advices describing the conditions as that good, soaking rains are urgently needed and that the situation will become serious should they not occur within the next week or ten days. Local statisticians figured that the condition figures of 79.6 as of July 25 point mainly to a total crop of less than 14,000,000 bales on the government's estimated acreage, although such deductions compared very bullishly with the movement of the past two seasons, bearishly disposed traders base their position on the possibilities of improvement in this respect, a stock trade demand, and the spinning and crop reporting. Trade interests were credited with buying under the influence of the declines early in the week, but the support for this interest was not in evidence on the advance, and part of the selling has been attributed to commission houses and it has been against prospective crops. Liverpool was a heavy seller at times during the week, in the early part because of realizing on straddles in the new crop months.

HAYWARD & CLARK COTTON LETTER.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 2.—Weather developments over night were distinctly favorable. Indications are that precipitation is scattered in all of Texas, cooler generally over the western and northern half of belt. Partly cloudy with showers in southern portion of belt and fair elsewhere.

Liverpool is closed today and will be closed on Monday also. Cables received today are 20 points in the early trading on liquidation or long covering of new crop months in Texas and the bureau report which is released tonight will be rainy in Texas. New York reported McFadden heavy seller through various brokers. The tendency was to buy on the break in the face of the bureau report, which is bearish in its circular and also on account of delay to the crop in the eastern belt, and this is considered more of too much rain. A spell of fair weather is desirable in the central and eastern states.

The market was steady on the decline with new crops around 11.20. Market prospects for next week appear favorable for a good increase in new crop movement in the west.

SURPLUS RESERVE ITEM SHOWS LARGE DECREASE

The Statement of New York Banks Was Rather Unimportant in Its Showing

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—The Financier says: "The statement of the clearing house banks of New York for this week was rather unimportant in its detailed showing, the only matter to attract attention having been a decrease of $4,031,960 in cash, whereas an increase had been anticipated. Loans showed a moderate expansion of $2,980,000.

"Deposits were contracted by $7,038,000, but not enough to overcome the loss in cash and the result was a shrinkage of $1,040,000 in reserves, bringing the present surplus above the 25 per cent minimum to $26,208,100."

WEEKLY REVIEW OF THE IRON AND STEEL MARKET

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—The average rate of operation of the steel mills of the United States Steel corporation for the week is 80 per cent, indicating that 1,248,000 tons of ingots and 852,000 tons of finished steel were turned out. The orders backed by the subsidiary companies during the current week are at the rate of 50 per cent of capacity, indicating about 23,000 tons daily or 600,000 tons for the 26 actual days of the month. If shipments were equal to the output of roleid products there was a decrease of nearly 100,000 tons for the month.

The independent steel companies, apparently, have not done as well as the corporation interests for small lots of steel products, but the industrial steel last week, contracts for bridges and buildings calling for about 27,000 tons of shapes.

In pig iron the week shows about 100,000 tons, the placing of orders being stimulated by the active export demand for basic and mills. The United States government will receive tenders on Tuesday for 14,000 tons of steel plates and structural shapes for the construction of a new battleship.

The demand for heavy pig iron finally developed something like a buying movement last week, and sales are reported for upward of 200,000 tons, of which 115,000 tons were basic and standard Bessemer iron. The bulk of the buying is for the Pittsburg district, where sales of steel making iron were close to 85,000 tons. Sales of foundry grades aggregated 80 to 82,000 tons, about half of this tonnage going to the Pittsburg district. Prices are very irregular, ranging from 75c to $1 per ton on No. 2 foundry. The most buying was by merchant furnaces, who advance 50c per ton and foundry grades and furnaces also were asking more for steel-making iron.

METAL MARKET.

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Metals firm and unchanged. Lake copper $17¼@15.50; electrolytic $15.00¼@15.37½; casting $15.32½.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF DRY GOODS MARKET

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—The former tone in the cotton markets following the latest government report tended to restrain buying of cotton goods for late delivery. There is still a very steady demand for spot goods and nearby deliveries, but for future purposes, and the mills are accumulating little or nothing in staple goods. Retailers who have been coming to the markets during the week have been buying more domestics and they are apparently very anxious to get some of the most popular shipments.

Prints will be matte on ginghams for the spring season during the coming week. Tentative orders have already been placed by many jobbers. Prices for printed goods are firm and steady with deliveries slow.

The feature of the cotton trade continues to be very light, stocks in first and second hands and the mills being depleted for small lots for replenishing bared shelves. Prices:

Staple cloths, 3½c; 64-60s, 3¾c; 64@60s, 3¾c; 38½ins, 64@60s, 4¼c; 40-inch, northern standard sheetings 7¾c; denims, 9-ounce, 14c; tickings, 10½c; 8-ounce, 12½c; staple ginghams, 6¼c; dress ginghams, 9¼c.

DRY GOODS MARKET.

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Cotton goods market was somewhat firmer following the issuing of the government report on the crop and business was manifested in selling late contracts at old prices. Trade in finished goods for domestics is steady. Stocks continue very low.

TENNESSEE LIGHTNING DOES GREAT DAMAGE

(By Associated Press.)

LEXINGTON, Tenn., Aug. 2.—During the prevalence of electric storms that visited this section late yesterday, three negroes were killed, three others injured, several residences set on fire by lightning and burned and crops considerably damaged.

Lightning which struck the house of Abe Townsend, negro, killed his wife and two children.

New Low Record for Midsummer Dullness Made on Stock Exchange

WEEKLY REVIEW OF NEW ORLEANS COTTON MARKET

Friday's Advance Was Wiped Out by General Selling Based on Reports of Rain in Texas

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 2.—The net change in prices in the cotton market this week was an advance of 2 to 3 points. The high prices were made on Friday and the low prices on Monday. At the highest the trading months were 25 to 27 points over last week's close; at the lowest they were 1 to 3 points under. The range was 27 to 29 points.

Up to Friday the market was dull but steady, with prices gradually working higher on the conviction that the government's report on the condition of the crop on July 25 would be bullish and on drouth reports from Texas and Oklahoma.

The condition figures of 7.9 were lower than expected and caused heavy buying, but on the closing session of the week this advance was wiped out by a general selling based on reports of rain and favorable crop conditions in the west and had been materially changed, especially as Oklahoma got no rain at all.

The movement of new cotton in Texas attracted considerable attention. At the end of the week Houston receipts of new cotton thereby this season were seventy-six bales, against only forty-four a year ago. This was encouraging to the bear side, and it was pointed out that two years ago at the same time Houston's receipts of new were 16,380 bales.

In the spot department prices closed not unchanged, middling 12 cents, against 12 cents last week and 12 7-8 cents this week a year ago. Sales of the spot amounted to 561 bales, against 851 last week and 613 this week last year. Sales to arrive amounted to 311 bales, against 1,056 last week and sixty-two this week last year.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 2.—Cotton futures opened easy at a decline of 9 to 18 points on reports of general rains in Texas. The weather man showed cloudy over the cotton region, with showers all over parts in Texas. Private advices claimed that precipitation had fallen over a considerable area of the most important cotton producing portions of the state. Bears were heavy short sellers and buyers of long contracts were liquidating their holdings at a loss. There was next to no new long buying at the decline. Soon after the call the new crop months were 17 to 18 points down. Shorts took profits and checked the decline. The effect of the first half hour of business the market was steady at a decline of 12 points.

Around the middle of the morning the market was steady at a net decline of 15 to 17 points. The official weather reports showed that rain fell at only 13 out of the 50 stations in the Texas weather district, and no rain at all was reported in Oklahoma. This checked selling for a while, but private reports from important counties of Texas insisted that considerable rain had fallen and that it was needed. The market fell off again to the lowest levels.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF THE NAVAL STORES MARKETS.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 2.—With a steady volume of receipts diverted from other ports in connection with large shipments from other points, the movement of the week at this port at Savannah for the past week has shown a most satisfactory increase, the total for the period ending Friday showing at 7,634 barrels. In rosins the totals have also shown a big increase, receipts for the week ending Friday at 6010 barrels of rosin coming into the open market.

Because of the heavy character of the arrivals, the prices in both the turpentine and rosins divisions of the Savannah market have shown rather a steady decline, the turpentine market as compared with quotations of Friday, the week preceding, being exactly 1 cent per gallon, or 50 cents per barrel down. Rosins, too, are materially lower, for the week's total loss of from 35 to 40 cents being the average decline in the several grades.

In the face of the heavy receipts the buying as far as turpentine was concerned was consistent with exporters, as usual, taking large quantities during the week, the seven days 7,444 barrels of turpentine and 5,062 barrels of rosins changed hands. Because of the character of the movement, there was a somewhat limited character of freight charters available for the week's business, for the most part the remain in the hands of the buyers; consequently, the individuals are taxed almost to their fullest capacity in getting away with their fullest capacity in getting away with their cuefs of the pine tree. The stocks at the Savannah yards yesterday were: Turpentine 29,413; rosins 163,735 barrels. In rosins the stocks show a decrease for the week beyond an increase in the total of the same date a year ago, as many said therefore, that at the present time there are a good many rosins distributed in naval stores in Savannah alone.

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 2.—The net change in prices in the cotton market this week was an advance of 2 to 3 points. The high prices were made on Friday and the low prices on Monday. At the highest the trading months were 25 to 27 points over last week's close; at the lowest they were 1 to 3 points under. The range was 27 to 29 points.

Up to Friday the market was dull but steady, with prices gradually working higher on the conviction that the government's report on the condition of the crop on July 25 would be bullish and on drouth reports from Texas and Oklahoma.

The condition figures of 7.9 were lower than expected and caused heavy buying, but on the closing session of the week this advance was wiped out by a general selling based on reports of rain and favorable crop conditions in the west and had been materially changed, especially as Oklahoma got no rain at all.

Sales of the spot amounted to 561 bales, against 851 last week and 613 this week last year. Sales to arrive amounted to 311 bales, against 1,056 last week and sixty-two this week last year.

Buying Orders Stormed the Corn Pit and Kept Up the Big Advance

Crop Destruction Due to Record-Breaking Drouth Gave No Sign of Being Stopped and the Enhancement of the day left the market holding firmly at a level 1 3-8c to 1 5-8@1 3-4c above last night. Wheat finished with a gain of 5-8@3-4c to 3-4@7-8c and oats up 1-2c to 7-8@1c. In provisions the outcome was 5c to 22 1-2c decline.

Corn came within 1-4 of a cent of making good the predictions that the market would reach as high as 70 cents a bushel. There was rain anywhere today, and the official forecast showed a prospect of several days more of dry weather. Chances of further widespread injury to the plant were increased by signs of renewed high temperature.

One material advance in the corn market took place at the beginning of the last hour of the session, when the advance in the September option had reached 69 3-4 cents, which is 5 cents above the price a week ago, profit taking became so general on the part of holders that a sharp fall ensued to 69@69 1-8c. The effect, however, lasted only a few minutes. Aggressive buying quickly forced a rally and driving the market upward again as the gong cleared the crowd from the pit.

All other grain was influenced by the action of corn. There was popular view that farmers beyond the Missouri river would soon stop selling wheat and would hold that grain instead of corn to feed stock. The fact that cutting of wheat has been begun under favorable conditions in the Canadian northwest gave a little encouragement to the bears at one time today, but an offset developed in reports from New York that a large amount of vessel room had been engaged for ocean shipment of wheat.

Primary receipts of wheat were 1,391,000 bushels; a year ago 1,414,000 bushels. Seaboard clearances of wheat and flour equaled 323,000 bushels.

Oats ran up briskly with corn. Sales to arrive were far below the seasonable volume.

Nearby deliveries of provisions suffered from liquidation incident to the piling up of considerable heavy stocks here. January options, however, held relatively firmer, owing to the strength of corn.

GYPSY SMITH PREACHES AT "SAM JONES" MEET

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., Aug. 2.—The Sam Jones Tabernacle meeting, an annual event originated by Sam Jones, the evangelist, twenty-five years ago will begin here tomorrow morning when "Gypsy" Smith, one of the best evangelists in the world, appears in the pulpit.

Rev. "Bob" Jones, the evangelist who last year was chosen to succeed Sam Jones in managing the annual meetings, arrived last night and met the committee in charge, completing arrangements. The committee stated that more than 5,000 visitors are expected to attend the daily meetings.

VALUE OF WHEAT CROP ESTIMATED $584,000,000

Threshing Over in Southwest and Northwest and Canada Is Busy Harvesting

Yields of wheat are sufficiently well settled to justify estimates of its probable commercial value. The southwest has finished threshing, and the northwest is in the midst of harvesting. The wheat market is expected to yield approximately 500,000,000 bushels. On the Pacific coast we shall have 80,000,000 bushels, including Canada's big crop of that state, and the entire spring wheat yield is now placer at 220,000,000 bushels, making 700,000,000 bushels for the entire country. That is exactly the quantity in the final estimate of last year. The crop is large, and two large crops in successive years generally mean lower values for the later than for the earlier of the two.

December wheat at Chicago is now selling at 90 cents a bushel. An allowance of 10 cents as our top price for the year's crop would seem to sound about right. On that basis the value of the entire crop would be $584,000,000. That would mean an increase of $100,000,000 over last year. At 70 cents less a bushel, or cents at a time, the total would be $491,000,000. Below six cents a bushel the farmers would not profit over last year. The result is estimated with fairly close accuracy at the price of December 1.

1912—Winter, bushels, 460,000,000; spring, bushels, 240,000,000; total, bushels, 730,000,000; value, $584,000,000.

1913—Winter, bushels, 340,000,000; spring, bushels, 220,000,000; total, bushels, 560,000,000; value, $560,000,000.

1913—Winter, bushels, 330,000,000; spring, bushels, 211,000,000; total, bushels, 541,000,000; value, $487,000,000.

1913—Winter, bushels, 434,142,000; spring, bushels, 309,000,000; total, bushels, 743,142,000; value, $668,000,000.

What one value of this crop in the markets of the world will be will necessarily depend on the state of demand for consuming countries. From current indications the needed supplies will be considerably under the crop to carry. This applies especially to winter wheat, for the quantity of that grown in excess of last crop was rather small, coming to a little more than 340,000,000 bushels. Europe is likely to be above rather than below the average grows years.

AUSTIN & BAIT GRAIN LETTER

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Wheat: The principal news today was the beginning of the movement of larger crop prospects than generally expected. The market has been figured mainly now in the northwest and the spring wheat crop prospects are somewhat improved, although the winter wheat crop is only holding its own. Winter wheat threshing returns are more generous than expected. Export demand seems to have grown somewhat lowered with their reports of some of the winter wheat weather or last week's unchanging continues on an enormous scale, contract stocks are large, away ahead of last year and the only conditions to help the price attracts buying of a substantial character which will eventually come is the early crop scare. Prices are lost sight of. It all depends upon the weather between now and the harvest of 10 cents or a decline of 5 cents. Lowering temperatures and continued rains of severe nature should bring about a good sized setback when they occur, but if they are delayed beyond August 15 we look for the bull corn market to be the biggest ever seen. Prospects are bad for rains of that nature to occur on all important reactions. Oats threshing returns are indications of a total crop nearly one-third under last year, the surplus from which is still against the demand. Oats are the big speculative option on all swells, but this will eventually be removed and strong influences are now working for substantial concessions. While corn will be the speculative leader for the rest of the month we believe December oats should be carefully accumulated for a later advance.

Provisions—With corn so high and pastures poor to burning up we look for a considerable increase in live stock shipments to market this week, including hogs with a consequent lowering of the live hog and provision prices. Of course it is impossible to predict the extent of this, but it is safe to make it for higher prices later on with cheap provisions many months more distant.—Austin & Bait.

MINNEAPOLIS FLOUR OUTPUT.

Northwestern Miller says: The Minneapolis flour output last week was 125,235 barrels, against 93,985 barrels, against 126,000 in 1912, 363,010 in 1911 and 296,000 in 1910.

Two of the smaller mills that were closed last Tuesday are in operation today and the output for the week should reach 340,000 barrels. A year ago 296,000 barrels were turned out.

The weekly output was of the following per cent of the maximum capacity:

	July 27	July 29	July 30	July 31	August 1	August 2
	July 26	1912	1911	1910	1909	1908
Minneapolis	69	55	80	55	80	60
Outside mills	56	53	55	60	60	60
Average	63	54	68	58	70	60

The Minneapolis and interior mills of the northwest last week increased their flour sales, while the output of the Kansas mills generally was reduced, compared with the preceding week. The majority of millers express the view that buyers are less bearish than they have been and that sentiment in the trade is improved generally considering the situation as a month ago.

The buying at present seems to be mainly in small lots and for prompt shipment, indicating that buyers are not stocking up. A good many mills have their orders pretty well cleaned up, but others have more than the usual number of unfilled orders. In the case of the latter they are being urged to make directions that the flour may be manufactured and shipped before September 1.

Decided indifference is shown on the part of buyers toward the new crop situation. This is because mills quite generally ask 10@20 cents per barrel premium for shipments after September, October and November delivery. One large milling company is offering to sell on agreement for delivery about 30 days, except on the agreement of the buyer to pay 5c per barrel for each 30 days of delay after September 1.

Several mills report quite a drop-off in directions, although in the case of others there seems to have any definite idea. However, the mills reporting this are not behind in their volume of orders on their books.

The sales of flour for export last week were small, but only exception was in sales of about 7,000 bags of first clear by a Minneapolis mill to go to Holland and the United Kingdom, and of 5,500 barrels of patent by an interior mill.

Most mills report their first clear as scarce and very stiff in price. One mill advanced its price 10 cents on this grade last week, stating that it has been asking heretofore. Just why this grade of flour is so much in demand and so high in price seems able to explain. Domestic markets are chiefly taking it. Second patent is also quoted very high in price, some has recently been sold at the red dog price.

Minneapolis mills are generally asking for standard patents a range of $4.50@4.80 per 196 lbs. in wood.

Mills report milfeed in good demand for future shipment, though not as severe to quote the prices for shipment after September 1. Those willing to sell for deferred delivery ask a premium of 50c per ton.

Brokers say that eastern inquiry is not as brisk as it was a week ago. Speculative buying of new crop feed was good last week, but is now slowing up. Buyers' interest is small, brokers say inquiry is only fair and is confined to consumptive needs.

One mill has some good sales of bran for September, October and November shipment, but it is now out of the market, considering that late developments in the corn crop may lead to higher feed prices. Others are taking the same view.

Bran is held by mills at $16.50@17 ton, in 100-lb sacks, f.o.b. Minneapolis; standard middlings at $18@18.50; mixed middlings at $19@22, and red dog, in 140-lb sacks, at $24@24.50.

NEW DALTON CHARTER SENT TO LEGISLATURE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

DALTON, Ga., Aug. 2.—The bill to amend the city charter of Dalton has been sent to Representative Berry. HOME FOR WAYWARD NOT TO BE BUILT BY CHARITY

Friends of Proposed Institution Say State Should Build It

Friends of the house bill to establish a home for wayward girls as a state institution declare that they are distinctly not in favor of the suggestion that the legislature pass the bill with a nominal appropriation of $500 or $1,000, and then trust to the charitable contributions of individuals to furnish money to build and operate the home.

Chief Probation Officer W. W. Tindall, of the children's court, says:

"This is not a question for charity to deal with. It is a duty of the state. What is needed is an institution which belongs to the state and is maintained by it just as the boys' reformatory is maintained.

"For the state to pass a bill providing for the creation of such a home, and then ask that the money be raised by charitable contributions, is worse than bearing the question.

"If what is said is true, and I have no doubt it is, that ten to twelve girls are lost in each county in Georgia every year through a lack of such an institution, the imperative duty of the state is a thing that cannot be shifted to other shoulders."

The advocates of the measure point out, however, that it is not asked that the state appropriate the entire sum to be paid this year. They ask for simply enough to begin work on the home, and will be content if the payment of the total appropriation is stretched over a period of two or three years.

Deaths and Funerals

M. H. ANDREWS.

M. H. Andrews, Jr., aged 14 months, died at the residence of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Andrews, 69 Holtzclaw avenue, at 7 o'clock Saturday evening. H. M. Patterson & Son took charge of the remains. The funeral will occur Sunday at Greensboro, Ga.

DR. LEWIS J. BURCH.

Dr. Lewis J. Burch, of Waycross, Ga., died at a private sanitarium in Atlanta Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock. His body was removed to Greenberg & Bond's funeral parlors and will be shipped to Waycross Sunday for funeral and interment. He is survived by four brothers, Messrs. H. H. and O. B. Burch and Drs. G. A. and W. S. Burch; and by four sisters, Mesdames J. Y. Lee, John Mumford, Boyd, and Dave Canady. He was 37 years old.

MRS. W. B. GUINN.

Mrs. W. B. Guinn, aged 54 years, died Saturday afternoon at the residence in Emran Park. She is survived by her husband and eight children. The body will be taken to Walhalla, S. C., at 10:40 o'clock Sunday morning.

MR. G. E. WALLACE.

Mr. G. E. Wallace, a contractor, of 707 Ponce de Leon avenue, died at a sanitarium last night. He is survived by his wife, one son, John Ernest Wallace, and two brothers, Virgil and Homer Wallace, of California. The remains were taken to Patterson's, and funeral arrangements will be announced later.

CHECKER TOURNAMENT WILL OPEN IN ATLANTA

The southern checker tournament will meet at the auditorium on August 5 and 6. The meet will take place on Tuesday at 9 o'clock and hold for two days. A small fee of 25 cents admission will be charged to defray expenses. Tickets will be good for both days.

Mr. Allen, of Tennessee, who won the southern championship last year, and Mr. Fishburn, who held the championship several years, will be in attendance. Quite a number of players are expected to attend from other states.

CANNING CLUB LECTURES SUCCESSFUL IN APPLING

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

BAXLEY, Ga., Aug. 2.—During the month of July Miss Annie Lou Tappan, of Greensboro, Ga., in co-operation with Georgia State College of Agriculture and the Farmers' Co-operative demonstration work of the United States department of agriculture, has had charge of the demonstration work of the girls' canning clubs of Appling county. Successful demonstrations were given at eighteen schools and clubs in different sections of the county, besides work in private families.

They have expressed their thanks to Miss Tappan for her untiring efforts and for the valuable instructions she has given. As a result of these demonstrations a large number of canning outfits have been purchased and the work is progressing nicely.

Miss Tappan gave special instruction in making pickles preserves, sauces and jellies. She wrote a letter on canning which won first prize in a contest in a popular farm journal and by request of her club members she consented to have it published in the Baxley News-Banner. The success of the canning club work in this county has surpassed the most sanguine expectations of the most optimistic people of the county.

PIKE COUNTY VETERANS HOLD ANNUAL REUNION

BARNESVILLE, Ga., Aug. 2.—The Pike county camp of Confederate veterans had a highly successful reunion at Bluff Springs yesterday. There was a large crowd present, a fine dinner was spread for everybody and the exercises were quite enjoyable.

The principal address was made by J. W. Wise, of Fayetteville, candidate for congress from the Sixth district. The reunion was regarded as about the best one held in several years.

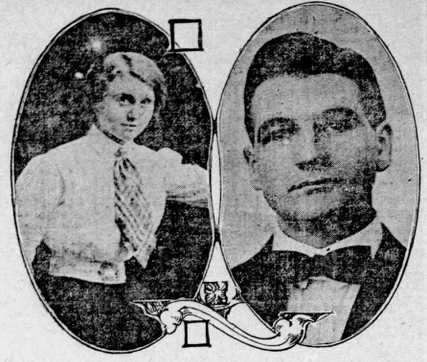
FIREMAN AND HIS SWEETHEART MARRY, THEN NOTIFY PARENTS



MR. AND MRS. J. GARNETT WEBB.

The friends of Miss Ruby Clay and Mr. J. Garnett Webb will be as much surprised to learn of their marriage as were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. H. Clay, he parents of the young bride. The wedding took place on July 31, at the home of Rev. G. D. Stone, 354 Luckie street, and, besides the minister and witnesses, none were the wiser.

Mr. and Mrs. Webb left immediately for Murphy, N. C., where they will spend their honeymoon of several weeks, and from there the bride notified her parents. At first they were much displeased at the runaway match, but have now decided to forgive the modern young Lochinvar and his lady.

The bride is quite young, and is most attractive. The groom is a city fireman stationed at No. 3 engine house.

Both have many friends who will extend felicitations on their return.

Dalton Boy Scouts

DALTON, Ga., Aug. 2.—A drum and bugle corps will be organized by the patrol of Boy Scouts, organized by boys twelve years of age here. The boys are enthusiastic and are taking deep interest.

Fire Department Outing

DALTON, Ga., Aug. 2.—The Dalton fire department has decided to advance the date for the annual outing and will leave here August 7 for Tampa, Fla., instead of St. Simons, as was planned originally.

NEWS OF THE MOVIES

Hackett in Atlanta Movies.

"The Prisoner of Zenda," with James K. Hackett in the dual role of Rudolf V. King of Ruritania, and Rudolf Rassendyll, the false king, containing all the thrills of the original drama, will be produced at the Alcazar August 5 to 9 inclusive.

Mr. Hackett, the matinee idol of all stages, is well adapted for motion pictures, as his personality, mobile face and strong chin are shining marks for the motion picture camera.

To see Mr. Hackett and his original company "on the boards" in many instances has been an expensive proposition to most of us, as the cost of admission has been so high that it was a hardship to witness this famous actor. The motion picture has done away with this and has put the price of admission within the reach of all—practically one-tenth of the original admission price asked.

Mr. Daniel Frohman, who has always staged "The Prisoner of Zenda," has made more substantial and better setting for this production on the screen. "The Prisoner of Zenda" in moving pictures is Mr. Hackett's greatest achievement.

The Vaudette opens the week with three first release pictures, "When Chemistry Counted," an American, featuring Kerregan and Richardson; "A Proposal by Proxy," a Thanhouser, featuring Harry Benton, and "Cohen's Outing," a Keystone comedy.

One absorbing fact about these Keystone comedies—no matter how blue you may feel, or how much you are worrying, a Keystone comedy can make you forget all and bring a laugh every time. Jack Lamey and Joe Coombs still entertain at this theater. These popular boys are always sure of pleasing any audience.

Lynch's new theater offers a special attraction in addition to the regular run of good pictures, in presenting Al Milton, who has the reputation of being some fiddler, and the strangeness of it all is that he fiddles on anything from a cigar box to a broom handle. He is called the "one string artist."

Mr. Harry Beckford, known as the Dixie Tenor, who has been entertaining the patrons of the Montgomery, is to be retained for another week. This popular tenor offers quite a contrast to the character singer. His rendition of the more popular ballads and light songs leave a lasting impression on the audience. Good photo plays, as usual, will be shown all week.

The Savoy offers some very interesting motion pictures, including several thrilling feature films for the week.

Try "GETS-IT," the Painless New-Plan Corn Cure. See Your Corns Vanish in a Hurry.

"Whew! hurts way up to my heart. I've tried almost everything for corns"—

Corn-sufferers, corn-less joy is at hand. "GETS-IT" is the only real enemy any corn ever had. Put "GETS-IT" on in two seconds,

"Well, Did You Ever! Come Over and See How Easy 'GETS-IT' Got That Corn!"

and away they go, shrivel, vanish. No more cotton-rings to make the corn sharper and more bulky, no more bandages to stop circulation and stick to the stocking, no more salves to turn the flesh raw and make the corn "pull," no more knives or razors with danger of bleeding and blood poisoning.

"GETS-IT" is painless, stops pain, and is absolutely harmless to healthy flesh. Warts and bunions disappear. "GETS-IT" gives immediate relief.

"GETS-IT" is sold at druggists' at 25 cents a bottle, or sent on receipt of price to E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago.

JOURNAL WANT AD Horoscope

AUGUST 4

Many noted financiers and philanthropists have this day as their birthdate.

For instance, Russell Sage was born on this date in the year 1816. A careful study of his life, his dominant traits and his personality will be a valuable help to any man or woman having a similar birthdate.

There is no limit to the great things in store for a person born on this date when they obtain true self-control through silence and solitude.

The sun governs the signs of this birthdate. The gems are the ruby and diamond.

Every day a person of this birthdate should quietly and alone, concentrate on the highest and best things in life and demand that only the best be manifested in his life.

This day's planetary conditions suggest discussion of large business exchanges. Advertising through The Journal Want Ads for any line of mercantile goods. Positions as clerks will receive responses.

Some Want Ads are inserted free in The Journal—see first Want Page. For other ads, ask that they be sent for, or telephone them to Main 2000 or Atlanta 423.

POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

The Best Time to Begin Poult.y Raising

THERE is no better time for anyone who desires to enter the poultry business to buy breeding stock than during the months of August and September. It has been demonstrated time and time again that the best months to raise the most profitable chickens is during the fall and winter, and at this season of the year anyone who desires to stock their place with a nice lot of thoroughbred chickens should by all means buy now from some reliable breeder a few of his best breeding birds which can generally be secured at a low price. For instance, for $15 or $25 you can get four hens and one rooster of most any popular variety from some reliable breeder that will give you a splendid start by taking care of their eggs and setting them under other hens during the early fall months. Anyone for a small investment in this way can have a nice start of chickens by early spring, and the September and October hatched chicks will in most cases be laying in March or April at the latest of the following year. As most breeders have room at this season of the year to take care of their young growing stock they are willing to sell you a good pen of birds at $15 to $25, something that will more than pay for itself and winter, when they bring the big prices.

them and what they would get out of scrubs amounts to by far more than the difference an ordinary scrub pen of birds would cost and what a pen of thoroughbreds would cost, to say nothing of the satisfaction and pleasure that a nice pen of thoroughbreds would give you. It is a pity but what every farmer and every small breeder could see these matters in this respect and keep only the best of thoroughbred fowls for their own use. They are the kind that will pay the feed bills and the cost of keeping and are the kind that you should by all means put your time and attention to.

Hundreds of breeders make the mistake of their lives by buying chickens that apparently seem cheap. They are fowls that are probably worthless and cannot give you the per cent in return that a much smaller number of thoroughbred birds would do for you. It will pay you handsomely and is the best money you can invest in starting in the poultry business to buy from some reliable breeder during August and September a good pen of not less than five birds, and have the breeder mate them for you just as he has bred them. They will not only be a pleasure to you to show these nice uniform even birds to your friends and prospective customers but will cut down and maintain the cost to keep to such an extent that you can very well afford to keep at least one yard of some good thoroughbred variety of chickens. A great many people make a mistake in buying chickens to start their foundation per sitting. Others $2.50 per sitting. G. B. Newman, Ga.

or to breed from just any old sort and kind because the birds seem so cheap, but in the long run they will come dear. It is by far better to select from some good breeder a pen of first class birds and start right as your start will show either a loss or a profit at the end of the season. But, if you start right with good birds that can show a profit you will be more than apt to be on the right side of the ledger at the winding up of the season.

If you want a general purpose fowl select some of the Orpington family, the Plymouth Rock family or the Rhode Island Red and you cannot make a mistake as these are the very best general purpose chickens, and in addition to laying a large number of eggs will give you splendid chickens for table use and to sell in case you have a customer for something firstclass. It is by far better to put two or three times the amount of money in some good thoroughbred variety of fowls to start with than to begin with a bunch of scrubs that cannot pay their actual expenses. Fancy poultry which has been perfected by the breeder and bred to the highest stage of perfection naturally can show anyone a much larger per cent of profit even if they desire only eggs alone than they can possibly secure from a bunch of scrubs. The person who can prepare himself to raise a large number of chickens this fall and winter, especially if they are of a good variety and properly fed, this party can expect to do business and secure for himself a trade that will show a large per cent of profit at the end of the year.

A great mistake that most people make is in attempting to keep too many chickens. A few chickens well cared for and properly fed will show a large per cent of profit when a large number otherwise treated will show a loss. Take care of your chickens and they will take care of you, and select some good, staple standard variety and you cannot make any mistake.

Yours very truly,

Geo. Lee Bruce.

POULTRY FEED

WHAT TO FEED IN ORDER TO SECURE EGGS

If you want eggs during the latter part of the summer and early fall you must feed your hens on a thoroughly balanced ration, in the shape of a dry mash. We claim Aunt Patsy's Poultry Feed to be the best dry mash on the market from the fact that it is composed of the highest grade of raw material that can possibly be secured. This feed has no filler or adulterated, cheap stuff, whatever, but contains every ingredient of which the egg itself is composed, and if you will every ingredient of which the egg itself is composed, and if you will only think a moment, you will agree with me that if you put into the only think a moment, you will agree with me that if you put into the hen's craw the ingredients of which the egg is made, you have a right to expect her digestive organs to convert these ingredients into the egg and to secure a greater yield of eggs from your hens than if you fed her otherwise.

Ask any successful poultryman what he thinks of Aunt Patsy, and give us a trial order.

Very truly,

AUNT PATSY POULTRY FEED CO.

Ask Your Dealer for Aunt Patsy's Poultry Feed, the Egg Producer.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., April 29, 1913.

Aunt Patsy Poultry Feed Co., Memphis, Tenn.

Gentlemen: Until a few months ago I lived in Atlanta, Ga., and while there I fed my hens and baby chicks Aunt Patsy's Poultry Feed, and had no trouble in raising my young chickens or getting plenty of eggs from my hens. Since moving to Indianapolis I have not been able to get the Aunt Patsy feed, and have had lots of trouble with my baby chicks, and my hens have not laid well at all; so I am writing to know if you won't ship me 500 pounds of Aunt Patsy at the best price you can delivered. If so, I will appreciate it very much. I've JUST GOT TO HAVE AUNT PATSY or my hens, and I don't want to do that. So please let me know if I can expect the feed bill obliged.

Respectfully,

MRS. S. M. SMITH.

FOR RENT—HOUSES

Suburban Bungalow for Rent.

WE ARE offering a beautiful bungalow at East Lake, located very near the entrance to the Country Club. The lot is 60x200 feet, well shaded and in an ideal location.

Has screened porch 14x40 feet, large living room, three large bedrooms and semi-detached kitchen and dining-room. Electric lights, water, tub and shower bath. Garage and servants' rooms, with bath. Convenient to car line and only a few minutes' ride from the city. Can lease for a year, partially furnished, at $60.00.

FORREST & GEORGE ADAIR

WEST END

NEAR Gordon street, right on the car line, we have to offer one of the prettiest ten-room houses in Atlanta, thoroughly modern and right up-to-date. I know of no home that could carry more comforts or in its plan and location be more desirable, built and occupied by its owner, with a lot consisting of more than a half acre. We can rent this furnished or unfurnished, possession any time, and to the right parties a rental that will seem remarkably low. See us about this.

ANSLEY PARK, INMAN PARK AND WEST END.

IN Ansley Park, Inman Park, and West End, all of these our prettiest residence sections, we have some of the most attractive homes and bungalows that we have ever been able to offer, and nearly all of these are thoroughly modern, and up-to-date. It is needless to comment on the neighborhood, all having fine car service, very convenient and surrounded by the best schools and churches. Houses of this type seldom occupy space in a renting list. They are generally owned and occupied by their owners. Be able to grasp the chance to get an exceptional home at a very reasonable rent on account of the odd season.

SHAKE HANDS WITH PROFIT

THERE IS a great band of people that will tell you what they could have done on Peachtree, West Peachtree and Ivy streets by buying while the streets were quiet. That's spilt milk now and doesn't count for much.

TURNER CARSON and Livingston Wright saw the light on West Peachtree in January, 1912, and bought forty feet at $300 per foot. They held one year and sold for $600.

SPRING street will duplicate the success of Ivy and West Peachtree.

I AM OFFERING three lots at Spring and Simpson streets:

Corner 26x105 feet, $7.750
Next corner, 25x105 feet, $6,750
Next lot, 25x105 feet, $6,500

TERMS, one-third cash, balance 1, 2, 3 years at6 per cent.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Part of Andrews Property on Peachtree Road Being Considered for Mansion—Ansley Park Also Considered—B. M. Grant & Co. to Handle Ponce de Leon Apartments—Mt. Perian Acreage Development—High Cost of Lots

The disposition of the present governor's mansion property and the location of the new mansion are the main subjects of discussion in real estate circles just now.

Not only does the transfer of the present mansion property at Peachtree and Cain streets mean another big development for Peachtree street in a commercial way, but the new location means a great impetus for some residential section.

ANDREWS CORNER CONSIDERED.

Several locations are being considered in a tentative way by the legislative committee on buildings and grounds.

Among locations is a corner of the magnificent Andrews property—the property of Colonel Walter P. Andrews on Peachtree road and Andrews avenue.

Colonel Andrews has there an estate of fifteen acres, which is one of the finest estates around Atlanta. The corner under consideration has about 300 feet of frontage and a fine building site.

This location is a little over five miles from the center of Atlanta and is at the curve of the road. The road at this point is level, but on a high elevation.

Details of the plan are being withheld for the time being, but will be announced fully in a short time. The committee is favorably impressed.

ANSLEY PARK LOCATION.

Another location under consideration is in Ansley Park. This site for the new mansion is known as Mount Lookout and is composed of six acres on one of the highest elevations in Ansley Park.

This elevation, with the exception of being vacant, is like other Ansley Park sites upon which stand the residences of Edward Inman, W. F. Winecoff and Edwin P. Ansley. It is on Avary drive.

On three sides of it are the golf links and a splendid view of the city can be had from the crest.

GRANT TO HANDLE APARTMENT.

B. M. Grant & Co., through Albert S. Adams, will have charge of the renting of the Ponce de Leon apartment house at the southeast corner of Peachtree street and Ponce de Leon avenue.

It had been planned to have the renting handled by the owners of the building, but the plan was abandoned and the commission will go to B. M. Grant & Co. A man will be delegated to stay in the building.

The building will be completed and ready for occupancy on September 1. There will be fourteen housekeeping apartments and fifteen rooms with housekeeping features or separate rooms, and two floors—the tenth and eleventh—will be bachelor quarters, in single rooms and suites.

There will be a cafe and a roof garden. There will also be a mechanical refrigerating system and vacuum cleaners. Every apartment will have servants' rooms, bath and porch. Two passenger elevators will run to the tenth, and there will be an elevator for servants and a freight elevator.

The rates for the apartments are from $2,400 to $3,600 a year. It will be possible to arrange the apartments so as to have as many as eight rooms.

ACREAGE DEVELOPMENT.

H. W. Dews has sold for Duncan McDougall 105 acres on the Mount Perian road, in land lot 178, fronting on both sides of the road. The price was $15,000.

The purchaser will employ a landscape engineer and subdivide the tract into smaller tracts of five and ten acres for home sites. The tract is heavily wooded and well suited to subdivision needs.

RESIDENCE CHANGES.

Time was when a $50-a-foot residence lot was the city ideal. Today $50 a front foot is almost the minimum for a building sit, and a house on it attracts no comment at all.

Now they sell vacant lots up to $200 a front foot—in a few cases they have gone beyond that—the aggregate running up to around $20,000. Of course, the house has to conform, and it ends by the owner having a $50,000 to $100,000 home.

This simply means that the city man of average means will be building on twenty-five-foot lots in a few years, and the wealthy will have to content themselves with 100x200 estates.

There is a reason for everything, and acreage doesn't become more valuable for nothing. It is discounting the arrival of the twenty-five-foot residence lot.

The Dillin-Morris company has recently made the following sales:

DILLIN-MORRIS SALES.

GOVERNMENT TO PROBE BLACKMAIL SCANDAL

New Arrests Expected to Follow Detention of Department of Justice Agents

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 2.—The two federal department of justice agents and the self-styled representative of Governor Carranza of Mexico in this country, arrested here last night on a charge of blackmail, still lived detained today and another arrest in the case was expected soon. Local agents of the government are trying today to ascertin of Emmanuel Brito, former governor of the Mexican state ofCampeche, is wanted in Mexico on the charge of murder.

A telegram purporting to come from Attorney General McReynolds, voluntarily declared a "fake" and genuine, in which it was requested that Brito be arrested, was the medium through which Brito is said by R. G. Matthews, special agent of the department of justice; J. L. Mott, his assistant, and Ernesto Espinosa, to get $500 to pay to Matthews $500 on the pretense that Brito would be protected from arrest.

The investigating officers say they saw the money, all marked, pass from Brito to Matthews in a room at 1228 St. Charles avenue, a rendezvous for Central American's in New Orleans.

The trio was taken to the office of Federal District Attorney Guion this morning, where a long secret conference took place. It was not announce whether the government would take hold of the case or whether the accused men would be given a hearing before a state court.

The men have not been given privilege of making bond.

WITHDRAWAL OF NEGRO PLEASES SOUTHERNERS

Wilson Breaks Another Precedent in Appointing Indian as Register of Treasury

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—No act of President Wilson with reference to federal patronage has given more general satisfaction to southern Democrats than the withdrawal of the nomination of Adam E. Patterson, an Oklahoma negro, scheduled to be register of the treasury. Accompanying the notice of withdrawal there came from the president the nomination of Gabe E. Parker, a citizen of Oklahoma, and an Indian.

The withdrawal of Patterson's nomination was unexpected. It was forecast in these dispatches last Sunday, following the protests provoked by the announcement that Patterson was a negro. As was stated at that time, the nomination was made through an inadvertance, and after the matter was called officially to the president's attention on last Monday by Senator Hoke Smith, it was believed generally that Patterson's name would be withdrawn.

Practically every southern senator joined in the protest that was spiced by the Georgian. Senators Lea and Shields, of Tennessee; Williams and Vardaman, of Mississippi; Bankhead and Johnston, of Alabama; Simmons and Overman, of North Carolina; Tillman and Smith, of South Carolina; Senator Bacon and others prominent in the senate indicated their opposition to the nomination.

Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, who was credited with having recommended Patterson's nomination, accompanied Senator Smith to see the president. He, too, urged that the nomination be withdrawn.

That Patterson's name ever reached the president for nomination as register of the treasury was due in the first instance to the insistence of northern Democratic senators, and representatives. They informed the treasury department to recognize a Democratic negro with the office. They argued that inasmuch as a negro has occupied this position through many administrations, failure to appoint another negro would be accepted by the race as a discrimination against it by the Democratic party and would militate seriously against the party in future contests. It was on the strength of these representations, coupled with a lack of knowledge by Secreary McAdoo that the president did not intend to appoint a negro, that moved the treasury department to send Patterson's name to the White House. It was an act of expediency in the interest of the party, as Mr. McAdoo believed.

The fact that the office has been held by a negro for many years, and that the unbroken custom has been to give it as a reward to the black race, did not disturb President Wilson, who has become accustomed to breaking precedents in Washington. He unhesitatingly withdrew the negro's name just as soon as it became known to him that the southern people generally were opposed to the recognition of negroes in federal offices.

BULGARIA MAKES BIG DEMANDS AT PEACE MET

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Aug. 2.—Bulgaria's counter proposal presented at the Balkan peace conference here today is regarded as constituting her maximum demands, and, consequently, their abatement to some extent is considered certain.

Peace will be signed, according to the opinion expressed in diplomatic circles, on the basis that points, on which an agreement cannot be reached, shall be reserved for decision by the great powers.

The Bulgarian proposals stipulate that the frontier line should give Bulgaria possession of the towns of Kotchana, Istip, Strumitza, Seres and Kavala.

Bulgaria declined to recognize the allies' claim for an indemnity or to enter into any negotiations concerning that subject.

MRS. HAWKINS GUILTY; SENTENCED FOR LIFE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Aug. 2.—Mrs. Sylvia Hawkins, charged with being an accomplice in the murder of her husband, Arthur Hawkins, was today found guilty and by the jury recommended to be punished by life imprisonment. This sentence was passed upon her by Judge J. B. Jones.

Jim and Bartow Cantrell, convicted of the murder of Arthur Hawkins, were sentenced by Judge Jones to be hanged on Friday, September 26, 1913. It is said that a motion for a new trial has been filed in all three of the cases. All of the parties bore up well under the sentence.

Despite Uneasiness Caused by Narragansett Robberies, Mrs. Fish's Guests Put Them On

(By Associated Press.)

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 2.—Notwithstanding the nervousness which has been manifest among society leaders over the safety of their jewels since the recent big robberies at Narragansett Pier, the display of gems at the "Mother Goose" ball at Crossways, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, last night, was one of the most notable ever seen in the society colony here. While the jewels worn by the 500 guests were beyond estimate of value, one of the matrons thought it a conservative appraisal to say that they were probably worth $12,000,000.

In many cases the summer colonists sent armed messengers to get their jewels from safety deposit vaults in which the owners had placed them, since the recent robberies, and the Fish estate was surrounded by a cordon of police, with a captain in charge and scores of plain clothes men mingled among the guests during the night's festivities.

GIRL SHOT IN NEW YORK IS RICH MAN'S DAUGHTER

First News of Her in Ten Years Was Telegram Telling of Tragedy

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—That Miss Rebecca Silverman, the handsome young woman who was shot three times and perhaps fatally wounded on Fifth avenue this morning by Abraham Fink, a traveling salesman, of Buffalo, who thereupon committed suicide, is the long-lost daughter of a wealthy retired merchant of Boston, developed this afternoon from a statement she made in the hospital, coupled with the statement of an attorney who called to see her.

Miss Silverman said she became acquainted with Fink in Buffalo. Three weeks ago, tiring of his attentions, she went to Atlantic City and then returned here. Fink, she said, found her and tried in vain to persuade her to go back to Buffalo. Today he renewed his plea. When she persisted in her refusal he shot her.

The young woman admitted that "Violet Rogers" was the name she assumed in Atlantic City.

An attorney who called at the hospital to see her this afternoon said that he had been sent by her father, Meyer Silverman, a wealthy retired merchant of Boston. The father, he explained, received a telegram today that his daughter had been shot. The message was the first news he had been able to obtain regarding his daughter since she left home ten years ago.

The telegram, the attorney said, was sent by Jere Abrahams, whom Miss Silverman was engaged to marry. The attorney declared that Mr. and Mrs. Silverman had been making fruitless efforts to find their daughter in every part of the United States.

ALABAMA FEUDIST GONE FROM PRISON

Not Known Whether He Escaped or Was Drowned

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 2.—William F. Kennedy, one of the principals in the Kennedy-Pearce feud in Calhoun county eight years ago, has disappeared from the state penitentiary at Wetumpka, where he was serving a life sentence for complicity in the murder of his own sons, Shelt and Sarge Kennedy.

Prison officials believe Kennedy was drowned in the Coosa river while fishing. He had been a trusty several years and his pastime was to fish in the river. Kennedy had no money and although he had many chances to escape he never left the prison property.

The Kennedy-Pearce feud attracted much attention in the south a few years ago, and several persons are now serving penitentiary sentences for complicity in crimes committed in the feud. Dr. J. E. Pearce is serving a life sentence for the murder of the Kennedy brothers; John Fowler ten years; John Aston fifteen years, and Pearce's son two years.

REPUBLICANS AT LAST DENT NEW TARIFF BILL

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—In an effort to hasten the progress of the tariff bill, leaders on both sides in the senate today determined to support a movement to have the session begin next week at 11 a. m. instead of at noon. The senate will sit seven hours a day under this arrangement, and the leaders hope the extra hour will serve to get many campaign speeches out of the way.

The earthenware schedule finally was completed today after an amendment by Senator Jones was to put a countervailing duty on lime was voted down. Senators Borah and Gronna voted with the Democrats. The entire metal schedule temporarily was laid aside because Senators Penrose and Oliver, who are especially interested in it, were out of town. The sugar schedule also was passed over. Both will be taken up next week.

HOT RACE ON FOR PIKE COUNTY COLLECTORSHIP

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

BARNESVILLE, Ga., Aug. 2.—A lively race is on for tax collector of Pike county to fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of E. R. Carswell, of Barnesville. The election will be held on Monday, August 18. T. Evans and J. A. Stone, of Barnesville; Rev. J. C. Baird, of Milner; J. D. Dunn, of Zebulon, and J. H. Lee, of Concord, are the candidates and at present it seems to be anybody's race. They are all good men and there is much interest in the result of the campaign.

PRESIDENT COMMUTES SMUGGLER'S SENTENCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Compassion for a feble and desperately ill prisoner seventy years old today caused President Wilson to commute to expire at once the four months' sentence of Yncente Rosas, convicted at Tucson, Ariz., of smuggling three and one-half quarts of "Muscal" from Mexico.

GENERAL TAX BILL TO HAVE AMENDMENTS

Both House and Senate Have Busy Week Ahead of Them

Having settled for a time, at least, the matter of general tax reform, the house faces, tomorrow morning, several bills from the ways and means committee, amendatory to the general tax act, introduced by Representative L. R. Akin, of Glynn, and Speaker W. S. Burwell, in keeping with the policy of the administration.

The past week was a busy one as predicted, every minute of the time being taken up in the passage of the Lipscomb bill which finally got through by substitute in the shape of a measure framed by Representative J. E. Sheppard, of Sumter. There was no time for other legislation to be squeezed in and many important matters set as special orders must wait for the business of this week to be considered before finding their way to the clerk's desk for a third reading.

The two bills of Speaker Burwell, introduced, at the insistence of Governor John M. Slaton, provide for an extra tax levy of two and one half mills in 1914 and 1915 for the purpose of paying the school teachers of the county schools and for other purposes. Both of these measures require a constitutional majority of two-thirds of the house or 123 votes.

Sentiment appears to have been, and still is, somewhat against any extra tax and while these bills may receive a majority of a quorum it is not considered certain that they will receive the necessary majority as required by the constitution.

Probably next in importance to all of the matters to be taken up is the resolution of Representative R. F. Slater, of Bryan, empowering the governor to borrow $500,000 to be used in payment of the back salaries of the county school teachers of Georgia. This action on the part of Mr. Slater, and the subsequent recommendation of the measure for passage by the ways and means committee, is in accordance with interpretation of a recent constitutional amendment by Attorney General Thomas S. Felder, which he construed in a communication to Governor John M. Slaton, to mean that the state could borrow upwards of half a million dollars for the purpose of assisting the treasury in the absence of slow returns.

It is believed that this resolution will have the support of a majority of the members of the house and pass with little, if any, opposition. If there is one thing that the legislature seems inclined to do, that one thing is the payment of the state's teachers, whatever the other shortcomings may be.

QUICK WORK EXPECTED.

In all there are five bills fathered by Mr. Akin that have the right of way over all other matters, but there will be no such delay in getting these through as was experienced with the tax equalization bill. As a matter of fact, every measure amendatory to the general tax act should be out of the way by Thursday and the way clear for bills that are now on the calendar and awaiting immediate consideration.

Speaker W. H. Burwell announced at the adjournment of the house Friday afternoon that bills of great importance were set for Monday morning and urged every member to make it a point to be in his seat promptly at 9 o'clock when the assembly will be called to order. This is two hours earlier than the house has been in the habit of reconvening at the beginning of the week and is taken to indicate that it must get down to business after Sunday's rest with the same dispatch with which legislation is treated after the first day.

SPECIAL ORDERS.

Following are the special orders:

To tax registered lobbyists $50.

To increase the occupation tax on foreign corporations from $5 to $100, as is the law now, from $10 to $200, on a sliding scale, or double the former amount.

To fix tax on automatic bottling plants at $25 per head for one machine, $75 for two, $125 for three and $50 each for every head in excess of three.

To empower the secretary of state to appoint tax agents in any county where he may see fit.

To raise the license tax on automobiles from $2 for the life of the car to $5 a year.

This last measure is the only one that is doubtful of passage as it stands, owing to the opinion of Secretary of State Philip Cook that it was class legislation and therefore unconstitutional. It probably will be amended, however, to meet all requirements and thereby meet with the approval of the lower assembly.

MOTHERS' RIGHTS BILL.

The bill of Representatives John Y. Smith, of Fulton, and Samuel L. Olive, of Richmond, to vest in the mother the custody of young children will come up before general judiciary committee No. 1 at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon.

The bill, in which such widespread interest has been manifested, was slated for a hearing before the committee on last Wednesday and on last Friday, but both times the committee meetings were postponed. Wednesday the committee did not meet because the house was in session and Friday Chairman Wohlwender was absent.

Monday afternoon, however, it is practically certain that the committee will take up the consideration of the bill, and a number of Atlanta lawyers who have long favored such a measure, will appear to champion it before the committee.

It is said that the sentiment of the house is overwhelmingly in favor of the proposed measure, and a number of representatives, among them Speaker Pro Tem. E. H. McMichael, have declared that the bill should by all means be passed at this session. Among the many other members of the house, who have expressed complete approval of the bill are Chairman Ed Wohlwender, of the general judiciary committee; Crawford Wheatly, chairman of the appropriations committee, and Representatives R. H. Hardeman and Wallace Miller.

The bill proposes to vest the custody of children under 14 years of age in the mother unless she is shown to be an unfit person to care for a child.

Many attorneys and several superior court judges, among them Judge Henry D. Hammond, of Augusta, favor a bill to vest the custody of children in the mother even more completely than will the proposed measure.

The general judiciary committee is expected to take up the Smith-Olive bill immediately upon convening at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon and all attorneys and others interested in the measure are urged by the author to send it the weight of their favor before the committee.

SENATE WILL BE BUSY.

The busiest week of the session is in store for the senate starting Monday. With both the appropriations budget and the tax equalization bill passed by the house and up on the senate floor, that body will have about all it can handle, to say nothing of the scores of local and general bills which will come up for a third reading.

As a result the senate will hold afternoon sessions. A resolution to that effect is before the committee on rules, and will be passed on Monday.

The committee on appropriations has decided to a man to stand firm in its action of cutting the budget $280,000 to conform to the expected revenue. Unless measures increasing the state's revenue are passed by the house, the senate is almost certain to pass up the appropriations bill in its abbreviated form.

The Sheppard substitute for the Lipscomb bill, providing for county boards of tax equalizers will be fought to a finish in the senate. President Anderson and other senators have expressed themselves in favor of a state board, not provided for in the Sheppard substitute, and chances are that the Sheppard substitute will be amended to that effect and sent back to the house.

SHOOTS BROTHER'S WIFE; SLAYS SELF BEFORE MOB

Waycross Man Pursued Half a Mile by Crowd of 500, Which Sees Him Die

WAYCROSS, Ga., Aug. 2.—After fatally shooting his sister-in-law, Mrs. Lucy Moore, aged nineteen years, at the home of her father, H. Freeman, here tonight, R. F. Smith, aged twenty-five years, fled a half mile from a mob of 500 people and fired a bullet into his head, killing himself instantly.

The young woman's father was with her when she was shot and grappled with Smith in an effort to save her. Smith wrenched free and fired one shot. It struck Mrs. Moore in the breast.

The cause of the shooting has not been determined. Smith is said to have repeatedly threatened to kill Mrs. Moore and to have attempted to brain with a hatchet J. E. Thorpe, proprietor of a store in which the young woman was employed.

MR. JOHN C. COWLES, OF EATONTON, IS DEAD

Was Uncle of Prof. R. C. Little, of Atlanta Boys' High School

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

EATONTON, Ga., Aug. 2.—Mr. John C. Cowles, an old resident of Putnam county, died at the home of his daughter in Columbia, S. C., this week.

Mr. Cowles was a fine southern gentleman of the old school. He was a Confederate veteran, enlisting as a member of the Brown Rifles, Company B, Third Georgia regiment, and was in some of the hottest fighting of the war, receiving severe wounds in two battles.

He is survived by his widow and four daughters, two sisters, Mrs. W. S. Bonner, of this city, and Mrs. M. B. Dennis, of Haddocks, Ga., and a large number of relatives in Georgia, Alabama and Florida. Professor R. Cowles Little, of the Boys' High school, at Atlanta, is a nephew and also a namesake of the deceased. Mr. Cowles was 77 years of age at the time of his death.

DYNAMITE DESTROYS A CATHOLIC CHURCH

(By Associated Press.)

CLIFTON, Ariz., Aug. 2.—The Catholic church at Morenci was wrecked today by dynamite. Father Call, who was asleep near its easterly, was thrown from his bed but escaped injury.

Officers are proceeding on the theory that the work was that of a young Mexican who recently had sworn to destroy all institutions maintained by contributions from the working class. It was the second attempt to destroy the church.

REFUSE TO DEPORT MRS. CLARA MELCHER

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 2.—Federal immigration authorities here refused today to institute deportation proceedings against Mrs. Clara Melcher, who says she has claims against Prince Stanislaus Sulkowski, Austrian nobleman.

An affidavit upon which a request for her banishment as an immoral alien was based, said to have been executed by Sulkowski before he and his bride left on their honeymoon, was not given consideration.

FARM HAND TRIES TO KILL EIGHT WITH AXE

Negro Attacks Family at Midnight as They Are Asleep

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

CAIRO, Ga., Aug. 2.—Several posses this afternoon are scouring the country for a negro, said to be Ed LeCont, a farm hand, who entered the home of George Bodiford, a well-known citizen of Grady county, about midnight Friday, and attempted to murder the entire family of eight with an ax.

The assailant practically brained Mr. and Mrs. Bodiford. They have not regained consciousness, and their death is expected at any moment. Some of the children, who recognized the assailant, have revived sufficiently to make known his identity. The finding of his shoes and ax further substantiates the children's statements.

LEAVES SHOES AND AX.

As the assailant fled he dropped his ax on the floor. His shoes were found in the yard, supposedly where he had hidden them before entering the house. The shoes and ax have been identified by relatives who claims to be the wife of Ed LeCont.

A son of the negro has said that there was some trouble several days ago between Lecont and Mr. Bodiford. Four physicians are in attendance on the Bodiford family. All are expected to recover except Mr. and Mrs. Bodiford.

The awakening of a little girl of 12 probably prevented the negro from killing the entire family of eight. When the child screamed the negro struck her with an ax, almost severing her nose from her face.

Prominent Virginian Dead

ROANOKE, Va., Aug. 2.—Colonel A. M. Bowman, member of the state lottery commission for years chairman of the finance committee of that body, died at his home in Salem today, after an extended illness.

BUMPER CROP EXPECTED AROUND BARNESVILLE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

BARNESVILLE, Ga., Aug. 2.—Not in years have the crops of cotton and corn in this immediate section been so promising at this season as for this year. During the past three weeks every possible progress has been made and farmers are highly elated. If conditions continue favorable for the next few weeks the finest harvest will be gathered that has been known for many years.

This applies to the territory immediately around Barnesville. There are a few communities in the section where the boll weevil has done some damage. The outlook as a whole, however, is quite encouraging.

Heat Very Trying to Women's Nerves

Hot weather has a very weakening effect on women. They are too languid to exercise, and as a result have appetite only for foods that seem light and tasty, such as salads and other cold concoctions. But these frequently produce indigestion, and with it comes constipation.

It is especially in hot weather that women should keep up the highest standard of health, for it is necessary to have strength to resist the heat. The first essentials are good digestion and regular bowel movement, and then good red blood and steady nerves will follow. The best way to obtain these is not by an over-indulgence in fruits, which often are not ripe, or over-ripe, and hence are dangerous, but in the use of a gentle and pleasant-tasting bowel stimulant like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Use it tonight and your constipation, indigestion and sick headaches will vanish by morning.

Mrs. Henry Moeller, 2958 Lee Ave., Chicago, uses it herself and gives it to her children, and Mrs. A. C. Caldwell, Denver, Colo., was once pale and sallow-looking, but now has a pretty complexion, and naturally they are great believers in the value of Syrup Pepsin as a seasonable laxative-tonic. It can be obtained of druggists at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, the latter size for family use. Its tonic properties make it an ideal laxative for women and children. You will never again use strong cathartics, purgatives and salts after trying Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it, postpaid, by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 418 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

GUARD YOUR HEALTH! NUXCARA!

Warm weather is dangerous. It will play havoc with your digestion. Your appetite will wane. You will not feel inclined to eat the proper, nourishing food. Irregular meals, imperfectly masticated, will ruin your digestion. Without good digestion life is worthless.

Take NUXCARA

3 TIMES A DAY—

One-half hour before each meal. Then you can eat three nourishing meals each day without discomfort. Your appetite will respond to the improved condition of your digestive system. Your health will be assured.

NUXCARA is a guaranteed remedy for the treatment of the membranes of the stomach and intestines. It is not a digestive agent, but a certain and positive cure for indigestion and dyspepsia.

NUXCARA promotes the secretion of natural digestive fluids, restores and reduces the inflamed membranes. Proper assimilation is re-established. Nutrition is improved. Hence, NUXCARA increases vitality.

Hundreds of Atlantians testify as to its merits. The best physicians recommend it. An Atlanta druggist discovered it after years of scientific study.

Read this testimonial. NUXCARA will do the same for you, if you take it three times a day.

Prominent Citizen Indorses NUXCARA

Mr. J. W. Brooks, traveling representative of The Atlanta Georgian and Sunday American says: "For two years I have carried in my grip a bottle of Nuxcara, and would not think of going out on the road without it. I consider it the most wonderful discovery in medicine. The number of people who suffer with indigestion and dyspepsia, the terrible distress they suffer, no one knows but those who have had experience with it. When one remedy after another fails, when digestive agents seem to aggravate it. In the face of til this, Nuxcara cures in every case—truly it is a wonderful remedy."

Here is the Evidence

Prominent Atlanta Citizens Give Splendid Testimony

T. Y. YOUNG.

Some 16 weeks ago Thomas Y. Young, a noted Chinese herbalist and graduate of one of China's most noted Medical Institutions, gave notice to the people of Atlanta that he would open an herb store at 55 Houston street, in Atlanta, and promised immediate relief to all those who were suffering and who would give his ancient Chinese remedies a fair trial.

Immediately upon opening, hundreds who were ailing with all manner of human complaints, which the best American physicians failed to cure, called at the Oriental Herb Co.'s shop for treatment.

Result: Permanent cures have been effected in hundreds of cases by the use of these magic HERBAL Remedies.

These remedies have been employed by scientists of the Far East, successfully for thousands of years.

The truth is that these ancient Chinese herbs, roots and barks are natural medicines. They are the basis of all our modern American medicine compounds. We sell you direct the herbs, barks, roots and other valuable vegetable essences from which modern and high priced compounds are made. By selling these herbs and roots we give you for one-seventh the price you pay elsewhere. The pure unadulterated base of the medicine you need. After all, the best evidence of the worth of anything is proved by the result.

Among the hundreds who took advantage of our opening offer was Mr. L. Hughs, a resident of Atlanta. His story brings a cheerful message to his many friends, heralding his phenomenal recovery, and bearing a message of hope to thousands of fellow sufferers in Georgia.

Tucson, Ari., June 15, 1913.

To the Public:

I take pleasure in stating that I have known Dr. T. Y. Young during the past year, and have taken the herb treatment, receiving marked benefit therefrom.

I am personally acquainted with a number of most reputable citizens who have taken treatment from this physician for chronic ailments, especially kidney and nervous troubles, who state that they have been fully restored to health. Dr. Young, in my judgment, is worthy of the confidence of the public; he is a gentleman of culture and high standing in circles where he is known, and justly appreciated.

Truly yours,

L. HUGHS, Ex-Governor of Arizona.

If you are sufferins! If you can't get well! If you have abandoned all hope of happiness and good health! Why not take this key to "The Door of Hope in the House of Health" that Mr. L. Hughs points out to you?

"They are coming to dinner, my dear,
And I've thought to order the beer.
I know you would guess,
Why yes!
of course
IT'S WIEDEMANN'S."
"That's good to hear, thoughtful too, dear,
But wouldn't it be well to always have here,
At least a case of that good beer."

I WAS A Heavy Drinker

VICTORY IN 3 DAYS

If you know anyone who drinks alcoholic spirits, especially the morning variety, let me send my FREE book, "Confessions of an Alcohol Slave," that will tell how I quit drinking, gave me health and happiness and everything beyond. When drinking heavily I weighed 165 pounds. Now I weigh 210, a gain of 45 pounds. I was a slave to drink for 25 years. For a period I would drink over a quart of whisky, and sometimes more, every 24 hours. And then, suddenly, I quit, and I never touched another drop. I damaged business, health and social opportunities, made life hard for family, friends, lost friends and became an unworthy, unwelcome burden upon all except a few saloon keepers, who cheerfully accepted my money for the poison they gave me.

For 25 years I kept it up, and then, and I was regarded as a hopeless case. Various "cures" did me no good. But now I have a joyous message for drinkers and

Mothers, Wives, Sisters

While drifting from bad to worse, or a slave of King Alcohol on, I unexpectedly found a true remedy, and it saved my life. My health was quickly restored. I became and am a respectable man, enjoying every benefit of manhood, from the accursed alcohol. I speedily and naturally lost all desire for drink. I took it from my family, friends, home, office, buttermilk and other non-alcoholic liquids, the craving for liquor ceased. I could walk by and positively, my stomach became well and I recovered from all ailments which I now know were due to my indulgence in strong drink.

WONDERFUL

It was done in 3 days as if I had called upon will power or faith I would still be a drunkard, because as I have said, my will power had left me, while drinking. I rejoiced so greatly at having found true relief that I decided to devote my life to removing the curse from others. My success has been marvelous, for I have a reliable, guaranteed cure of Remedies adapted for sending to any home, anywhere. My Remedies have proved notable in all cases of the kind, including those of the most violent habits of long standing. Testimonials by the hundred, and every one of which you can verify. Many were sent to me, unsolicited, because of the great benefit conferred upon others who did not have any will power left to help themselves. I feel I have a message of hope for many wives, mothers, or friends. The after effect of taking my Remedies is simply wonderful. Body, nerves, will, mind, memory and will-power are wonderfully strengthened.

I tell you what I will do. If you will write me, which I send FREE to every person for relative or friend who is addicted to any of the drink habits, I will explain in full how I did it and how you can do it. I propose in life is to save the drunkard. I propose in every way I know how to help him to help himself. I promise is absolutely guaranteed. My Remedies are for self-administration at your own home. Summer Realty Wants

This is the time of the year, during August, when realty in the suburbs, the country or at the seashore is obtainable at the most reasonable figures; for, although most vacationists have been settled long ago in Summer homes, there are many who have been obliged to move, either back to the city, or have decided to go to the mountains or some other part of the country for the remainder of the season.

The result is that there are many houses, flats and apartments empty right now that are most desirable, and the owners are most eager to rent them so as not to have their property vacant.

This is, therefore, the time that The Journal Want Ads come in for a great deal of use in realty buying, selling, renting and exchanging.

Watch The Journal Want Columns carefully, and, if you do not see what you want, run a little Journal Want Ad yourself.

How to Heal a Stubborn Abscess

A Home Method Sure to Restore Flesh to Natural Health.

Do not cover any external sore so as to interfere with perspiration and the formation of protective scabs. Keep it clean and bandaged. If it is a stubborn case, flush your blood with S. S. S. This famous blood purifier works wonders. And you can easily give your blood a good, thorough cleansing by using S. S. S. There is no need for anyone to be despondent over the illness of blood impurities. No matter how badly they attack the system or how unsightly becomes the skin, just remember there is one ingredient in S. S. S. that so stimulates the cellular tissues throughout the body that each selects its own essential nutriment from the blood.

Do not fail to get a bottle of S. S. S. to-day. You will be astonished at the results. If your abscess is of such a nature that you would like to consult a specialist, write to the Medical Dept., The Swift Specific Co., 187 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

THE announcement today of Miss Adeline Thomas' engagement to Mr. James Leech Wells will be of interest to a wide circle of friends throughout the state and south, the pretty bride-elect being a charming member of a prominent family and Mr. Wells coming originally from Louisville, Ky., where his family is well known. Miss Thomas is the only daughter of Mrs. Alice Muse Thomas and a niece of Mr. George Muse and Miss Jessie Muse.

Personally she is very attractive, a piquant brunette with a manner full of charm.

The wedding will be a home affair taking place the latter part of September or the first of October.

THE event of the week which is being delightfully anticipated is the polo game at Fort McPherson. It will be Atlanta's first opportunity of seeing a local game, the match to be played by a number of officers of the post, Atlanta men and players from the Aiken and Sumter, S. C., teams.

Colonel M. E. Carthew-Yorstoun will be the referee and the crowds of interested spectators will make the field as fascinating a panorama as those of the north where the games are just now features of the smart set at the summer resorts, as well as in England and on the continent.

Numbers of motor parties have been planned for Wednesday, the women in their smart gowns and hats to be a delightful part of the photo. A number of young women who are enthusiastic horsewomen will ride out and will be among the most interested of onlookers, having met during the past week at Piedmont Park to try the sticks with the view of organizing a club which will compete with the men's team for honors in this most brilliant and exciting of outdoor sports.

Among those who have been invited to join are Miss Louise Windle, Miss Josephine Windle, Miss Margaret McFee, Miss Helen Jones, Miss Josephine Stoney and Mrs. John Hill.

A moving picture film will be made of the event Wednesday, the post band to furnish music for the occasion. A feature of the afternoon will be a mounted tug of war the riders to be without saddles, the men of the regiment to take part.

A Word or Two of Welcome to Out-of-Town Merchants

—Atlanta—and Rich's—gladly welcome the hundreds of southern merchants and traveling men who assemble here August 4th to 16th, to consider Modern Retail Business.

—Modern Retail Business is standardized. There is little difference in method between the leading department stores of New York, Denver, San Francisco or Atlanta.

—All aim to give the customer SERVICE—to have the right goods, at the right time, at the right price.

—As a result of giving this kind of service for the last 46 years, the firm of M. RICH & BROS. CO. today occupies an unrivaled position among the other good stores of Atlanta.

—We have no secrets. The business methods that have brought us success are open to all. Out-of-town merchants are invited to wander about the store, to ask questions, freely. Our rest rooms, checking rooms, free telephones and writing rooms are at the disposal of your wives and daughters. We are here more than five hundred strong to welcome you.

August Furniture Sale

Prices that Prove the Economy of Buying Your Furniture Now. Note These Unusual Values

The August Furniture Sale has been broadly planned. It is not a sale of a few odd pieces that we want to sell, but a wide merchandising movement embracing 1st—Every stick of our regular furniture in our warerooms and on our floors.

2d—Special purchases from manufacturers who supply us regularly.

——The reductions throughout range from 10 per cent to 50 per cent; the average savings are about $20 in every $100 spent.

——The furniture that bears the least reductions—10 to 20 per cent—are the staple lines and complete stocks which we carry all the time.

——The furniture that bears the biggest reductions—25 per cent, 30 per cent, 40 per cent, and even 50 per cent—are the broken suits, odd pieces, discontinued patterns of our own and those we have acquired by special purchase from the manufacturers. Though necessarily abbreviated, the appended lists are typical of the reductions throughout.

35c to 65c Laces at 19c

In the wake of the inventory just past we find many small lots of laces which it were better to clear at a loss than to carry over into another season. That's the "why" of this next-to-nothing 19c price. Choose from Filet, Venise, Vals and shadow laces in bands and flouncings, from 9 to 18 in. wide. Cream and white.

15c to 25c Baby Matched Sets 10c

$15 to $22.50 Embroidered Robes $5.95

Sheer white voiles and lingeries, bewitchingly embroidered in Baby Irish, blind, eyelet and shadow designs. Each robe contains sufficient bands and flouncings to make up to suit. Just 2 in all—we fear there is a disappointment for the 25th woman.

News of Women and Society

Porch Party

A delightful affair of Tuesday afternoon was the porch party given by Miss Clara Smith at her home on Ponce de Leon avenue in honor of her guest, Miss Bengovan Waring, of Norfolk, Va.

The game of rook was enjoyed and punch was served by little Misses Ada Barnette and Lillian Smith.

Invited to meet Miss Waring were Miss Cathleen Muller, Miss Clyde Rapp, Miss Louise Bates, Miss Adele Smith, Miss Annie Lee Gray, Miss Stirling Price, Miss Mary Smith, Miss Martha Bloodworth, Miss Elizabeth Hardin, Miss Mildred Langford, Miss Ruth Nichols, Miss Grace Martin, Misses Ethel and Edna Pope.

To Miss Newman

Mrs. W. S. Thompson entertained Tuesday afternoon at her home on West Peachtree street for her niece, Miss Archie Newman, of Selma, Ala.

The rooms were decorated with vases of garden flowers in the different tones of yellow, the same color scheme being used in the ices and bonbons.

After the game of anagrams, dancing was enjoyed. Punch was served on the porch by Mrs. F. M. Bulloch.

Others assisting in entertaining were little Misses Elizabeth Snow and Ruth Hughes, who wore dainty lingerie dresses and pink ribbons. The honor guest was lovely in white embroidered mull and blue ribbons. Twenty of her friends were invited.

Allen's Twice-Yearly Shoe Sale

This now recognized economy event in the shoe business begins Monday, Aug. 4th

Our shoe buyer, who has just returned from New York, has secured several hundred pairs of the very newest and most wanted style Colonial Pumps with Cuban French heel (the shoe of the hour) at an unusual ly low price.

In Pat. Leather at $3.95.

These we have added to our sale, as well as our own regular stock. Instead of marking them at their regular price of $6.00 and $7.00 a pair they are offered at the unusual price of $3.95.

This means that we offer the shoe wearers of Atlanta over $15,000 worth of this season's newest and best styles in low shoes, pumps and Colonials, at figures that will yield us less than $10,000. We do not except a single low shoe. The prices are as follows:

Every $6 Pump, Colonial or Oxford is Now . . $4.95
Every $5 Pump, Colonial or Oxford is Now . . $3.95
Every $4 Pump, Colonial or Oxford is Now . . $2.95

As we sell nothing at regular prices less than $4.00 a pair, except a few white shoes and vici kid house shoes, we cannot group the lower priced lots, but they are marked at various prices from $2.45 down to $1.45 a pair.

The Cuban French heel, patent leather vamp, black and white satin combination pumps that would ordinarily be $6 or $7 a pair, which we secured at a concession in price, although just received by express, will go in this sale at the remarkable price of $3.95.

You know these twice-yearly shoe sales were inaugurated in Atlanta by our shoe man, and from year to year they increase in importance, as by means of them we only offer you the newest styles of that season, plus the added experience which we gain with each new season's business.

Every white and tan low shoe in the house is divided into three lots and is offered at either $1.95, $2.95 or $3.95 a pair. They are worth just double.

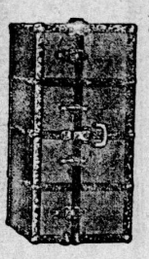
Social (Life.)

Truth, Scandal and Flattery went to the Uppermost Ball. Truth was promptly elected for being naked. Scandal was put back into a shadow, but everyone was introduced to her in the evening. Flattery, being decked in fine apparel and false jewels, was given the place of honor in the grand procession and at table. The great social occasion was variously reported—to the uninvited by Scandal, to the newspapers by Flattery, and to the Recording Angel by Truth.

RECENT BRIDE AND HER MAIDS

Miss Genevieve Lendall Webster and Miss Kathryn Lancaster, of Eatonton, who were attendants at the recent marriage of Mrs. James Harvey Hodges who was formerly Miss Louise Webster, Mrs. Hodges being in the center of the group, which was made from photographs by Dowda.

The Most Convenient Trunk In the World



—is a Rountree Wardrobe Trunk. It stands on end and is really a portable wardrobe. You hang clothes in it and they are in as perfect a condition at the end of your trip as they were when packed.

One side of this trunk contains a full set of garment hangers attached to a special carrier which slides easily in and out. The last skirt or suit is as easily reached as the first. On the opposite side are a number of drawers of various sizes, for waists, shoes, ties, stockings, etc.

Every inch of this trunk is made of fine materials by skilled workmen in our factory. It's a trunk built to be banged about; built to take all the punishment that baggage "smashers" can inflict on helpless luggage.

If you would take a goodly assortment of waists, skirts, suits, etc., with you and keep them in good condition, readily accessible at all times, you will do well to invest in a Rountree Wardrobe Trunk. Any one that you select will serve you satisfactorily for many years.

Secret Revealed

BERLIN.—The twenty-fifth anniversary of the Kaiser's accession, which has just been celebrated with great popular enthusiasm throughout Prussia, will probably be remembered chiefly for a remarkable revelation of a hitherto unknown act by His Majesty in connection with the Prussian Constitution.

The disclosure was made at a jubilee celebration at the University of Berlin by Professor Hintze.

Having remarked that the Kaiser, "notwithstanding his desire to keep all the threads of government in his hand, stands firmly on the basis of the Constitution," the speaker proceeded to astonish his hearers with statement that "the best proof of this is that the Kaiser burned the political testament of King Frederick William . . ." (King of Prussia in 1848, when the revolutionaries of Berlin extorted a Constitution from the Crown.)

King Frederick William, who was the predecessor of the present Kaiser, was a reactionary who never became resigned even to the modicum of constitutional government which he was compelled to grant. While the Emperor Frederick, the Kaiser's father, lay on his deathbed in June 188, Dr. Friedberg, the Prussian Minister of Justice, informed the then Crown Prince (the present Kaiser) that there would be laid before him immediately after his father's death a sealed document of transcendent importance.

Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Jones, of Fort Townsend, Seattle, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Mackin.

Storks Afraid of Airmen

PARIS.—The airman, Favre, flying recently in Switzerland, frightened a colony of storks, who have not returned to their nests. It has been noticed that the number of storks in Switzerland has perceptibly diminished since flying became common. These birds are said to have a particularly evident dread of aeroplanes.

Balkan War Badge

(Special Cable to The Journal.)

LONDON.—To 150 members of the British Red Cross society who had worked in the Balkans, Queen Alexandra presented badges at Marlborough House. Her majesty was accompanied by Princess Victoria and the Empress Maria of Russia.

Mrs. Doughty-Wylie was the first to be presented to Queen Alexandra, who shook hands cordially with her, and thanked her for the excellent work done by her in the Balkans. (Mrs. Doughty-Wylie acted as superintending sister throughout the war at the Red Cross hospital in Constantinople, declining to accept any payment for her services, and giving $2,500 to the British Red Cross Balkan fund).

Colonel Delme-Radcliffe was then presented to Queen Alexandra, and received the decoration at her majesty's hands. Major Doughty-Wylie and Mrs. Doughty-Wylie were similarly decorated. Mrs. Moore was next introduced, to receive the medal meant for her husband, Orderly Moore, who died from enteric fever during the campaign. When Mrs. Moore came forward Queen Alexandra said to her, softly, "I am very, very sorry. Your husband was a very, very brave man, and died a noble death." The guests were afterwards entertained at tea by her majesty.

Is the Nation Less Moral?

(Special Cable to The Journal.)

LONDON.—"Are we becoming less moral?" The question seems a simple one, but in fact it is complex. Whether does it relate to code or to conduct? "You can't make men moral by act of parliament" is commonly cited as an axiom. But if this dictum means that legislation cannot change the hearts of men, it is a silly platitude; if that outward restraints cannot avail to control their conduct, it is egregiously false. Many a man who "moves in society" is at heart as dishonest as others who live by cheating, but for him, the commission of a crime against property would mean social ostracism, and he "keeps moral." And this is "morality by act of parliament." But if public sentiment became so depraved that a man would no longer lose social caste by a conviction for burglary, we should soon have a good many "gentlemen burglars."

The Army Moustache

LONDON.—Among officers and men in the army there is an agitation going on for the right to be clean shaven, and for the abolition of the command No. 1696 of the king's regulations, which reads:

"The hair of the head will be kept short, the chin and under lip will be shaved, but not the upper lip. Whiskers, if worn, will be of modern length."

This means that all ranks of the king's army are bound, regardless of personal taste or hygienic conviction, to let the moustache grow.

Man Who Saw Napoleon

PARIS.—The other day in a stuffy little room in a small house in a Paris suburb, I held a hand that had been grasped by Napoleon and heard what is probably the only voice left in the world that once fell upon the emperor's ears.

The simple old man who connects the long dead past with the living present is M. Pierre Schamel-Roy. He is nearly 106 years old, and his father was a soldier's orderly who spent his life in close personal attendance on the great emperor. Born in the palace of Versailles, and one of the little playmates of the king of Rome, Napoleon's son, M. Schamel-Roy remembers seeing the emperor three times, all of them at St. Helena, where he was taken to visit his father, who had followed Napoleon into exile. He saw the emperor once more as he lay dead at St. Helena.

Polyglot Kings

(Special Cable to The Journal.)

LONDON.—Of the sovereigns of Europe the Emperor Francis Joseph, of Austria-Hungary, has the greatest knowledge of languages, says the Paris Journal. He speaks German, French, Hungarian, Czech, Polish, Servian, Croatian, Dalmation, Rumanian, and Italian, and he has also some knowledge of Hebrew.

King Ferdinand, of Bulgaria, is master of French, English, German, Russian and all the Slav dialects. King Peter, of Servia, speaks the same languages. The tsar knows Russian, French, English and German, as well as several Slav dialects. The kaiser knows English, Russian, French, Polish and Latin, in addition to German.

Ready for Anything

PARIS.—The efficiency of the French system of highly centralized government, even in the face of the upheavals of nature, has been comically illustrated.

A slight earthquake shock having been felt in a part of the French provinces, the sub-prefect of one department, an important government official, telegraphed to the minister of the interior as follows: "On the first information of the seismic tremors I summoned the government attorney, the lieutenant of gendarmerie, and the police magistrate. I have assumed my uniform and now await your orders."

A Runaway Princess

VIENNA.—The Archduchess Isabella, who was married to Prince eGorge of Bavaria in February of last year, running away from him during the honeymoon, has since the recent annulment of the marriage become a hospital nurse, undergoing training in one of the large Vienna hospitals. Another royal nurse is Princess Andreas of Greece (Princess Alice of Battenberg) who, during the recent war, rode through perilous mountain passes to tend the wounded soldiers.

Storm at Dalton

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

DALTON, Ga., Aug. 2.—A heavy rain storm, accompanied by a severe wind, swept over Dalton late yesterday afternoon, the wind uprooting many fine shade trees, and breaking many limbs off other trees. Aside from this practically no damage occurred.

SOME SHOW!

Want Something?

Was there ever a time when you didn't?

When you drew your first breath in this "vale of tears" you wanted food and attention. You advertised the fact by crying, and got what you wanted.

This is a mutual sort of world. Mother answered your cries. Your baby advertisement got you the attention you wanted and mother was repaid a hundred fold by your love and health.

Merchants and business men who are advertising in today's JOURNAL want something.

They want your patronage. Their advertising is no good unless it serves you. If it does, both benefit.

Today's JOURNAL contains many interesting announcements. They are varied in character. All of them will not appeal to every reader—but each of them will be important reading to someone.

You may find the very message intended for you in the first advertisement you read!

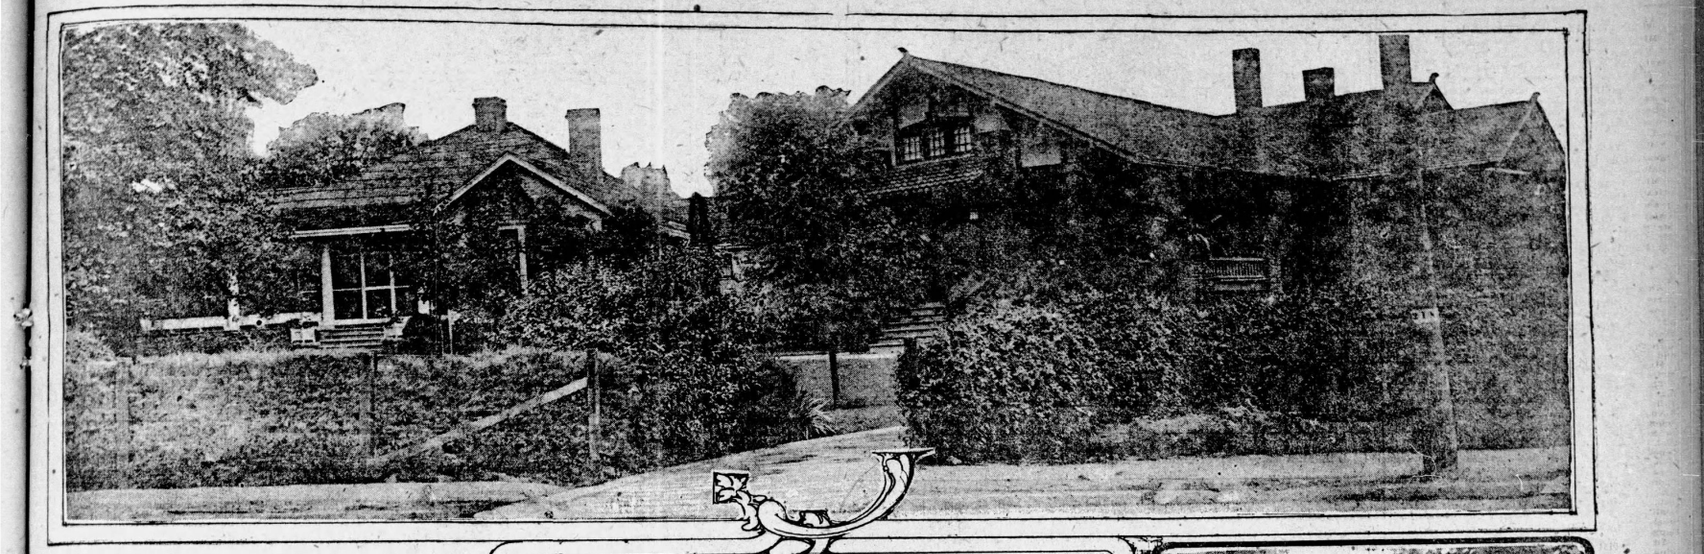
TWO OF ATLANTA'S MOST ATTRACTIVE SMALLER HOMES



THE WEEK IN RETROSPECT

THE return of Miss Leone Ladson and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Adair during the past week has been welcomed by the friends who have missed them during their absence of several months. Mrs. Adair and Miss Ladson sailed early in the summer for Italy, where they were joined by Mrs. L. P. Owsley for a tour through the peninsula. Mrs. Owsley afterward joined her daughter, Mrs. Charles Breck Ackley, of New York, for a stay of some time in Switzerland. Mrs. Adair and Miss Ladson leaving for England, where they were met by Mr. Adair, who sailed late in June.

Mr. and Mrs. Adair and Miss Ladson enjoyed several weeks in Great Britain, going from there to France and returning home on the Olympic, Mr. and Mrs. Adair spending a few days in New York with Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Lana, Miss Ladson coming direct home.

Mrs. Owsley has been abroad since December, and will remain some time longer, pursuing her studies in music in Paris, where she has an attractive studio. Mrs. Ackley has had the interesting experience of having posed for Zolien, the artist meeting the lovely young woman in New York during his stay there last winter.

Mrs. Ackley's beauty is particularly the type which has made the artist famous and which in turn he has perpetuated by his great gift.

Mr. Ackley, who is connected with one of the largest parishes of New York, will join his wife in Europe, returning with her in the early fall.

WHILE the return of a number of European travelers has been noted, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Witham, Miss Jessie McKee, Mrs. John Ashby Jones and Miss Mary Algood Jones among them, still others are leaving. Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Felder and their young son to join Mr. and Mrs. Norfleet, of Memphis, the last of next week in New York and to sail on the Rotterdam on the 12th for a two months' stay in England and on the continent.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Little will sail on the 9th on the Imperator, that newest and most wonderful of sea palaces, and will land at Cherbourg, where they will be met by their car and will make a motor trip during their stay before going to Paris. Mr. and Mrs. Little will be abroad for two months, and will also return on the Imperator.

Mr. Daniel Rountree is another Atlantian who will sail on the Imperator on the 9th.

Mrs. Little and Mrs. Robert Foster Maddox were honor guests at a beautiful luncheon at which Mrs. J. E. Ottley entertained Thursday at Joyeuse, the occasion being a pretty bon voyage affair, Mr. Felder being among the guests entertained.

MORE than ever this summer New England has called numbers of Georgians.

Mrs. Walter Lamar, of Macon, who spent a part of the past week with Mrs. Ottley, will leave for Maine this week.

Among the Atlantians in New England for the summer being Mr. and Mrs. Samuel M. Inman, Dr. and Mrs. C. B. Palmer, Dr. Charles G. Giddings, Mrs. Robert Maddox and Robert Maddox, Jr., who leave this week.

Mrs. T. S. Lewis has a summer home at Onset, Mr. and Mrs. David Woodward's summer home is at Watertown, Conn., and there are scores of others who have gone to either the mountains or seashore of New England. Miss Hildreth Burton Smith is being delightfully entertained as the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Orton Bishop Brown, at Berlin, N. H., much of her time being spent at her summer camp on Rangely Lakes, where a party of Atlanta friends of Miss Burton Smith will be entertained this month.

FROM Magnolia comes interesting echoes of the galeties in which Misses Lucy Hoke and Callie Hoke Smith are taking a delightful part, and Miss Sara Rawson, who was their guest for a number of weeks.

The North Shore Breeze and Reminder, a society paper, which chats of the doings of the gay set, writes of the frequent dinners and luncheons, in both of which one or both of the daughters of Senator and Mrs. Hoke Smith take part.

Of the former the Breeze has the following:

"The first of the series of the 'The Pleasant' at the Oceanic, Magnolia, last Saturday afternoon was the most original and one of the smartest north shore affairs this season. As soon as the crisp invitation cards were extended society began engaging tables and planning for the 'Pleasant' groups. The Pleasant order has claimed much of our time during the past winter, but this affair under Miss Voorhees' management surpasses as the last word in the art of dress and trot and rhythmic fascination combined with tea and daylight. Society grouped at tea tables around a comfortable dancing space, with the orchestra at one end playing all the irresistible American tempos (and they never were played better), was a brilliant setting for the introduction of the artists. Miss Silvia Judson and Mr. Robert Knight Chidsey, who were brought over from New York by Miss Voohrees, where they have been dancing all winter at Sherry's, the McAlpin and the Waldorf, and at many private society affairs. It was rumored that they had given up engagements to dance over and back on the Olympic to give the north shore this fun this summer. However, they are exceedingly clever and highly entertaining. The people forgot their tea and stood to get a better look. It was thoughtful of Miss Judson to wear a little gown with no professional costume touch to show us that the maire of trots can be danced and the subtle tango spirit can be interpreted in any little frock a la mode. Alternately with the artists the chairs at the tables emptied and society had its turn. Miss Fairbanks, of Indianapolis, wore a smartly cut little black and white check suit with a very becoming little purple hat. Miss White, of Boston, looked exceedingly well in a black French model with flowered silk sleeve effect and a big black hat.

Miss Lucy Hoke Smith, of Atlanta, Ga., one of the most popular of the younger set at Magnolia, wore a most becoming little afternoon frock of rose-colored silk and white lace.

IN WRITING of the dance which followed dinner at the Oceanside, Miss Rawson was quoted as wearing which fitted her picturesque blonde ing "an exquisite green chiffon gown beauty exactly."

AMONG the loveliest and most elaborate affairs of the summer has been a series of dinners at which Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Lowry have entertained at the Piedmont club. Among the honor guests for whom they have invited congenial groups of friends are Miss Gladys Hanson Snook, Mrs. Corra Harris and Mr. and Mrs. Clark Howell, Mr. and Mrs. Howell being the honor guests at the dinner which was a beautiful event of this week.

THE presence of Miss Mattie Wilson DuBose and Mrs. Edgeworth Lamkin as the guests of Mrs. Hughes Spalding was the recent reason of a number of affairs which have been among the informal events of the week, one of the most delightful being the luncheon at which Mrs. James Austin entertained, the occasion bringing together a group of young women who were schoolmates at Lucy Cobb, Mrs. Hinton Baker, of Augusta, being a charming member of the party.

Mrs. Baker was formerly Miss Emma Robinson, and, with her young son, has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Robinson, during the past month.

Mrs. Lamkin and Miss DuBose returned Friday to their home in Athens

THE week has been filled with a series of parties given in compliment to the members of the younger set.

"Ashantee," the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Parker, has been the scene of a gay house party at which Miss Louise Parker has been hostess entertaining a number of the college contingent.

Miss Parker and her guests returned the early part of the week, when Miss Parker became a member of the house party at which Miss Mary Murphy is entertaining at her home on North Jackson street.

An elegant affair of Monday evening at the East Lake Country club was the large dancing party at which Miss Murphy entertained in honor of her guests, Miss Lyra Swift and Miss Edna Crawford, of Columbus; Miss India Young, of Quitman, and Miss Louise Parker, and to Miss Marie Dinkins and her guests, Miss Elizabeth Kimbrough, of Gainesville, and Miss Dora Candler, of Dallas, Tex.

Miss Dinkins was hostess at a gridge luncheon Wednesday afternoon at which the same party of young people shared honors and Miss Marion Woolley entertained at a large dancing party Friday evening at her home on West Peachtree street.

Mr. Reuben Tidwell was host at a dancing party Friday evening at the home of his grandfather on the Williams road, which assembled a large number of the college set. Miss Margaret Bransford, of Nashville, and Miss Dorothy Robbins, of Birmingham, who are visiting Mrs. J. P. B. Allen, have been tendered a series of parties, and Miss Helen Woolfolk, of New York has been the guest of honor at a number of informal parties as the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Virginius Hitt.

THE arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Paine and little Miss Paine, Mr. and Mrs. John Grant and family and Mr. and Mrs. Doughty Manley and children has been welcomed by those at Greenbrier White Sulphur Springs, Mr. and Mrs. Paine having taken part in the delightful social affairs of the famous old resort for a number of years.

Among the affairs at the White last week was a beautiful dance given by Mrs. Lee Palmer, formerly Miss Bessie Draper, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Van Vleck, who has been entertained here numbers of times as the guest of Mrs. Harry English.

The horse show, an annual event at the White, will take place on the 15th, and will be followed by a series of polo games and drag hunts.

Mrs. John W. Somerville, who will leave today for Virginia, will spend part of her time at the White and will be a charming acquisition to the Atlanta colony.

Miss Margaret Grant will entertain and be entertained at a number of lovely events during her stay at the White, and Miss Harriet Calhoun is another lovely Atlanta representative, Mrs. Calhoun and her daughter leaving Tuesday for the White, where her cousin, Miss Martha Phinizy, is one of the most admired of the southern belles.

"CARTERS," the lovely old home of Mr. Samuel M. Carter and Miss Emily Carter Devine, is the scene of a series of house parties at which Mrs. Devine is entertaining during the summer in compliment to her daughter, Miss Rebekah Devine.

The guests include a number of young girls who are invited for a stay of two weeks, and a party of young men, who are to spend the week's end at the beautiful home.

Among the guests at the house party who went to Carters during the week are Miss Evelyn Reynolds, of Birmingham; Miss Helen Hawkins and Miss Mary Hawkins, and those spending the week-end are Mr. Arthur Clarke, Mr. Joseph Colquitt, Mr. S. Walter Nash, Mr. W. Ernest Ottley.

MRS. WILLIAM E. HATCHER, of "Careby Hall," Fork Union, has announced the engagement of her daughter, Elizabeth Herndon, to Henry Winn Sadler. Miss Hatcher is quite well known throughout the state, having been for several years associated with her father, the late Dr. William E. Hatcher, in his work at the Fork Union Military academy. says the Richmond Times-Despatch. Recently she has spent the greater part of her time in the north and traveling with friends in Europe. Mr. Sadler, who is a native of Virginia, now makes his home in Georgia, where he is prominently known in business circles. The wedding will be celebrated at the home of the bride's mother some time in October.

The announcement is of the greatest interest to society in Richmond, the bride's father having been pastor of the Grace street Baptist church here for twenty-six years. Miss Hatcher is one of several sisters that have been prominent in educational and musical circles throughout the north, as well as the south, and her wedding will be one of the important events of the fall season.

THE short visit of Mrs. Horace Redford, of Roanoke, Va., was welcomed by the Atlanta friends who remember her as Miss Amy Armstrong. During her residence here several years ago Mrs. Redford and her sister, Miss Selene Armstrong, now Mrs. Harman, of Washington, were among the most popular young women of Atlanta.

Mrs. Redford was the guest of Mrs. Wellborn Hill and Mrs. Frank Farley, Jr., en route from Washington, Wilkes county, where she has been visiting her parents.

MISS ELLEN MEEKS, of Nashville, was a pretty figure at the Country club during the past week which she spent as the guest of Mrs. James R. Gray at Greystone. Miss Meeks' marriage to Mr. Inman Gray will be one of the important social events of the fall, Atlanta friends being more than ready to welcome the lovely young woman as a permanent resident.

MISS MILDRED HAZEN, who arrived Sunday to be the guest of Miss Mignon McCarty, has been cordially welcomed and has been a charming figure in the informal gaieties of the week.

A GROUP of Washington college girls made a charming picture Friday afternoon at the Piedmont club as the guests of Miss Annie Sykes Rice at 5 o'clock tea. Miss Helen Sibley, of Birmingham; Miss Louise Alexanger, of Augusta, and Miss Daisy Le Craw being guests of honor.

Two round tables were placed on the ball room porch of the club, and the girls made a lovely picture in airy afternoon toilettes grouped around the flower-laden tables, the visitors being classmates of a number of the guests during the past year in Washington, D. C., the little tea being a pleasant opportunity for reunion.

Miss Rice's guests included Miss Le Craw, Miss Sibley, Miss Alexander, Miss Helen Jones, Miss Margaret Buckner, Miss Nellie Kiser Stewart, Miss Elizabeth Walker, Miss Lucy Stockard, Miss Elizabeth Morgan Miss Corrie Brown, Miss Lucy Turner, Miss Marguerite Ward, Miss Antoinette Kirkpatrick, Miss Harriet Calhoun, Miss Caroline Muse, Miss Carolyn King, Miss Winnie Perry, Miss Mary Rice, Miss Gladys Dunson, Miss Gertrude Jones, of Selma, Ala.; Mrs. Julian Prade, Mrs. Frank Wincoff, Mrs. Lucius McConnell and Mrs. Jack Thiesen.

Miss Davison Entertains

An enjoyable event of the week was that given by Miss Bessie Davison at her home on Washington street in compliment to Miss Mabel Roane, of Monroe; Miss Marie Marshburn, of La Grange, and Miss Claudia McDonald, of Hawkinsville.

The house was decorated with a profusion of ferns and flowers.

Miss Davison and Miss Roane rendered several piano selections, and after a series of games, ices were served.

The guests were Miss Mabel Roane, of Monroe; Miss Marie Marshburn, Miss Claudia McDonald, Miss Hazel Land, Miss Tillie Morgenstern, Miss Mona Goodwin, Misses Marguerite, Lily and Sara Nunnally, Mr. H. E. Pifford Mr. Charles H. Girardeau, Mr. James Girardeau, Mr. Francis Spears, Mr. Sam McDaniel, Mr. Eugene Orr.

The pictures above show the bungalows owned by Mr. and Mrs. Hilliard Spalding and Mr. and Mrs. James Palmer which are two of the most attractive of Atlanta's smaller homes. Mrs. Palmer was formerly Miss Van Spalding, her marriage to Mr. Palmer following that of her brother by a few months, Mr. Spalding's marriage to Miss Alice Stewart, of Athens, being an interesting event of last fall. The houses are not only artistic but the grounds about them also show the interest and good taste of the young home makers.

Miscellaneous Shower

Misses Lela and Genenieve Webster entertained at a miscellaneous shower in honor of their sister, Miss Eva Louise Webster, whose marriage to Dr. James Harvey Hodges was an event of Thursday evening.

During the afternoon a contest was enjoyed, after which refreshments were served.

Keeping the Body in Repair

Nature intended that the body should do its own repairing—and it would do so were it not for the fact that most of us live other than a natural life.

Nature didn't intend that we should wear corsets, tight collars or shoes, nor live in badly ventilated and draughty houses, nor eat and drink some of the things that we do, nor ride in street cars when we should walk.

The consequence is that the body when it gets out of order must look for outside help to make the necessary repairs.

For weak stomachs and the indigestion or dyspepsia resulting, and the multitude of diseases following therefrom, no medicine can be more adaptable as a curative agent than DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

The Difference Between COMFORT and DISCOMFORT

Just as a hair may divide the false from the true, so may a spring prove the difference between comfort and discomfort. And comfort is a very desirable condition.

It is restlessness at night and loss of sleep which produce nervousness; which undermine health. In too many instances the real cause is not thought of. Are you laboring under discomfort which robs you of a night's good rest? Perhaps your bed is not equipped with the proper spring. Perhaps the spring is too weak in some places and too rigid in others and has an uneven surface.

Mine isn't "The 400" Mine is

is guaranteed the best made. It is manufactured of highly tempered Premier wire which gently conforms to the body lines. Each of the 88 oil tempered coils is carefully tested. The frame work and connecting wires are stiff and rigid to hold the spring in shape. The whole is heavily coated with durable black enamel which makes the spring noiseless and rustless and germ proof. The surface is smooth and even with no rough ends to tear mattress tick. Insure your comfort.

BIG COTTON EXHIBIT PLANNED FOR ATLANTA

Will Be Largest Permanent Exhibit of Its Kind in the World

Plans have been put under way by the Atlanta chamber of commerce and the Merchants and Manufacturers' Exposition association to establish here the most complete permanent exhibition of cotton and cotton products in the world.

It is proposed that the exhibit shall take up a whole floor of the new chamber of commerce building and that it shall be so complete and so interesting as to compel the attention of all visitors to Atlanta.

Exhibitions of this kind have been established temporarily at some of the big world's fairs, but there is no complete permanent one in any city of this country. The plan was put under way yesterday morning at a meeting of the cotton products committee of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Exposition association held in the chamber of commerce hall and attended by M. R. Wilkinson, W. M. Hutchinson, W. H. Schroder and H. E. Watkins, who represented E. P. McBurney. Present also at the meeting were P. D. McCarley, vice president of the Coton Seed Crushers' association of Georgia; A. A. Fryerson, secretary, and E. P. Chivers, chairman of the publicity bureau of the same association. W. J. White and W. H. Pinson were also present.

As the proposal to devote the whole of one floor will necessitate some slight changes in the plan for remodeling the chamber of commerce building it is desired to push all arrangements to an early conclusion. When established along the lines suggested, this exhibit from a commercial and educational standpoint will be one of the most interesting things in the south.

It will begin by showing growing cotton plants, and soil, fertilizer and other things that enter into the planting and growth of cotton and will be illustrated and explained. Then each product and by-product of cotton will be taken up and shown through all its stages. The cotton lint will be shown as it goes through various changes in a big cotton mill and the processes explained. Over fifty different kinds of cotton cloth and cotton products will be shown.

The cotton seed will be taken up separately the same as the lint and all of its different products will be illustrated, including hulls, meal, crude oil, fine oil, cooking preparations, soaps, etc.

Any man, woman or child who spends an hour or two in this exhibit will come out learning more practically about what cotton means than they could learn from a year's study of books. It is the idea to make the exhibit the object of special interest to all visitors and to throw it open to all conventions which come to the city. It is hoped to have the exhibit ready to be opened soon after the chamber of commerce moves into its new quarters on January 1.

ENGLAND WANTS DOPE ON GROWING OF COTTON

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 2.—Information about the growth and cultivation of cotton and labor conditions in Alabama is desired by the British government and Reuben F. Kolb, commissioner of agriculture, has received a letter from T. J. McSweeney, vice consul for Great Britain at Mobile, requesting him to answer several questions.

Methods of growing cotton in the United States are being tried in England and this is the reason the British government asked about Alabama's way. Commissioner Kolb will furnish the information immediately.

IN THE LOCAL THEATERS

Harry Hayward and Company at the Forsyth This Week.

Direct from a season with Eddie Foy in "Over the River," the Eight Berlin Madcaps, who made the principal dancing feature of the big show the comedian kept going for more than a year, will be one of the headline features of the bill of Keith vaudeville that will be the attraction at the Forsyth all of the week starting with matinee on Monday afternoon.

A feature that will be as interesting to the grown folks as it will be to the ladies and children will be Robert Everest's "Monkey Hippodrome." There will be a monkey orchestra, and the director has all the eccentricities that the foreign born leaders sometimes show. There will be specialties, aerial features and other things that interest, and there will be no trainer with whip in hand to guide what these Simian master minds will do.

Comedy will be well taken care of by Van Hoven, the Dippy Mad Magician. Van Hoven is a good "wizard."

Annie Kent, "The Little Jester," is on the bill. Miss Kent has appeared two or three times in Atlanta, but always with a partner. She was the whole act in those days, and since she decided to "go it alone" has been most successful.

Harry Hayward and company, the company being two very pretty girls, will offer "The Firefly," a comedy that is real.

Freeman and Dunham, in patter and song, and Pero and Wilson, in comedy juggling, make up the program.

The program at the Grand for the week of August 4, commencing at 2:30 o'clock on Monday afternoon, will include two performances each afternoon and two performances each night starting at 8:30 o'clock. The admission at any time will be ten cents.

Each day there will be two subjects that cannot be seen in Atlanta until first shown at the Grand, and in addition, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, a special release of a sensational three-reel subject, called "Zigomar, the Eelskin," will be offered, and on Thursday Friday and Saturday the special feature will be "Balaoo the Demon Baboon." The special reels are being sent direct from New York where they have just been received from abroad.

Lew Cantor's original musical comedy tabloid "Along the Pike," is announced as this week's attraction at the Bijou. As the title would indicate, the scene of this comedy is laid on the midway of a traveling carnival company. All the freaks that usually accompany carnivals are exhibited, furnishing opportunities for extraordinary costuming and clever lines. It is said that these have been taken advantage of and the lines are unusually clever and full of wholesome comedy. The musical numbers are all new and include "The Fourth of July," "Happy Little Country Girl," "The Spirit of '76," "Let's Go Where the Moon Won't Shine," and others that will tend to make a big hit during the week.

The company will be headed by such splendid funmakers as Nat C. Baker and H. J. O'Neill, comedians who have made their mark in musical comedy and vaudeville and whose names at the head of a list of entertainers is a guarantee that there will be no lack of good wholesome comedy during the performance. Especial attention has been paid to the chorus, and some classy costumes and clever dances will be seen in "Along the Pike" promises to be one of the best musical tabloids of the season and a splendid week is anticipated. The week will begin as usual with the Monday matinees.

Weston, Aged Walker, Covers 1,000 Miles Of His Long Hike

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 2.—Amid the roar of cannon, the clanging of bells and the blowing of whistles, Edward Payson Weston completed his tramp of more than 1,500 miles from New York City here today.

The aged pedestrian, by changing his plans after leaving the metropolis has walked 1,516 miles. Leaving New York on June 2, Weston was due to reach Minneapolis on August 2, but when he reached Stillwater, Minn., July 29, he was four days ahead of his scheduled time.

Doves Plentiful

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 2.—Dove hunters came into their own in Alabama yesterday. The annual dove season opened with the break of day and early in the morning hunters were afield with their guns, anxious to get the first shots at the game. Reports to the state department of game and fish are that doves are plentiful this year and that the game laws have done much to protect doves from pot hunters.

Refused Extra Work On Board Steamer, Girl Is Bound Over

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—"I did not know I was committing mutiny on the high seas when I refused to do another girl's work in addition to my own," said Lillian Clarkson when arraigned today before United States Commissioner Foote, charged with a violation of the federal laws. Several weeks ago Miss Clarkson, a stenographer in Chicago, obtained a position as a waitress on the steamer North American, which plies between this port and Lake Superior points.

Captain A. E. Johnston testified that on July 24 he was informed that Miss Clarkson refused to do her work. When he found her she was reading a novel. He advised her that if she refused to obey a command of the ship's master she would be punished for violating the federal marine laws. When she heard this she consented to obey orders, but the captain said that after he left she again refused to work. Margaret Leon, the head waitress, testified that one of the girls was sick and that the work in the dining room was heavier than usual on the day in question.

"The captain is responsible for the safety of his passengers on a steamship, and the law says his command must be obeyed," said Commissioner Foote as he held the girl to the federal grand jury in bonds of $200.

CHAS. A. SHELDON, JR., TO PLAY CITY ORGAN

Trinity Church Organist Takes Dr. Starnes' Place This Afternoon

The Atlanta Musical Festival association announces the following program for the free concert at the auditorium-armory this afternoon at 4 o'clock, with Charles A. Sheldon, Jr., as the organist.

Antonin Dvorak (1841-1904). Largo, From the Symphony, "From the New World."

Sheldon—Spring Thoughts.

Edward F. Johnston—"Evensong."

Mendelssohn—War March of the Priest. "Athalie."

Mr. Sheldon is the organist of Trinity Methodist church where his playing on the magnificent new instrument in the recently erected church has attracted widespread attention. He is a master of the organ and possesses a true musician's soul. His concert this afternoon will doubtless be attended by many admirers who have not heard him on the immense auditorium organ.

KEEP OPEN TAX BOOKS UNTIL SEPTEMBER 1

In order to accommodate those who failed to return their taxes, the city is keeping the tax books open until September 1, and all who have not made their returns and paid their taxes are urged to do so now, in order to avoid trouble later.

The regular time for the return of taxable property is past, but as the city dislikes serving fi fas and otherwise embarrassing property owners, it offers opportunity for the delinquents to return their property now.

Moral and Social Features Gratifying At Georgia Military Academy

Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co., Atlanta, Ga.
I am very much pleased with your school. I felt much hesitancy in sending my son, at his tender age, away from home and its influences, but find after one year's experience that, in addition to the mental and physical training, which have been very satisfactory indeed the moral and social features have been very gratifying.

BRENAU'S HIGHEST AIM
Back of Brenau is an ideal. The hopes and dreams of a life time have gone into the upbuilding of the institution. The fine structures, beautiful gardens and campus, the splendid material equipment, and the educational facilities of the college are the results of unceasing efforts to realize a high educational standard.
The college has not been used as a means of satisfying personal ambition nor to amass wealth. It is the embodiment of a need—a fine college for women where the girls of the South may secure an adequate education without leaving their section.
To the attainment of this has been devoted not only the energies of capable men and women, but every surplus dollar also has been turned back into the college for its improvement.
As a result Brenau has become one of the most individual and most thoroughly efficient colleges in the South, and has established itself a leader in progressive educational movements.
It sends out the young woman of poise, culture and capability, but whose greatest pride lies not so much in intellectual attainment as in the consciousness of womanly integrity.
This is Brenau's highest aim—the noblest development of the womanhood of the student consigned to its care.

VANGUARD OF 5,000 MERCHANTS WILL ARRIVE MONDAY FOR OPENING OF GREAT CONVENTION

Will Throng City Tomorrow in Preparation for First Formal Opening Tuesday Morning of Two Weeks' Meeting and Celebration—Bureaus of Information to Be Established at Both Passenger Stations. Visitors Will Register at Auditorium and Receive Badges and Coupon Books

Tomorrow will arive the vanguard of the 5,000 merchants who will attend the Southern Merchants' convention here during the next two weeks.

They will be met at the Union and Terminal stations by representatives of the Atlanta Merchants and Manufacturers' association who will supply them with a list of hotels and will direct them to the Auditorium where they will register, receive the convention badges and be supplied with coupon ticket books entitling them to admission to all the convention's entertainment features.

In fact regular information bureaus will be maintained at both the passenger stations and at the Auditorium where the sessions of the convention will be held the registrar will have a large force of assistants to see that all delegates are speedily and comfortably settled for enjoying the events of the great gathering.

The traveling salesmen, practically all of whom will be in from the road, will also constitute themselves members of the reception committee and will meet their customers as they arrive at the stations. Secretary H. T. Moore especially urges every traveling man possible to become a convention worker in this way.

Throughout Monday the number of arrivals will increase hourly and by night the city will be filled with the visitors and everything will be in readiness for the formal opening Tuesday morning in Taft hall when the 1913 convention of the Southern Merchants' association will be called to order by President Bolling H. Jones.

And then for two weeks Atlanta will be thronged with representative merchants from all parts of the south and the time will be made instructive with speeches and discussions of vital interest and pleasant with a round of varied entertainments.

From the great flood of acceptances which has poured in upon Secretary Moore, indications are that the attendance will be the largest that has ever greeted a similar gathering in Atlanta. The jobbers and manufacturers, keyed to the highest pitch of enthusiasm over the meeting, have made extensive preparations for the reception of the visitors. Home for the merchants this week and the next will be any wholesale house or manufacturing plant in Atlanta. Open house everywhere and the best of everything in the way of cordiality and hospitality for the visitors in the spirit of the occasion.

Analysis of Discussions to Be Had at Meeting Shows They Will Help Southern Dealers Solve Many of the Hard Problems Which They Are Now Facing—Lessons to Be Taught Will Be Those Gained From Actual Experience

A Merchants' institute would indeed be a proper way to designate the three sessions of the Southern Merchants' convention which are to be held on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday of this week. These are the days of the two weeks' meeting which have been set aside for the discussion of the more vital problems which affect the mercantile interests of the south.

The discussions that will be had during the session these three days will be educational and inspirational in the highest degree. No merchant who attends them can fail to go away better fitted for carrying on his business than he was before. He will have attended a school for merchants taught by the merchants themselves out of years of actual experience. That's the idea. It will be a merchants' experience meeting. The teaching that counts is the teaching of experience and this will be turned like a searchlight upon the conditions with which southern merchants are wrestling today. The result will be to better the conditions and to uplift and enliven every department of southern mercantile life.

The first day of the program, Tuesday, is devoted to the consideration of greater diversity of crops in the south. This is an old problem and an old need, but every year it presses more and more keenly for solution. Cotton is the great money crop of the south and always will be, but if it must be used by the farmers to buy hay, grain and meat which they could and should raise themselves, then there is no money left to pay for articles of merchandise which the merchants handle. In other words, lack of diversified farming cripples the mercantile business. It makes the business depend upon the fate of one crop alone. It puts an element into business life of the merchant which is always a disturbing factor and which should be removed.

The discussions on Tuesday, August 5, will be a symposium by bankers, landlords, and merchants on how their influence can be best directed toward securing a greater crop diversity. These are the three classes who are most vitally interested in breaking away from the old one-crop system. What will be said will not be theory, but will be the product of the best thinking on the problem done by men who are actually confronting it.

One of the great features of greater diversity of crops is that more attention should be given to the raising of cattle and hogs and greater acreage given to hay and corn as feed crops for them. This question will be discussed by an authority on southern cattle and hog raising. It will demonstrate how more hogs and cattle can be raised and how these may be satisfactorily marketed.

The marketing of any crop other than cotton is always a problem with the southern farmer and therefore with the merchant who is his creditor. Failure to market profitably is frequently the cause why many farmers after trying some other money crop returned disgusted to raising cotton alone. An experienced miller will give his ideas on the best way to market an overplus of grain. An eminent banker will show how greater stability will result from abandoning the one-crop system.

The open parliament that will follow this will bring to the subject light from every angle. Everybody with anything to say will be given five minutes to say it. When the session ends the merchant who attends will go away bristling with

ON THE FIRING LINE WITH THE COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS

BY THE NEXT MERCHANTS CONVENTION ATLANTA MANUFACTURERS WILL HAVE A SPLENDID DISPLAY OF THEIR PRODUCTS IN PERMANENT EXHIBIT BUILDING

Four Top Floors of New Chamber of Commerce Have Been Secured for Year-Round Show of Atlanta-Made Goods—Dream of Industrial Leaders to Be Triumphantly Realized

A permanent exhibit of Atlanta-made goods in a centrally located building demonstrating Atlanta greatness as a manufacturing center—that is the dream of the industrial leaders of this city city which will be realized on January 1 of next year.

The remodeled building formerly occupied by the Y. M. C. A. at the corner of North Pryor street and Auburn avenue is the location selected. It will also be the new home of the Atlanta chamber of commerce. The four top floors will house the permanent exhibit, where dealers from all parts of the southeast and visitors from all parts of the nation can see the great variety and the unsurpassed quality of the products turned out by Atlanta factories.

The project has long been in the mind of the manufacturers here. Committees have been engaged for more than a year in working out the practical details. Other cities of less importance than Atlanta have such exhibits and they have proven directly profitable in a surprising way to the participants in the enterprise and have been standing advertisements of incalculable value to the alert cities in which they are located. That Atlanta is "always ahead" is a motto that determined the manufacturers here not to be outdone by other municipalities.

The manufacturers' show held here last year during the Southern Merchants' convention was such a success that it was a revelation even to the people of Atlanta themselves of the wealth of products this city is yearly contributing to the commerce of the world. This show gave the final impetus to plan of establishing a permanent exhibit which has since gone through many stages to final success.

The manufacturers' committee of the chamber of commerce headed by Brooks Morgan, chairman, which conducted the successful show last August, was entrusted with the work of launching the permanent exhibit. The plans for it were slowly and carefully matured. Under the direction of the committee, the chamber of commerce, through its president, Wilmer Moore, and its secretary, Jter Cooper, organized a party of manufacturers and took them on a special trip to Chattanooga to inspect the permanent exhibit of goods which the enterprising industrial plants maintain in that city. Thus another impetus was given the project here.

Later the manufacturers were called together at a dinner at the Ansley hotel and twenty-three obligated themselves to take space in a permanent exhibit, and the following committee was named to decide on the final location: Brooks Morgan, chairman; J. K. Orr, W. H. White, Jr., V. H. Kriegshaber, J. T. Rose and M. M. Davies.

They decided on the new Chamber of Commerce building shown in the photograph above, and secured the four top floors for the display of Atlanta products. Already space is being taken rapidly and nothing is now in the way of the long-desired plan being brought to a triumphant conclusion.

A meeting of manufacturers was held last Friday in the chamber of commerce rooms and twelve committees were selected to visit the various industrial plants of Atlanta and interest them in taking space. The committees are calssified according to the various lines of goods manufactured here. They are now actively at work and will report the progress of their labors at another meeting to be held next Wednesday.

Companies that have taken large space on the top floor are Southern Upholstering company, 700 square feet; Atlanta Stove Works, 600 feet; Southern Spring Bed company, 400 feet; Burnett, Bell & Klapper Furniture Co, 400 feet, and the Gholstin-Cunningham Bed company, 250 feet. The following companies have signed for space on the other floors: All Star Manufacturing company, Byrd Printing company, Southern Engraving company, Atlanta Gas Light company, Atlanta Paper company, Norris (Inc.), Willingham-Tift, J. K. Orr Shoe company.

The four floors will total exhibition space of nearly 20,000 square feet. The building will be entirely remodeled within. The first floor will be remodeled for up-to-date stores, as shown in the architect's drawing of the front elevation in the illustration. The second floor will be used for the offices of the chamber of commerce and a large assembly room. The others will house the exhibit. The two top stories will have additional windows, as is shown in the drawing. The basement will be utilized for shower baths for members of the chamber of commerce. A cafe will likely be established on the second floor.

The cost of the exhibit is low when the location is considered. Spaces eight feet square can be secured for about $8 a month, while the spaces ten by ten feet, more advantageously located with reference to the light, will cost about $12.50 a month. By referring to the architect's plans of a typical floor arrangement in the illustration above, the exact space together with the price for it can be learned.

"BUSINESS OUTLOOK THE BEST," SAYS KISER

Head of Big Shoe Firm Foresees Fine Harvests and Long Prosperity Era

Most of the south's leading business men have felt the undercurrent of pessimism that has clogged business channels since last fall. The entire tone, however, of the south's financial affairs has decidedly improved in the last thirty days.

Gordon Kiser, president of the M. C. Kiser company, manufacturers of Shield Brand shoes, states that the present month's record of Shield Brand shoe shipments would pass the previous high water mark.

"Undoubtedly," stated Mr. Kiser, "money has been tight, and hard to get, and there has been an uneasy overconscious feeling in mercantile circles, but that has all rolled away, and the south certainly looks good for years to come.

"This section is preparing to reap a large harvest from its crops and the farmer is sighing with pure relief. Trade is brisk and healthful.

"The Merchants and Manufacturers' association of Atlanta expects a very successful convention from August 4 to 15. More southern merchants will be in Asanta than at ay previous date and they will find the Atlanta markets the best profit producers in the United States."

Caution

DAVIS & BELSER CHANGE FIRM TO CORPORATION

This concern have their office and sales room at 132 Marietta street and are building up a very successful business in electric pianos, organs and combination orchestral instruments.

E. H. Davis and J. D. Belser are the active members of the company.

RICE & HUTCHINS' SALES STAFF BACK FROM BOSTON

Just back from the national gathering at Boston of the company's entire sales force, the firing liners working in the southeast for the Rice & Hutchins Co., are ready for the big Southern Merchants' convention next week, well supplied with enthusiasm from their trip to headquarters.

Allen Kenyon, of the Atlanta office, was elected to membership on the board of trustees o fthe company's association of salesmen.

Except Fred Thomas, who is in Baltimore, and J. L. Williams, taking a vacation at Allegheny Springs, Tenn., the salesmen will be on the firing line this week but will all be in Atlanta when the merchants' convention starts August 4.

LEWIS KEEPS UP RECORD OF OPENING BILLS

E. P. Lewis of the McClure Ten Cent company, still has the habit and can't quit selling opening bills. He had two others to his credit this week—one from Cedartown, from The Cedartown 5 and 10c company, dollar-limit; the other for Cornelia, from The Cornelia 5 and 10c company.

Mr. Lewis was asked how many stores he had launched in Georgia, Alabama, Florida and South Carolina for his firm, for the last four years. He said he did not care to use all the space The Journal had, and would only give the names of a few, as follows: LaGrange, Ga.; Tiffon, Ga.; Cuthbert, Ga.; Fitzgerald, Ga.; Thomasville, Ga.; Bainbridge, Ga.; Spartanburg, S. C.; Appalachicola, Fla.; Lake City, Fla.; Luverne, Ala., and Goodwater, Ala.

"If you want the rest I will give them to you in book form," added Mr. Lewis.

WHY SO. DEALERS SHOULD BUY ATLANTA GOODS

Many Are the Advantages This City Offers Over Distant Eastern Markets

BY E. P. LEWIS,
Of the McClure Ten-Cent Company.

Any house should co-operate with home industries. Atlanta manufacturers are enjoying big trade from other countries. Some Atlanta manufacturers and jobbers are shipping their product across the waters. Some of these I know of are the J. K. Orr Shoe company and the McClure Ten-Cent company. Where this can be done, does it not seem reasonable to suppose that your next door neighbor, or even the merchants 500 miles away, could make it to their interest to buy their goods here?

One can come here and buy a stock of goods for any line of business they wish to enter. Anything from a knitting needle to a locomotive engine. Atlanta has more than 300 manufacturers and jobbers. Does it not look reasonable that one could buy all his wares from Atlanta jobbers and manufacturers for less money than he could from the northern and eastern houses?

Think of the enormous freight rates and the delay in getting goods from the eastern houses. As a rule retail merchants in the smaller towns buy from $100 to $500 at the time. An amount like this the retailer could order and receive and sell clean out of stock, before he could get shipment made from the eastern or northern houses.

Goods can be bought here and half the money invested that the merchant has to invest should he do his buying from the eastern firms, because he can get it quick.

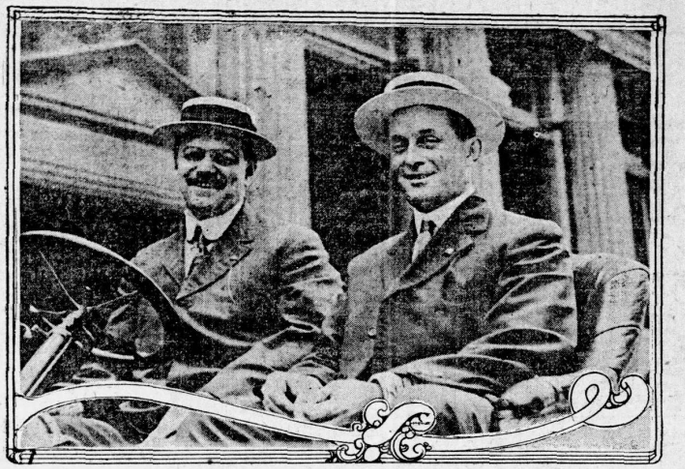
It is reasonable to suppose, is it not, that he would have less old stock or out of season goods on hand, because he would not have to buy the amount he must buy, if he were buying from the eastern houses.

The writer has taken orders in amounts from $1,000 to $2,000, and in ten days' time this would be packed and shipped, reach its destination, be opened up, checked and displayed and on sale.

When you find a merchant who tells you he is blue, and not satisfied with the business he is doing, if you would insist on knowing the cause, nine times out of ten this would be the answer, "Too much stock, too much money tied up in a few different kinds of merchandise for the amount of money invested."

His is in one article. So you see he would have twelve chances of making a sale where he has one with his present stock. The writer has traveled over most of four of the southern states and finds this to be true, that the merchants are beginning to realize their predicament and are buying goods nearer home. They are buying small lots and making better displays, doing more advertising and are getting better results. I have called on merchants who would tell me that they had the same line of customers they had had for the last ten years, or possibly longer.

THREE AUTOMOBILES WILL CARRY ORR VISITORS TO THE RED SEAL SHOE FACTORY



M. A. Knipe (at the wheel), superintendent of the Red Seal Shoe factory, who will show the visitors how Atlanta made shoes are manufactured. The other passenger in the car is E. L. DeWitt, the selling agent for the J. K. Orr Shoe company at Havana, Cuba.

Guests Will Be Whirled From Office to Works to See Modern Shoe Plant in Operation

Three automobiles will be making frequent trips during the next two weeks between the office on Auburn avenue and the factory on Edgewood avenue of the J. K. Orr Shoe company.

A large modern shoe factory in operation is a sight none of the visiting merchants will want to miss. None of them will miss it if they only visit the Orr office for the salesmen from their territory will be there to greet them and start them on their whirl in the motor car out to the works. There they will find the genial superintendent, M. A. Knipe, ready to lead the sightseeing parties through the maze of humming machinery turning out the Red Seal shoes.

One of the three cars to be used is the superintendent's, in which he is seen in the above photograph with R. L. DeWitt, the Orr company's representative in Cuba, just returning from a trip out to the factory.

Mr. DeWitt is one of the few of the sales force who will not be here for the convention and he would be among those present to greet the visitors if any delegates from Cuba were likely to be on hand.

"We are selling the Red Seal shoes in Cuba right along, however," said Mr. DeWitt, who stopped off in Atlanta for a day on his way to New York. "I hear you're going to have a big time here next week. I wish I could be here for that big barbecue I hear about. Affairs like that are not so common in Havana."

Advantage

"Well, there's one advantage in a losing ball team."

"What's that?"

PROGRAM WILL YIELD MERCANTILE EDUCATION

new ideas and new resolves that will undoubtedly be worth hundreds of dollars of real money to him during the year.

The session on Thursday, August 7, will be devoted to merchandising in its general aspects. There will be an inspirational talk by a prominent retailer on the merchant and half life work, how it both sharpens the mind and develops the best type of character. The subject of buying, always of first importance to the merchant, will be given thorough consideration. Successful merchants will tell how and when to buy, will show the benefits of buying often and according to actual needs, and the editor of an important trade journal will point out the reasons why home manufacturers and the home market should be given the preference by the merchants in their buying.

After buying, of course, comes selling, and the latter topic will find a discriminating consideration, the discussion being directed solely to its most difficult feature, namely, that of disposing of slow stock. This will be viewed from the angles of ascertained cost as against estimated cost, of the proper depreciation that should put upon hard stock when inventories are taken, of special sales and the best way to conduct them, and of aggressive advertising.

The third day of the discussions, Friday, August 8, will demonstrate the best ways of store discipline and management. This touches what might be called the technical side of storekeeping and can not fail for that reason to be profitable to every merchant present, and particularly so to the merchant who wants to avail himself of all modern labor-saving and efficiency-producing methods. Accounts, credits and collections will be discussed by experts. Successful store managers will tell how store help may be best trained and how enthusiasm, that inevitable partner of success, may be aroused and maintained among the store's employes. The important matter of the merchants' insuring his stock will be treated both from the merchant's and the banker's standpoint.

The importance of local merchants' associations will be especially urged as a means of alleviating practically all the hard conditions which the merchant confronts. It will be shown that such organizations will protect the merchant from many dubious schemes that are continually being attempted to be foist upon him and will bring him into closer co-operation with his fellows for the promotion of their mutual good throughout the year.

From this it can be readily seen that the merchant who attends the session of the convention will find ready and waiting for him a liberal education in merchandising.

JENKINS URGES HOTEL INSPECTORSHIP BILL

Editor Firing Line:

I doubt not that the indigestion so common among traveling men is due to the poor quality of food served at some hotels, and the very poor manner in which it is prepared.

I can remember a time, and that not so very long ago, when I was stricken with ptomaine poisoning some three hundred miles away from home. It is quite evident that there is not sufficient care in preserving the foods in hotels—some hotels—and public eating places, here and there, and that the local health authorities are inefficient or repressed by the fear of publicity.

If local laws were passed and made strong enough, to put all eating places under daily inspection the traveling public would in my mind fare much better.

Hotel proprietors that are trying to serve the best would do a great stroke of advertising if they would arrange their kitchens as show places, so that visitors might be impressed by the cleanliness and care of foods.

We all know more now about pure foods and how it should be cooked than we did some few years ago, and we are more particular about what we get.

One little item that is found on nearly all tables is butter, and how much do we find that we can eat? Half the advertised butter on the market is not butter and should never be placed on the table. Oftentimes when pure cow butter is served it is so old and rancid it cannot be eaten.

Another thing I wish to speak of and that is coffee. Nine-tenths of the traveling men like coffee, and when it is made right with the right kind of grade or quality, there is nothing better. But so many hotels and restaurants serve coffee that has served its purpose more than one time.

The traveling public is not so ignorant but that they can tell this stunt that is so often played off on them. How we do love to get home where we can get good coffee, good butter, good bread and where everything is prepared in cleanliness. I have so often heard traveling men make this remark: "I have got to go to a certain town but it makes me sick to think about that hotel down there."

So many of us would avoid such places if it was not that we must go where duty calls. Dark and dirty kitchens where flies are fed more industriously than guests do not set well. By all means let us have the hotel inspector law, and a fearless, open, bold conscientious honest man appointed to fill the position.

Yours very truly,
W. M. JENKINS,

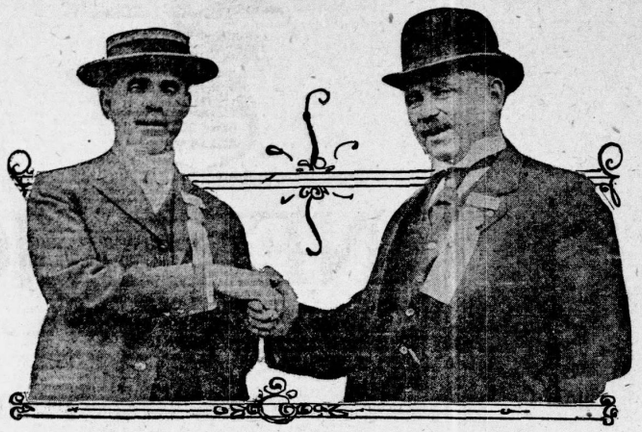
GEORGIA DELEGATES DECLARE TORONTO GIDEON CONVENTION BEST YET HELD



C. H. Burge, president of the Atlanta Gideon camp, on the left, and J. C. Sieman, of Toronto, president of the Canadian Gideon organization. This picture was published in a number of Toronto papers and was called, "Declaring International Peace at Gideon Convention."

Georgia Division Receives Banner for Securing Largest Number of New Members During Past Year. Trophy Was Presented to Winning State Amid Rousing Cheers of Congratulation

A great meeting of a great organization in a great city is the way the returning Atlanta delegates describe the International Gideon convention held in Toronto, Canada, on July 24-27.

Toronto, one of the cleanest and most beautiful cities in the world, they say, gave them one of the most pleasing and most cordial welcomes they have ever received.

The Atlanta Gideons were recipients of much attention, both by the city of Toronto and by the convention itself. The Georgia division won the banner for securing seventy-five new members, the largest number to be secured by any division during the past year. C. H. Burge, president of the Atlanta camp, was called to the platform of the Metropolitan church, where the sessions of the convention were held, to receive the trophy. His appearance and reception of the banner constituted a big ovation in honor of the work of the Georgia division, and was decidedly one of the interesting features of the 1913 gathering.

Mr. Burge was photographed by the Toronto papers in the act of shaking hands with J. C. Sieman, president of the Canadian Gideons, and the photograph was headlined, "Declaring International Peace at the Gideon Convention."

The Atlanta party, consisting of Mr. Burge, H. A. McDonald, C. W. Hatcher, Cliff G. Childs, William H. H. Phelps, Mrs. C. W. Hatcher and Miss Edith McDonald, left Atlanta July 22, and joining other Gideon parties at Niagara Falls were entertained at a luncheon at Queen Victoria park by the city of Niagara Falls on Wednesday, July 23. The Gideons distributed 1,500 Bibles in the hotels of Niagra Falls that day.

When they reached Toronto they owned the town. For the four days they were present they rode on the street cars free. They were taken in automobiles on sightseeing trips about the city and on Saturday, July 2, were tendered a big banquet by the city of Toronto in the auditorium in Exhibition park. Eight hundred covers were laid and this feature proved one of the noteworthy events of the gathering. Mr. Burge introduced Captain W. H. H. Phelps, of Atlanta, and A. P. Douglas, of Ohio, as the last Confederate and last Union soldiers, respectively, to sheath their swords following the close of the Civil war. The band played "Dixie" while the assembled banqueters greeted the veterans with tumultuous cheering. The Forty-Eighth Scotch Highland band, famous all over Canada, furnished the music for this occasion.

There were 275 Gideon delegates present, representing a membership in the United States alone of more than 10,000. The number of Gideon ladies present at the Toronto meeting was larger than at any former convention. The meeting of the ladies' auxiliaries was among the interesting things connected with the gathering.

On Sunday, July 27, the pulpits of the various Toronto churches were filled by Gideon speakers and at the final session Sunday night in the Metropolitan church, the Gideon circle furnished an inspirating farewell scene.

A. B. T. Moore, of Cedar Rapids, Ia., was elected president of the national Gideon organization, and M. M. Sanderson, of Buffalo, N. Y., was elected vice president. Boston was chosen as the next place of meeting.

Joe Brown, of the H. L. Singer company, walked two days last week on his sales round on account of his automobile breaking down. S. I. Bagwell, of this company leaves this week on his vacation trip to the St. Lawrence river and Canada.

LESS ADVANCE SHOE BUYING THAN FORMERLY

Jobber Thinks Late Buyers Will Find They Have Profited by Delay

E. G. Thomas, manager of the Rice & Hutchins Atlanta company, found a few minutes the other day in the midst of a busy time getting in samples of new styles to give the Firing Line some views on buying methods and his company's policy.

"I will state plainly that the merchants who have put off their buying have profited by it," says Mr. Thomas.

"Our company's long experience has taught us to favor fostering the idea among the merchants of not buying their whole stock early in advance of the season.

"We favor market buying. The merchants who will be here during the next two weeks will have the opportunity of getting the newest styles and also the market buying advantage of getting hold of job lots.

"You can quote me as saying that the dealer nowadays who buys at the first of the season all the shoes he expects to handle is making a mistake. There is always something new in shoe styles and those merchants miss their chance to get the very late styles.

"I am glad to see that the tendency is to buy less goods ahead of season. Two-thirds of our sales now are during the regular season and only one-third advance sales.

GIDEONS TO HEAR FROM TORONTO DELEGATES

At the Gideon service this afternoon at 3 o'clock the delegates who attended the International Gideon convention at Toronto last week will tell about the convention. The Toronto gathering was one of the biggest events thre Gideons have ever had and the speeches of the egates are sure to be interesting. Everybody cordially invited to attend.

RICHARDS' GREEN TAGS MEAN SPECIAL PRICE

During Convention Period Special Inducements Will Be Made Visiting Merchants

A great batch of green tags is being distributed over a large part of the stock of the stationery department of the S. P. Richards company as one of their preparations for the arrival of several thousand retail merchants in Atlanta next week.

These tags on the stock mean a special price, even on many staple articles, during the convention period. Like many other concerns, this company will take advantage of the opportunity for a clean up sale.

E. S. Harrison, J. R. Thornton and J. H. Huff, of the road force, will be here during the convention to assist H. M. Kopplin, manager of the stationery department, in looking after the visitors to the company's show room.

CAPITAL CITY CO. TO SUPPLY VISITORS CIGARS

A big supply of fine cigars is going to be charged up to general expense at the Capital City Tobacco company during the next two weeks.

Messrs. Malone and Carlton, of this company, want all of the company's many merchant friends, and also the potential friends not now acquainted with the tobacco house, to drop in while here, enjoy a good smoke with them and get well acquainted.

Incidentally, the merchants visiting this concern will be shown the largest humidor rooms in the south, where the Capital City Tobacco company keeps stored its stock of cigars.

Economy

"Did you punish your son for throwing a lump of coal at Willie Smiggs?" asked the mother.

"I did," replied the busy father. "I don't care so much for the Smiggs boy, but I can't have anybody in this family throwing coal around like that."—Exchange.

Tomorrow is the opening day. Everything is shipshape for the visiting Merchants and everybody's happy.

Thousands of keen eyes are going to be on Atlanta the next two weeks. She's going to be inspected from every point of vantage---her stores, her factories, her industries. More than that:

The quality of her hospitality is going to be scrutinized. The sincerity of her glad-handing is going to be put to the test.

It is up to every Merchant, every Manufacturer, every Citizen of Atlanta to make our guests believe more strongly than ever before in the Atlanta Spirit.

And you Merchants who are going to make Atlanta your Mecca during the next two weeks, come right in and make yourselves at home. We are unfeignedly glad to greet you and we hope that you will have the time of your lives.

Don't fail to ask questions and to see what you want to see. Let "Show Me" be your slogan. Take things just as easily or just as strenuously as your constitution dictates.

Make a mental note before you strike the town, of the things that you are most interested in. Then when you get ready, you'll know just where to go and what to do.

Be sure to reserve plenty of time for the recreational features of the Convention. Baseball, Barbecue, Theatre Parties, Receptions and Drives are some of them. Don't skip these, they're going to be jolly.

Do just as much business as you like. Atlanta loves to combine work and play and you'll find plenty of willing listeners if you want to Talk Shop. It's quite possible you could make your trip a Free Proposition if you talked shop sufficiently. Talk to Secretary Harry T. Moore about this point.

But whatever you do, be very sure that this is going to be a great affair, and that all Atlanta is glad to have you come and share in its privileges and its pleasures.

All Aboard!

Road Reminiscence

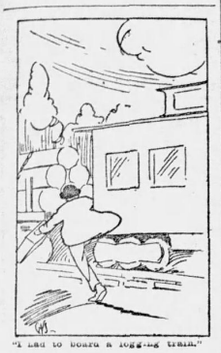
The Credit Man's Adventure

"Thought I was a salesman before I was a credit man and have perhaps had my share of experiences as the former, I want to tell you that a man out on a collection trip has his little adventures, too," said a member of a big jobbing firm.

"About three years ago a certain account of about $800 on our books had become long past due when we received notice that the merchant had entered a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. Because of some confidential information we had of his past business record which showed he would bear watching, I hastened away to the scene.

"It was a long ride, and about the coldest day of that winter that I rolled southward toward the lumber district where he did business, shivering in a poorly heated car and trying to think out plans for attack on my suspicious customer.



"I had to board a logging train."

"When I reached a point some thirty miles from the scene where my man had his little shack of a sotre, I had to board a logging train which was not heated at all, so I immediately stopped planning and give my full attention to trying to keep warm.

"We appreciate things by contrast, which is the only reason I can see for having enjoyed my dinner at the little hotel as I did. It was a poor dinner, but it was hot and served in a warm dining room. Half an hour later I felt able to attempt collecting the national debt and set off to tackle the gentleman in bankruptcy, confident that if he was trying to put anything across on my firm I would find it out.

"They had told me some things about him, however, in answer to inquiries I made at the hotel that might well have given me some misgivings. If he drank as much as some of them declared, he would have put himself in bankruptcy by his expenditures for booze. And since he had closed his store a few days before, I was informed, he had not been outside his little cottage, which sat lonesomely in a small clearing some distance back from the main settlement.

"The supposition was that before his store was closed and the notice of bankruptcy had been posted on his door, he had carried home his entire stock of corn and rye—it was generally rumored he ran a blind tiger—and was proceeding to destroy any possible value it might have as an asset by personal attacks upon it. They intimated to me he would either not be in a condition to talk to me at all or else he would want to carry on his end of the conversation with a stock of cordwood. Someone mentioned casually that he was six feet two and weighed 250 pounds.

"But I so nearly froze on my thirty-mile caboose ride on the lumber railroad that there had been some sampling of corn from a jug on my own part, and when I started for the home of my merchant I meant business.

"When he came to the door himself I saw that my kind informants had been correct in their surmises. He didn't have the cordwood in his hand, but he had as mean a look in his blood-shot eyes as I have ever seen in any man, drunk or sober.

"'Well, who are you?' was his greeting.

"I gave my name and that of my house.

"'That last order of yours, amounting to one hundred dollars, was shipped by us the same day you filed your petition,' I said. 'You did not countermand the order or return the goods. You either pay for them in full or I'll have you arrested for swindling. And we'll talk about the other seven hundred dollars you owe my house, too.

"He was not as reckless as he had been pictured. He evidently had judgment enough to quickly see that I could give him trouble over that last shipment. Then, trying to be cunning, but intoxicated and muddle-headed, he made his fatal slip. Instead of merely offering to pay for them, he at the same time reached a big hamlike hand down in an overall pocket and drew out a great wad of closely rolled greenbacks that his long fingers barely reached around.

"When I saw all that cash I began to think fast, for I remembered that no cash had been listed among his assets in his bankruptcy schedule. There was my chance, but how I could use it was the question.

"'You can't get any hold on me,' he was saying. 'I've got too good a lawyer. Just to show you I am straight, though, I'll pay for that shipment.'

"'Lawyer!' There was my cue. If I could just get him down to his lawyer's office with that roll on him we would see what was what. He though he was going to get off easy by paying for that hundred-dollar shipment, but I saw now I had a better hold on him if I could only cinch it.

"'Suppose we go talk with him about this,' I said.

"Then I learned his lawyer was in a town farther down the railroad, but I still insisted we see him. Luckily for me, he rather took to the idea. I followed him into the next room when he went for his coat and hat, for I was going to see that he didn't leave that roll.

"On the train I cinched my hold. A little strategy, and it was done. I used the conductor for the purpose.

"With a joking manner, I handed the trainman a dollar and told him to take out two fares, as my friend was temporarily financially embarrassed. Mr. Merchant was nettled by the conductor's laugh at this for every one knew of his bankruptcy. He had taken another long pull at his bottle of corn before he left home, and was now really feeling somewhat reckless.

"With an oath, he pulled out his roll and flourished it before us.

"'Bet it doesn't total $50,' I said, and winked at the conductor. Anyone could see the roll must be at least a hundred even if it were all ones.

"'Put up your bet money,' snorted my intoxicated customer, peeling off a ten and handing it to the conductor.

"'All right, let him count it,' said I, also handing a ten to the amused railroad man.

"But I wasn't exactly amused though I was much pleased. It was a serious business to me.

"With an oath he pulled out his roll

"The conductor counted the roll. 'Seven hundred and fifty dollars,' he said, starting to hand it back to the merchant.

"'Surely not,' said I. 'Let me verify that,' and I counted it, with the same result and saw the merchant take my ten with much satisfaction. But it was money well spent.

"In a few minutes I went down the train and spoke to the conductor.

"'Be prepared to make an affidavit to that count,' I said, and told him the story, as our station was the end of the line. He agreed to meet me at the attorney's office a half-hour after we reached the station.

"The rest was easy. The conductor appeared a few minutes after we reached the lawyer's office and I played my cards.

"When I showed I could produce two affidavits, mine and the trainman's, showing this merchant had $750 cash, he had not listed in his assets he was quite willing to give me my pro-rata of the seven fifty and I saw, too, that the two other houses who had credited him were sent their share before I left. I wrote those other creditors explanations.

"We creditors let the case go through the bankrupt court in the regular way and in the end each house was paid in full counting their share of the withheld cash.

"The unscrupulous merchant was glad to get off without criminal prosecution, but he lost the entire seven hundred and fifty he expected to clear by his fraudulent bankruptcy.

"But he swore mightily at himself for trying to talk business and consume all his corn liquor the same day."

TAX WRANGLE DELAYS HOTEL INSPECTOR BILL

Time Yet If Tax Matter Can Be Disposed of Early This Week

Because of the protracted wrangle over the tax bill in the house of representatives, the hotel inspector bill made no progress last week. Everything in the house was at a standstill on account of the tax debate. Should the tax discussion end in the house early this week, there will yet be time for the hotel bill to be reached and passed and sent to the senate and passed by that body also. But if the tax fight lasts until the latter part of the week it will be extremely doubtful whether the hotel bill will have a chance this year.

Notwithstanding these handicaps, Representative C. H. Stone, of Tallaferro county, who introduced the bill, declares that he will do everything in his power to rush it through whenever the tax fight can be disposed of.

Judge W. J. Nunnally, of Floyd county, who introduced a bill about the same time that Mr. Stone's bill was introduced, which provides that hotels shall display a rate card and diagram of their room arrangement and not change the rate until after sixty days' public notice, stated last week that his bill could yet be enacted, if the tax matter should be disposed of without delay.

The bill introduced by Mr. Stone providing for an inspector to enforce hotel regulations, and the one introduced by Judge Nunnally providing for publicity for rates, and the present sanitary regulations already on the statute books establish a most satisfactory code of laws for the protection of commercial travelers and the traveling public generally, but the entire systesm will be ineffective without an inspector to vitalize and enforce it.

FINE BOOKLET ISSUED BY RAGAN-MALONE CO.

Finely Illustrated and With Much Interesting Information About the Company

Coincident with convention time the Ragan-Malone company have just received from the printers a splendid booklet they have had prepared telling of the company its history and its facilities for meeting the wants of the retail trade on dry goods and notions.

There are twenty large pages, profusely illustrated and with many interesting facts about the concern set out in every readable style. The cover of the booklet is especially striking with a photo of Atlanta's skyline and a splendid cut of the Ragan-Malone building.

The inside photographs show the members of the company and many scenes from all departments of the company, from the office, through the stock room to the shipping department.

An interesting sidelight on the growth of the business is furnished by two of the pictures shown for comparison ,one a view of the notion department in 1895 and the other of the same section today.

Throughout the booklet, at the bottom of the pages, are given some interesting facts about the city of Atlanta and its growth.

The company started yesterday mailing copies of the booklet to their friends.

The following salesmen of the R. F. Avery company will be in the city for the merchants' convenaion: W. H. Heuring, W. T. Stapler, George C. Sweney, R. S. Gass, J. W. Greene.

COLLINGSWORTH TO SET PACE FOR MERCHANTS AT BALL GAME

Chairman of Committee on Baseball Is Red-Hot Fan, All Convention Delegates to Attend Game Friday, August 15

Baseball will be the order of the day for Friday, August 15, for the several thousand convention delegates.

That this part of the regular entertainment program is going to vie with the mammoth barbecue and the theaters for being the most popular feature goes without saying.

It will be Atlanta vs. Chattanooga, and there has been a rivalry between these two particular teams this season that gives good promise of the merchants seeing a hard-fought game.

And if every one of them, or half of them, pull as hard for Atlanta as does H. S. Collingsworth, the well known wholesale shoe man, who is chairman of the baseball committee in the convention arrangements, there is no doubt who will win.

A conservative, calculating business man in his office, he has been known to become the wildest of wild fanatics in exciting moments of a close game. He will be right there with them Friday, August 15.

ATLANTA SELLS $2,000,000 WORTH MILLINERY A YEAR

Wholesale Millinery Market Here Regarded Everywhere as the Best in the South—More Than 700 Traveling Milliners Go Out of Atlanta Every Season—Houses Here Among the Largest and Most Progressive in the Entire Country

BY L. B. ROSSER, of J. Regenstein Co.

In speaking of the evolution, changes and progress in the millinery field, I can only give my own personal observations and opinions gained from close attention and study given to my firm's business, and while this applies mainly to our progress, I have no doubt but that the other millinery houses in Atlanta can say the same of their own business.

As to the conditions and the way in which millinery is handled in Atlanta today as compared with the way it was done ten years ago, or even at a later date, I can state that there is hardly any comparison to be made, owing to the fact that while Atlanta did some millinery business ten years ago, she did nothing in comparison to what she is doing today.

It is a well known and conceded fact that the millinery market as a line is the strongest line shown in Atlanta today, and, in fact, the Atlanta market is considered to be by the trade in the southern territory the best market to be found, barring none.

Having been with the J. Regenstein company for the past thirty years, and for the last fifteen years having taken an active part in the detail work of the business, I feel that a few words with reference to the way business was done in Atlanta ten to twelve years ago would be interesting.

For instance, we boys who used to travel at that time all made our trips, coming back into the house, attending to our regular duties and looking after house trade, in addition to taking care of the trade on the road. Today the work is so great that it requires the undivided attention of the regular house force the year round, and besides the regular house force, our eight traveling men have to look after the trade while they are off the road, and this work alone gives them more than they can attend to.

By getting a line of figures from different sources, I find that ten years ago Atlanta was jobbing not exceeding $500,000 worth of millinery per year. In order to give the different figures for the present time, I took the trouble to ascertain from different sources, and I can truthfully and without exaggeration state that $2,000,000 per year would hardly give the amount of millinery shipped from Atlanta today.

Figures show that our business so far this year has given us an increase over any previous year we ever had. This firm has been established over forty years and for the past ten years has been known as the J. Regenstein company, which is a stock company, the active members being young men and all workers. We believe, when we state that our business has increased and is increasing each season, that the other millinery houses can voice the same facts.

We begin our first showing of fall millinery on next Monday, August 4. This "showing" is meant to signify that pattern hats are on display, the stocks all in first-class condition, full and complete in every respect, and that we are ready to receive visiting milliners and merchants. In our pattern show rooms different models are displayed each day. These showings are continued constantly until September 15, at which time usually all buying of first stocks is over.

From August 4 up to September 10, the Atlanta millinery market will have as visitors in the neighborhood of 1,000 customers. This number will include buyers and their milliners. Ten years ago I feel satisfied that 100 would have more than covered the number of those visiting Atlanta during the millinery opening periods. We point with pride to the fact that today almost all of the eastern and western houses have representatives in Atlanta during our opening dates, which would seem to spell that they cannot get the trade to their market, but have to meet them in Atlanta, which is the recognized market for the people of this section.

In addition to carrying lines that are selected especially for this territory, we point to the fact that the advantage given the trade coming to Atlanta and the one that should be the most important to them all, is the fact that in coming to market they can go through the most varied, carefully selected and up-to-date stocks and select from these stocks just the colors that may appeal to them and have the stock put away right before their eyes. On the other hand, in the olden days when they selected from samples, no doubt the house with whom the order was placed had nothing out the best of intentions, but at the same time when they did not have what the order called for, as a matter of fact they could not ship it, in many cases being forced to substitute, which is so often so unsatisfactory to the customers, and necessitates the return of same.

Today the millinery business is run on an entirely different basis. The buyer comes to market, makes arrangement for his milliner, places her in one of the work rooms of the different millinery houses, and after glancing through the stocks to see that the things look right, leaves the balance to his milliner, who selects with discrimination just the class of merchandise, colors, materials, novelties, etc., that she feels will appeal to her trade.

This firm alone has about 250 traveling milliners on its staff. In all I believe that there are about 700 or so Atlanta to fill positions in the different traveling milliners who go out from Atlanta to towns around in the southern states. It would be quite an interesting sight for any visitors in Atlanta from August 15 to September 15 to pay a visit of inspection to the different wholesale millinery houses in Atlanta, of which there are four, and see the work rooms that are maintained for the out-of-town trade and milliners.

In giving the above outline of the changes and conditions, I have only gone over our own records and experiences, but have no hesitancy in saying that our progress has been equaled by the other houses in the line. We are proud of our market and propose to allow nothing to stop the progress that we have under way. We are looking forward with great pleasure to the visits of our numerous friends during the next two weeks and want to show them that the Atlanta millinery market is the proper one for them in every sense of the word. Our doors are open to them and we want them to make our house their house and use us as they see fit. We are at their command and service and the pleasure will be all ours.

The first thing J. L. White did when he came in the other day from a special trip for the A. M. Robinson company through Alabama and Mississippi was to see that the building was properly decorated for the big week and to insure it being just right, put the flags in place himself.

ATLANTA IS DOMINANT DISTRIBUTING CENTER

Feibelman Shows That Service Is Secret of Great Branch House Here

Among the largest contributing causes of Atlanta's greatness is the fact that it is the home of the branch houses of numerous national manufacturing companies. The far-seeing ones of these concerns early recognized the importance of this city as a distributing center. The business returns almost immediately justified their confidence. They were followed by others until today there is hardly any big manufacturer anywhere in the nation but what has a branch house here.

What is the chief factor that decides manufacturers in choosing Atlanta for their southern location? This question was asked Julius Feibelman, manager of the Atlanta branch of B. F. Avery & Sons, manufacturers of farm implements.

"You may be sure," replied Mr. Feibelman, "that a manufacturer before locating his branch makes a careful canvass of the advantages of every large city in the territory and then picks the best. There must be some good reason why so many of them have selected Atlanta.

"This reason may be summed up in one word, namely, service. From no other city can the whole great southeastern territory be so effectively served as from Atlanta. Its railroad lines emerging from it like spokes from the hub of a wheel make it the one most accessible point of the southeast.

"This is the kind of service that brings branch houses here. It is a powerfully attractive feature as you may know when I tell you that branch houses are run at a sacrifice of profits. I do not mean that they are run at a net loss to the general business, for such is not the case. To illustrate what I mean: The operating expense of our own branch is not included in the price of the goods shipped from here. Nothing is added to this price except actual car load freight, from the home plant at Louisville, and this of course is a very small part of the administrative expenditures.

"Sales and shipping forces must be practically duplicated at the branch house and the cost of them must largely approximate the cost of the sales and shipping forces at headquarters. This cost is not borne by the branch house goods but is absorbed in the general factory expenses.

"Why then are manufacturers willing to stand this expense? It is because service is the important thing to them —service that brings them a constantly increasing volume of trade.

"In the farm implement business, the repair trade is one of the leading features. In our branch we carry more than 5,000 different items of repairs.

"Let us suppose that some part of a farm implement breaks, the farmer is in the midst of his work. If he has to send to the home plant in a distant city for this part, his work must lie idle and his crops suffer for perhaps a week or more. He can not afford to lose the time.

"But if he is anywhere in the southeast he can reach the branch office in Atlanta by wire through his dealer and be sure of getting the repair part by return express. That's the sort of fast service that Atlanta is capable of rendering and that is why branch houses flourish here.

"Long hauls of small shipments of implements are generally known to be unsatisfactory, for the reason that the long haul multiplies the chances of some one or more of the many articles of the shipment going astray in transit. This is a well recognized peculiarity of implement shipments which pass over several lines of railway. But the short direct shipment that is possible from the branch house does away with this difficulty.

"The railroad passenger service into Atlanta is unsurpassed. This means that dealers may come here, make selections for their needs and get back home the same day. A trip for the same purpose to Louisville or Chicago would mean the loss of a week.

"Our company was among the pioneers of the implement concerns opening branch houses here. The venture was viewed skeptically at the time, but its success grows bigger every year. Now practically all the big implement and farm machine manufacturers of the country have branches here. The aggregate capital behind the main companies represented here runs to the enormous sum of $300,000,000.

"Since service is the chief reason for the branch house, its sales and shipping forces must be efficient in the highest degree. The inviolable route of our house is: 'Shipment same day the order is received, no matter how small or how large the order may be.' Atlanta furnishes us the railroad facilities and we make the facilities yield their utmost fraction of service every day in the year. That's the purpose of our existence as a branch."

Fain & Stamps have this week received a car load of Georgia canned tomatoes, grown and packed this season. The car comes from the Mutual Canning company at Adel, Ga. The early arrival is unprecedented, as the first Georgia canned tomatoes are not usually received until September 1.

WHOLESALE MILLINERY OPENINGS WILL BE ATTRACTIVE FEATURE OF SOUTHERN MERCHANTS' CONVENTION

Over a Thousand Buyers Will Visit Atlanta Millinery Market in Next Few Weeks

Simultaneously with the start of the big Southern Merchants' convention tomorrow comes the opening of the millinery season, which in itself brings to Atlanta twice a year not less than a thousand visiting buyers.

Many of the delegates to the convention conduct millinery departments in connection with their mercantile business and together with their milliners, who will be in Atlanta for the wholesalers' opening, they will spend part of their time looking over the fall styles.

Of course it has to be left to the milliner to really do the buying, but Mr. Merchant himself likes to visit the jobber's sales rooms just for "a sort of general look around."

A call on the big wholesale milliners is never missed by some merchants who have hardly learned the difference between a plume and an egret. For what matters it if he knows nothing of such things? If he doesn't care particularly about the styles, he may look at the models who exhibit them and let his milliner worry over the question of the plumes and egrets.

They are here. The models are here, the new styles are here and the buyers will begin arriving this week. And the wholesalers are predicting a great season. For the next four weeks the season will be in full swing and the millinery sales rooms a popular place for merchants come abuying—whether they know styles or not.

JOHN F. TOOLE RETURNS TO ATLANTA, BRANCH MGR.

The many friends of John F. Toole, former Atlanta branch manager of the F. B. Stearns company, manufacturers of Stearns-Knight motor cars, are congratulating their fellow townsman on his return to Atlanta in his old capacity as branch manager.

Mr. Toole takes the position vacated by Mr. Bissell, who for the past year has been branch manager, Bissell now having charge of all the Stearns company's wholesale business in the territory controlled by the Atlanta branch. Mr. Bissell in his new position will have a larger field for his activities, and by devoting his time to building up the wholesale business of his company will undoubtedly create a much larger demand for Stearns cars throughout the south.

Mr. Toole, woh has been a resident of this city for many years had charge of the Atlanta branch of the F. B. Stearns company for a long while, and has an exceptionally wide acquaintance not only among the automobile trade, but among the purchasers of high grade motor cars. Toole and Bissell will work in conjunction, Toole handling all the business of the Atlanta branch and Bissell devoting himself to the outside work.

THE FOUNDATION MUST BE RIGHT

It used to be a common saying that to make a gentleman out of a boy you had to begin with his grandfather.

Whether this exaggerated the influence of heredity or not we couldn't say, but there is a parallel case in shoe manufacturing that is easier to prove.

Its wearing qualities are determined in a large measure beforehand in the selection of the material that goes into it.

Its style rests with the designer who, in buying his lasts, must look months ahead and gauge accurately the tendency of the ever-changing whims of fashion.

Its finish and appearance are vitally dependent upon the perfect accomplishment of every detail in its construction, from the first cutting to the final polish.

It is the attention and care given to every one of these phases of shoe manufacturing that have given RED SEAL Shoes their pre-eminence in the South today.

We'd like every visitor to the Southern Merchants' Convention, August 4th to 15th, to take a trip through our factory while here.

We want you to see not only the quality of our Georgia-made shoes, but the How and Why of it.

You'll see every detail of construction and every bit of material that goes into our shoes.

If you sell RED SEAL Shoes this knowledge will make you a more confident, convincing salesman of them.

If you sell some other line you'll know how THEY OUGHT to be made.

Come by our offices, 30-32 Auburn Avenue.

FROM WORLD-WIDE FIELD, ATLANTA JOBBERS IMPORT

Dry Goods and Notion Houses Supplied by All Europe and the Orient

From all over Europe—from the factories of Scotland on the north down through England, Ireland, Germany and France to troublous Turkey, from the workshops of China and Japan, and in fact from nearly every corner of the earth come a large part of the several thousand and one articles that make up the notion stocks of Atlanta jobbing business.

Perhaps the one thing that could most impress the visiting merchant of the variety of things assembled in the Atlanta wholesale market would be a great map of the world with a red cross marking every town from which come goods which find a place in the sample rooms and warehouses of local wholesalers.

A partial list, furnished by the Ragan-Malone company, gives some idea of the range of things and the countries from which they come.

There is England. Among the imports from there are dress goods, laces, pins, thread, needles, etc.

From Germany. Hosiery, dress trimmings, crochet collars, harmonicas, mirrors, laces, pins, hairpins, crochet jet buttons, crochet buttons, silk, lisle and cashmere gloves, corkscrews, lace collars, etc.

From Ireland are received linens and from Turkey hand crochet centerpieces; Austria buttons, fans, dress trimmings. From China and Japan, silks, fans, tape, brushes, silk handkerchiefs, etc.

Much of this importing is done direct by Atlanta houses, the goods being shipped under bond to the collector of customs of the inland port of Atlanta and the duty paid here.

Factory Head Shows How General Dealers Are Learning to Diversify Lines

Richards F Line

"This is the day for diversifying as well as for specializing. Success seems obtained by developing either one of these qualities to the limit.

"There is manufacturing with its intense specializing. There are the department stores with their great diversity. And it is along the latter line, of course, that the proprietor of the general store must develop—diversify to the limit.

"A feature being added to their store by a great many general merchants who are following this policy, according to figures from the Binder Frame Manufacturing company is an outfit, for picture framing.

"Last year we fitted out 25 per cent more merchants with equipment to carry picture framing as a side line than in the previous year," says Mr. Binder. "More of them seem to be taking to it all the time, and those who started continue to order moulding regularly, proving it must pay them to keep it up.

"There are machines for cutting and joining the moulding so that any clerk in the store can look after the orders for framing. They are kept especially busy with such orders during the holiday season."

PLANNING FOR GREAT BARBECUE TEN DAYS HENCE GOES ON APACE

J. R. Little chairman barbecue committee, having a busy time directing arrangements.

Ponce de Leon Selected as 'Cue Grounds—J. Lee Barnes Will Prepare Viands—Chairman Little Selecting Assistants

Ten days ahead of the date for the biggest barbecue ever held in the vicinity of Atlanta the planning for the event is being pushed ahead at a rate that insures it being a great success.

Ponce de Leon springs was definitely decided on yesterday as the scene for the feast by the committee directing arrangements, consisting of J. R. Little, chairman; R. K. Rambo and E. M. Hudson.

From 6 o'clock of the evening before the barbecue day, which is Wednesday, August 15, J. Lee Barnes will have his corps of cooks and general assistants on the grounds preparing the good things on the bill. It will be prepared under the personal direction of Mr. Barnes, whose long experience at preparing barbecues has made him noted in his line.

And with J. R. Little as host, and the assistants he has named to help him see that every one has a plenty of everything, a big time is certain.

Mr. Little will select this week about six more assistants to help look after the several thousand merchants who will attend.

Thomas E. Brodnax, veteran traveler in Mississippi for the A. M. Robinson comapny, who has been out on the road for several months, landed at the company's offices yesterday ready to spend two weeks here. He says there are a lot of them coming to rthe convention from Mississippi, too.

Declares Texas Dealers Have Spirit of Home Loyalty Georgians Should Emulate

"We have shipped more goods this July than for the same month of last year and I am confident of a good business this fall." Such is the way Marcus Loeb, the manufacturer of overalls, comments on conditions in his line which is quite a factor in the manufacturing interests in Atlanta.

"Business with us is fine, considering the fact that competition with overall manufacturers is becoming keener all the time.

"All I ask is that merchants in this section show the same loyalty to home manufacturers that the dealers in Texas are doing. We formerly secured much more business from that state than we do now. Since a number of factories in our line have been established there, the statement meets our salesmen everywhere in Texas that 'we have overall factories here in our own state and we must give them first show.'

"There is an example for many of our Georgia merchants. In Texas they are sticking by their home manufacturers. There is perhaps more loyalty in Georgia in this respect than in former years, but still many storekeepers are lured by the New York label.

"'Give the home manufacturer the 'first show,' as the Texas merchants are doing with their home industries, and then if the product does not measure up to standard there will be some reason for going further from home."

HARRIS COMPLIMENTED ON BIG WEEK'S SALES

Percy Harris, with the A. M. Robinson company, is still going at a great pace after business in South Carolina. The following telegrams passed between him and his house yesterday:

J. D. Robinson, Atlanta, Ga.

Just to make my last week the largest of the season am mailing orders for thousand sold today.

Percy W. Harris, Spartanburg, S. C.

We wish to congratulate you on your splendid week's business.

Puzzled

An aged colored man was passing a fish store when he stopped to examine a huge turtle chained in the doorway as an advertisement.

He had never seen a turtle before and he prodded the strange creature. Suddenly he popped his finger into his mouth with a howl of pain. After the finger had stopped bleeding he gazed at it ruefully, then eyed the turtle apprehensively.

"What's the matter, 'Rastus?" asked the fish dealer, with a grin.

"Nuffin', sah, nuffin'. Ah was jest wonderin' whether Ah had been bit or stung."—Lippincott's.

HIS MAJESTY, THE LION, TO "ROAR" WELCOME TO CONVENTION VISITORS

Brought From the "Jungles" of Germany, He Will Give Impressive Greeting to Callers at United Shirt and Collar Co.

Impressive is really not quite the word. They'll get what can well be called a ferocious welcome.

The company mentioned who sell the Lion brand shirts and collars reason thus: What is the use of having a brand if you do not well impress your particular brand on the minds of your customers and prospective customers?"

Hence the ferocious welcome that will make visitors to 76 North Broad street remember it is the place where the Lion brand goods are sold.

So, visitors, be prepared. Standing apparently just ready to spring, or gently nodding his head in a condescending way befitting the dignity of the king of beasts, you will find him when you enter the sample room.

He is not caged or even chained, as the manager and his assistants are on good terms with him and haven't the slightest fear of his claws. In fact, they seldom notice him, so commonplace has he become to them.

The company has 150 of these lions distributed among their agencies over the United States. E. A. Crane, the Atlanta manager, can lay claim to discovering them. Unlike most lions they do not come from Africa, but from Germany, and Mr. Crane first learned of them, not through Bostock, but through a salesman for a German manufacturer he met in Memphis several years ago. On his recommendation a large number were brought to this country by the company and are loaned to retail dealers for window displays.

To make it certain that no visiting merchant may be actually scared off from visiting the company's Atlanta branch, it may be stated that his majesty is of papier mache.

ENTERTAINMENT PROGRAM SHOWS CAREFUL PLANNING

Good Variety of Features Fit Nicely Into Business Program of Convention

All work and no play makes a poor convention as well as a dull boy or Jack.

The interesting but taxing business sessions of the Southern Merchants' convention are to be accompanied by a varied program of entertainment that is well interspersed with the business of the convention yet without conflicting in the slightest with the serious side of the big gathering.

Coupon books will be given all delegates at the time they register at the auditorium on arrival and these coupons will keep them posted as to the schedule of entertainments as well as acting as passes.

Two theater parties are on the program. The reception at the Piedmont Driving club will be one of the most pleasing features this year as last. The great barbecue is looked forward to by everybody, and last but not least, the entire body of merchants will take in in a ball game at Ponce de Leon park.

Well balanced, with features that will appeal to every one, is the general opinion of the arrangements made by the entertainment commitee.

The H. L. Singer company is rejoicing over the exceptionally good business it received on the last competitive bids submitted both to the city of Atlanta and the United States government.

ON THE ROAD AND IN THE OFFICE WITH ATLANTA'S BUSY ARMY OF COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS

Following are the John Silvey & Co. salesmen who will be here for the convention: P. H. Jeter, southeast Georgia; Jack Whiteman, southeast Georgia; Z. Daniel, Georgia road territory; W. W. Bullock, western South Carolina; R. A. Powell, Alabama; D. M. Braswell, northeast Georgia; J. W. Hughes, Seaboard and Southern roads territory; Sam Johnson, W. & A. and Southern roads territory; J. H. Roberts, city salesman.

L. L. Dettlebach, better known by his famous road name of Billy Sunshine, will be right on hand to meet his friends among the Georgia merchants at the convention.

Here during the convention period will be the following salesmen of the Hirshberg company staff: W. C. Tenant, who covers Georgia; Sam Saltzman, from North Carolina? Max Samuels, Alabama and Tennessee traveler, and Herman Teitlebaum, who covers Atlanta and vicinity.

They are having a fine trade from their holiday goods sample room recently established at Jackson, Miss., say Montag Brothers. It is in charge of Ed Montag, Joe Karpeles and H. L. Watts.

Tales of the great corn crop that is going to mean much to business conditions in Georgia this year are brought in by D. M. Braswell and Vires Hyatt of the John Silvey & Co. force. The former says it is fifteen feet high and six ears to the stalk in Butts, Henry and Haberesham counties and Mr. Hyatt reports it looking just as good in his territory.

J. S. Cheek, just in from a special trip through the South Carolina wing of his territory, brings reports of great interest in the convention among the merchants up that way.

J. M. Frankel, of the Rosenfeld company, has been further delayed in getting away for his Kentucky and Indiana trip which he expected to start last week. He is able to be out but is still under a physician's care.

L. G. Grimes, traveling for the Liquid Carbonic company, who makes his headquarters at Montgomery, Ala., is now on his vacation, which he is spending at his home, White Plains, Ga. He was in Atlanta Friday.

R. V. Haslett, of the Liquid Carbonic company, is in Augusta for a few days.

D. D. Batchelor, of the sales staff of the Liquid Carbonic company, came over to headquarters Friday from Huntsville, Ala., with a customer in tow.

M. J. Kent, vice-president and traveling salesman for the Rosenfeld company writes that he is having a great time on his vacation on the great lakes. They are afraid at the Rosenfeld company that he is going to want to change his territory and spend all his time traveling from port to port on the lake steamers looking for customers instead of coming back to his regular travels in the Louisiana cane country and the Texas plains.

Rumor has it at the office of Fain & Stamps that the reason that Sanders Smith is seen wearing a sunbonnet so often is that he is contemplating a divorce from his bachelorhood.

L. B. Lesesne, of the H. L. Singer company, moved into his new home at Oakhurst, Ga., last week. So proud is he of it that it is showing in the splendid orders that he is turning in.

J. L. Nisbet, of the E. L. Adams company, has returned from his vacation spent at Piedmont lake.

Tom Cleatt, of Fain & Stamps, had a hard time repairing his automobile last week until he found the only trouble was that the gasoline was out.

C. H. Burge, of the McCord-Stewart company, has returned from attending the International Gideon convention at Toronto. H. A. McDonald, of this company, who also attended the convention, did not return with Mr. Burge but stopped over for a short side trip.

Following are the Ragan-Malone company salesmen who will be here for the convention: Morris Croft, Atlanta and West Point road; W. M. Johnson, western Georgia; Dan Tuggle, Birmingham division territory; Carlton Hames, Central of Georgia road; Sam Hanes, Georgia road; Arthur Whitmeyer, South Carolina; R. R. Pennington, Seaboard and Southern; W. W. Scott, Jr., southeast Georgia; J. A. Trammell, southwest Georgia; Frank Corry, south Georgia; S. J. Jones, north Georgia.

A. N. Greene, J. F. Tate, J. O. Chambers and C. D. Dickinson are in from the road at the Brown, Perryman & Greene company, ready to meet the visitors, and others from the road will be here in a few days.

Ridley-Williamson-Wyatt company salesmen who will be here this week are: J. S. Cheek, north Georgia; Tom Yon, Florida; J. L. Yates, northwest Georgia and Alabama; D. L. Lassiter, middle Georgia and Alabama; R. B. McWhorter, Georgia railroad; F. W. Webb, south Georgia; W. J. Hays and C. S. Shiflett.

F. L. Cooper, E. D. Newton and B. D. Fudge are the Atlanta Stove Works traveling men who will be here during the convention, at the company's special headquarters at 97 Peachtree street.

E. H. Janes, of the Dobbs & Wy company sales force, is feeling fine after the best two weeks of sales he has had so far this season.

R. B. McWhorter is a salesman who will have a busy time this week. When his customers come to Atlanta they always call around to see him. He is widely popular in his territory.

G. Y. C. Buice and S. F. Hein have just closed a successful week at Charlotte, where they have been in charge of the Montag Brothers' display of holiday goods. The line of samples is being moved to Raleigh, where they will spend next week.

J. C. Porter stepped into the breach for the Capital City Tobacco company last week and is now holding down two jobs. T. B. Lewis, a regular road man for the company, was taken ill on the road Thursday and had to return to his home in Atlanta. Mr. Porter, who is a specialty man representing the American Cigar company and who was working with Mr. Lewis, is finishing the trip as salesman for both companies.

J. R. Jordan, Montag Brothers' salesman, is in from a trip in Alabama and Tennessee.

H. J. Atwood, of the McCord-Stewart company, has returned from his two weeks' vacation spent in New York and Canada. His sister, who accompanied him, has returned to her home at Franklin ,Tenn.

H. L. Singer, of the H. L. Singer company, will leave this week for a two weeks' vation trip.

Tom Yon, the Florida salesman for the Ridley-Williamson-Wyatt company, has been pulling hard for the convention down in the Palmetto state and assures his house there are a lot of merchants coming from there. In fact he promises a train load of his customers and allowing for mild exaggeration he can be counted on to be kept busy greeting his friends this week.

C. D. Dickinson, of the Brown, Perryman & Greene company, is in from the road and was busy yesterday getting an extra supply of chairs for the company's offices in expectation of the many visitors this week.

At Dobbs & Wey company all hands, referring here to the traveling force, were busy yesterday putting the finishing touches to the holiday goods samples room. E. H. [illegible], E. L. Kerrison, E. E. Fulton J. W. O'Donnell are here for the convention.

Many salesmen and merchants are glad to learn that the Atlanta Show Case company has added to their line of show cases a complete line of display and window fixtures and this one thing will help many a merchant to buy his complete line of fixtures and other wares in this city and save the freight from the east. Mr. McGuire is the man to see. He is ready to attend to the wants of all callers.

HUSON IS NOW WITH DAUGHERTY-LITTLE CO.

Will Continue to Travel Southwest Georgia—Will Attend Convention

Of interest to hundreds of salesmen traveling out of Atlanta, especially to those connected with the dry goods trade and to any who travel in southwest Georgia, is the announcement that J. L. Huson is now with the Dougherty-Little-Redwine company.

This firing-liner has been traveling the territory mentioned for a number of years and will continue to cover the same section in his new connection. He joined the Dougherty-Little-Redwine staff last week, but will be in Atlanta during the convention.

As soon as the big doings in Atlanta are over, however, he says his friends down in the corn and cane section may expect him, and that he will be out to make it the biggest fall season he has ever had.

Diagnosis

The big road touring car struck a pedestrian, rolling him in the mud and malterating him in general. The owner ran back, greatly excited, after stopping his car.

"Is he dead?" he asked anxiously of the medical man who was attending the victim.

"Oh, no!" replied the doctor, cheerfully. "He's not dead; he's merely run down."

BUNTING ON BUILDINGS WELCOMES MERCHANTS

Wholesale Houses and Auditorium Gaily Decorated for Convention

Many of the wholesale houses already have their buildings decorated for the occasion of the Merchants' convention, and others will drape the bunting over their store fronts tomorrow.

Down North Pryor street can be seen a number of buildings covered with red, white and blue signs declaring a welcome to the visiting merchants. All over the rest of the city, wherever there are wholesale houses, such sights are noticed.

At the auditorium, where the meetings will be held, the decorating has been all completed. The task of giving the big building a fitting dress to be presented to the several thousand merchants was assigned to Pat O'Connor, and he has done the job well.

Ahead of Time

Doctor—From now you may let your husband have a glass of beer every day. You understand?

Wife—Yes, doctor—just one glas a day.

Doctor (a week later)—Now, I hope you have kept strictly to that one glass per day that I allowed your husband to take?

CROWNED FENDERS ON THE 1914 CARS

Latest of the Striking Developments in Automobile Design

An advanced feature of automobile construction sure to manifest itself in 1914 is the crowned fender. Three or four manufacturers have already announced this feature. Others admit that they are now negotiating with manufacturers of pressed steel specialties with a view to installing crowned fenders if they can be assured of deliveries.

The crowned fender is a characteristic American adaptation of a foreign idea. It presents a gracefully curved concave section, following the round of the tire. Its shape permits it to be mounted much closer to the wheel than was the case with the conventional flat type. Both shape and position greatly add to the efficiency of the crowned fender, protecting the body of the car and its occupants from splashing water and mud.

The European body builders hammered their crowned fenders into shape by hand. This method was out of the question for standardized American cars. But Assistant General Manager Clarence H. Booth, of the Studebaker corporation, declared a year ago that dies could be devised which would make the work possible in big presses. The task was entrusted to the executive staff of the corporation's plant 5. For more than a year the original set of dies, then designed, has been turning flat sheets of cold sheet steel into crowned fenders for the Studebaker "35" and "Six." In the time that a gang of European workmen would hammer out one set of fenders, one Studebaker press will turn out 100. And the Studebaker fenders are absolutely identical and true to design, requiring no supplementary fitting. Even the riveting which fastens the fender to its supports is now concealed by the latest Studebaker process, the result being an unbroken surface of glossy enamel.

Through 1913 the crowned fenders have become known as a Studebaker hall mark. That other manufacturers have followed along similar lines implies a compliment fully appreciated by the ingenious Studebaker workmen and designers who put Yankee ingenuity into the quantitative production of a formerly exclusive article.

ERRONEOUS IDEA OF EFFECT OF HEAT ON AIR IN TIRES

"Some people have the idea that excessive heat causes expansion of the air within an automobile tire," says L. C. Rockhill. "They consequently keep their tires under-inflated, being afraid of blow-outs from excessive pressure and resulting injuries.

"This is a popular fallacy which seems at present to be firmly fixed in the minds of automobile users. According to Mr. P. W. Litchfield, our factory manager, there never was a more ridiculous or costly idea entertained by tire users.

"It is impossible for the air in a tire to expand sufficiently from heat to cause dangerous strain, and no harm need be feared on this score. However, the damage to tires by keeping them under-inflated is tremendous.

"Our entire organization is endeavoring to disabuse the minds of automobile owners on this subject and educate tire users to keep their tires at all times inflated to the recommended pressure."

MOTOR TRUCK SUPPLANTS HORSE IN SUBURBS

Mr. Bennett, of Willys-Overland Co., Tells of Revolutionized Business

The suburban merchant, who formerly depended on the horse and wagon for his delivery facilities, is one of the best purchasers of motor trucks in the world. This is the opinion voiced by G. W. Bennett, vice president of the Willys-Overland company, in commenting on the success with which the Willys utility truck has met since its introduction to the commercial vehicle field, a few weeks ago.

"The truck has revolutionized the business methods of the suburban merchant," he says. "A few years ago, when the suburban business man depended on horses and wagons for his delivery and the big business man in the large city nearby did the same, the former was content. He was getting his share of the patronage of his territory, regardless of whether his deliveries were promptly and economically made. But with the introduction of the motor truck, he saw his plan was a loser. His city competitor began to encroach on his territory, merely because the city man had doubled or trebled facilities by supplanting horses and wagons with trucks. Day by day the suburbanite saw his business dwindling. Even though he was miles nearer the desirable customer, he could not compete with the city merchant in the matter of delivery. The latter's truck would cover three or four times as much ground in the same time as his horse and naturally the select trade went to the man who could give the best service.

"But since the suburban merchant has taken to the motor truck there has been a change. He is now getting a large part of the profitable trade which formerly went to the bigger business man. And not only has he won back that business which geographically belonged to him, but the greater speed and economy of the power vehicle has enabled him to branch out to territories heretofore out of his reach entirely."

PEERLESS TRUCKS GAINING FAVOR FOR EXCAVATING

Large capacity motor trucks, with power operated dump bodies and loaded by steam shovels, are being used in increasing numbers all over the country for the excavation and the quick transportation of gravel and earth.

The Dale Engineering company, which has a contract for constructing gravel roads near Auburn, N. Y., recently placed a four-ton Peerless truck, with a screw power hoist dumping body, in competition with a steam traction engine for carrying gravel from the pits to the road.

The gasoline truck carried its full load and pulled after it a very large trailer loaded to capacity. The gravel taken at each trip amounted to nearly nine tons. The destination was a trifle more than three miles away, and the truck averaged ten trips in a working day of ten hours. In other words, it delivered over ninety tons of gravel to the road builders every day.

Three trailers were used with the traction engine, and they carried twelve tons of gravel. The engine was, of course, much slower than the truck. Its regular speed is two miles an hour. It delivered twenty-four to thirty-six tons a day, but slow as it is, its use is considered economical as compared to the employment of animal drawn vehicles.

HAULERS OF U. S. MAIL ADD TO FLEET OF ALCOS

Postal Transfer Service, Inc., Which Placed Largest Order, for 80 Trucks

Following upon the largest motor truck order on record, C. A. Benjamin, general sales manager of the American Locomotive company automobile department, announces the sale of four Alco six-cylinder touring cars to the Postal Transfers Service, Inc., the concern that purchased eighty Alco trucks to haul the United States mail in and about Greater New York.

The motor cars are to be employed by officials of the company and will act as service cars to maintain the efficiency of the mail deliveries. Their sale boooots the amunt of the purchase by the Postal Transfer Service, Inc., to $249,000.

According to Mr. Benjamin, the fleet of trucks is coming through on schedule at the factory and by August 1, the entire number will be ready to undertake the huge contract of hauling Uncle Sam's postal matter every day in the year on time table schedule.

As fast as the trucks arrive they are being put into service. These alco mail trucks are already a familiar sight on the New York streets, and the drivers who will operate them are in daily training. Generally a different man is at the wheel each day. As a result, the drivers will be acquainted with the operation and care of the machines before the contract begins with the government authorities.

Bloomington's Wild West

Automobile Owners, Attention

No more worries about punctures. PUNCTURE SEAL solves the trouble.

PUNCTURE SEAL injected into your tubes will seal any puncture up to a 20-penny nail, will preserve and lengthen the life of your tubes and lessen blow-outs by eliminating rim-cuts. It will not stick the tubes to the casing, will not gum, become hard or evaporate, it is not affected by heat or cold weather, does not interfere with removal of tubes or with vulcanizing.

PUNCTURE SEAL pays for itself many times a season by preventing punctures and rim-cuts.

We charge less for PUNCTURE SEAL than any of our imitators. Good territory open to agents who write us at once. We are in business to stay.

THE MOTOR CAR IS NOW COMPETITOR OF THE RY.

Touring in motor cars is today one of the most popular of all forms of summer recreation. The railroads are being compelled to look after their laurels since the mtor car has come into such great prominence.

"Summer touring is the most pleasant and most healthful form of recreation," says Mr. Harry R. Radford, vice president and general manager of the Cartercar company, Pontiac, Mich., "and every year more and more people are realizing this fact and taking their vacations in their motor cars instead of spending their money for railroad transportation. Just a few years ago you seldom heard of a man taking his family out for a week or a month in his car, and the fellow who did such a thing was pulling off an entirely unusual stunt. Nowadays, the roads are fairly alive with tourists, going and coming from everywhere, many of them on their way clear across the continent."

"The advantages entirely justify such a condition," continued Mr. Radford. "The motor car enables the tourists to enjoy the prettiest bits of scenery, the most delightful roadways, and what is best of all, he can go and come at his own will. Many people have found right near their own homes scenery and vacation surroundings which they formerly traveled hundreds of miles to find. The motor car affords the only real means for enjoying the country at its best, and this fact has had much to do with the tremendous popularity of the automobile. We are receiving a surprisingly large number of testimonials from Cartercar owners who are touring across the country, and they find the gearless transmission especially adapted for their needs. The motor car is not only the national sport; it is also the national recreation."

VELIE COMPANY HOLDS CONVENTION FOR DEALERS

A convention of automobile dealers, unique in the history of such conventions of this country, took place this week at Moline, Ill., when the dealers of the Velie motor car gathered to formulate plans for the 1914 selling season.

The convention was housed in a verritable white city, one hundred and fifty tents each sleeping two men, being filled.

The camp was pitched on a high hill overlooking the Mississippi river and was a model camp in every way, being equipped with not only tents for housing the dealers, but with a convention tent and a big dinner tent.

Dealers from all over the country were present at the camp for the full week, E. L. Scouten, of the Atlanta territory, one of the most popular automobile men in Georgia, was present at this meeting.

Important among the many things discussed was the new Velie advertising campaign, in which this company is entering after five years of constantly increasing success.

Director of Sales C. E. Giltner made the announcement that Velie business for 1913 had increased 120 per cent over business for 1912, and production for 1914 would be double that of 1913.

Quadruples Efficiency

Harry W. Wood, district representative of Enoch Morgan's Sons, Cleveland as headquarters, says that any traveling salesman who covers the grocery trade can increase his sales four-fold by traveling in an automobile. Mr. Wood makes this statement as the result of his own experience in handling Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Illinois in a Studebaker touring car.

Orders by the Million

On two small order blanks, Purchasing Agent C. J. Reynolds recently let the contract for 15,000,000 pieces of material for use in building the first run of Studebaker cars in the fiscal year that opens September 1. The order represented cotter pins and nuts in quantity sufficient to last until about January 1, 1914.

These braided wires, which we control, gave us rulership of tiredom.

The Goodyear Secret

The No-Rim-Cut tire is a Goodyear invention, and we still control it.

This tire can't rim-cut — that we guarantee. This fact has saved motorists many millions of dollars.

It has also made Goodyears the world's favorite tires. They now outsell any other.

Ruins Almost 1 in 3

Time and again we have gathered statistics to show what rim-cuts cost. This year we employed certified public accountants, so the figures could not be disputed.

They examined thousands of ruined clincher tires, taking them as they came. The old-type, hooked-base tires. And they found that 31.8 per cent had been discarded for rim-cutting only.

That's almost one tire in three.

How We Did It

We did this by making a hookless tire—one that does not hook to the rim.

Thus your removable rim flanges can be set to curve outward—not inward as with clincher tires.

Then the tire, when wholly or partly deflated, rests on a rounded edge. There is no curved-in rim flange to dig into the tire. Thus rim-cutting is made impossible.

These tires fit any standard rim.

This hookless tire makes it essential to have an unstretchable tire base. It must be held on, under every strain, so that nothing can stretch the tire over the rim flange.

We get this by vulcanizing into the tire base six flat bands of 126 braided wires. See picture at the top.

This tire can't be forced off. But when you unlock and remove a flange it easily slips off. There are no hooks on the base to "freeze" into the rim flange, as with old-type tires.

Controlled by Secrecy

These braided wires are made under lock and key—made by secret machinery.

They cannot be imitated. And it seems that a faultless tire of this type cannot be made without them.

Makers have tried it again and again, but thousands of the tires came back for replacement.

So the wish to end rim-cutting has forced tire users to Goodyear No-Rim-Cut tires.

Hundreds of thousands of men have adopted them. And this tire has become, after eight years of tests, the leading tire of the world.

How We Combat Two Other Ruinations

Next to rim-cutting, the costliest items in tire upkeep are due to blow-outs and tread separation.

To minimize blow-outs we use the "On-Air Cure." The tires are final-vulcanized on elastic air bags instead of an iron core.

This prevents the fabric from buckling and wrinkling. It equalizes strains. Thus we avoid the cause of countless blow-outs.

This "On-Air Cure," used by us alone, adds to our cost $1,500 daily.

Tread separation, when it occurs, comes near the breaker strip. This is the fabric strip which comes between the tread and carcass in a well-made tire.

For this strip we use a patent "rivet fabric." This permits us to run, from the tread to the carcass, hundreds of large rivets of rubber. Then the tire is vulcanized en masse.

We have exclusive use of this patent. No other tire can thus prevent the ruin of loose treads.

No-Rim-Cut tires, with these costly features, used to cost one-fifth more than clinchers. Now they cost no extra price. This is due to our multiplied output.

Good Hurling Copped Brace For Crackers

Conzelman and Love Made Good Against the Vol Outfit, Timely Hits Proved Winner in Each Battle

Good pitching and timely hitting were combined by the Crackers in Saturday's double-header with the Nashville club, and the inevitable result was a pair of wins for the home bunch. The score in each game was 4-1, and with the two wins and a Baron loss the Crackers climbed back into third place.

Pitchers Joe Conzelman and "Slim" Love did the puzzling hurling, while Wallace Smith, Izzy Bisland, Harry Holtz and Harry Chapman used the willow at just the right moment. Williams and Breckenridge, the opposing flingers, were right there with good hurling, but unfortunately gave up the hits at the wrong time, and this proved their undoing. There were many pretty fielding stunts in each game, Lisland, Welchonce, Lindsay, Holtz and Holland all pulling spectacular plays throughout the afternoon. All of them figured in keeping down the score and aided the hurlers in pulling out of many bad holes.

The main point in the first game was a triple to the right field by Wallace Smith, ...is single getting away with the game. In the second game Holtz came through with a most timely bingle, when the score was tied in a knot. This hitting, of course, helped a great deal, but the flinging of Conzelman and Love took first honors.

HITS WERE APART.

In each game the Vols got away with a score in the first inning, and after that were never threatening. The hurlers seemed to tighten up and were stingy with their hits. In no inning did the Vols get to Conzelman for as many as two hits, and only in the first inning of the second game did Love give up as many as two hits in any one inning. The tall boy has a world of confidence and control and appears to have a bright future.

Harry Holland, the local boy who has been playing third, was not so nervous in the double bill, having become accustomed to the game, and he put up a good article of ball. He accepted all the chances that came his way, secured a single and swiped a bag, besides contributing a most spectacular catch of a foul on the third base line.

HOW THEY TALLIED.

The Vols got away in the opening round of the first game with a score on a base on balls to Daley, a fielder's choice, an error and a hit.

In this same game the Crackers scored three in the third, when Chapman doubled, was forced at third by Conzelman, only to have Long and Agler walk and Welchonce come through with a sacrifice fly. Wallop Smith then tripled to right and two more runners came in. The fourth and last run came in the eighth, when Welchonce singled was sacrificed to second by Smith went to third on Bisland's out and scored on Holland's hit.

THE SECOND GAME.

Again in the second game the Vols got their only tally in the first inning. Daley, ...cied, went to second on Spratt's out and scored on Noyes' double.

The Crackers tied it up in the same round when Long singled, was sacrificed up a bag by Agler, went to third on an out by Welchonce and came home on a single by Smith. Two more were added in the fourth when, with one out, Bisland singled, Holland walked, Holts singled and Dunn filled to last. The fourth tally was put over in the fifth, when Long gained life on Lindsay's error, swiped second and Smith doubled How it looks in figures:

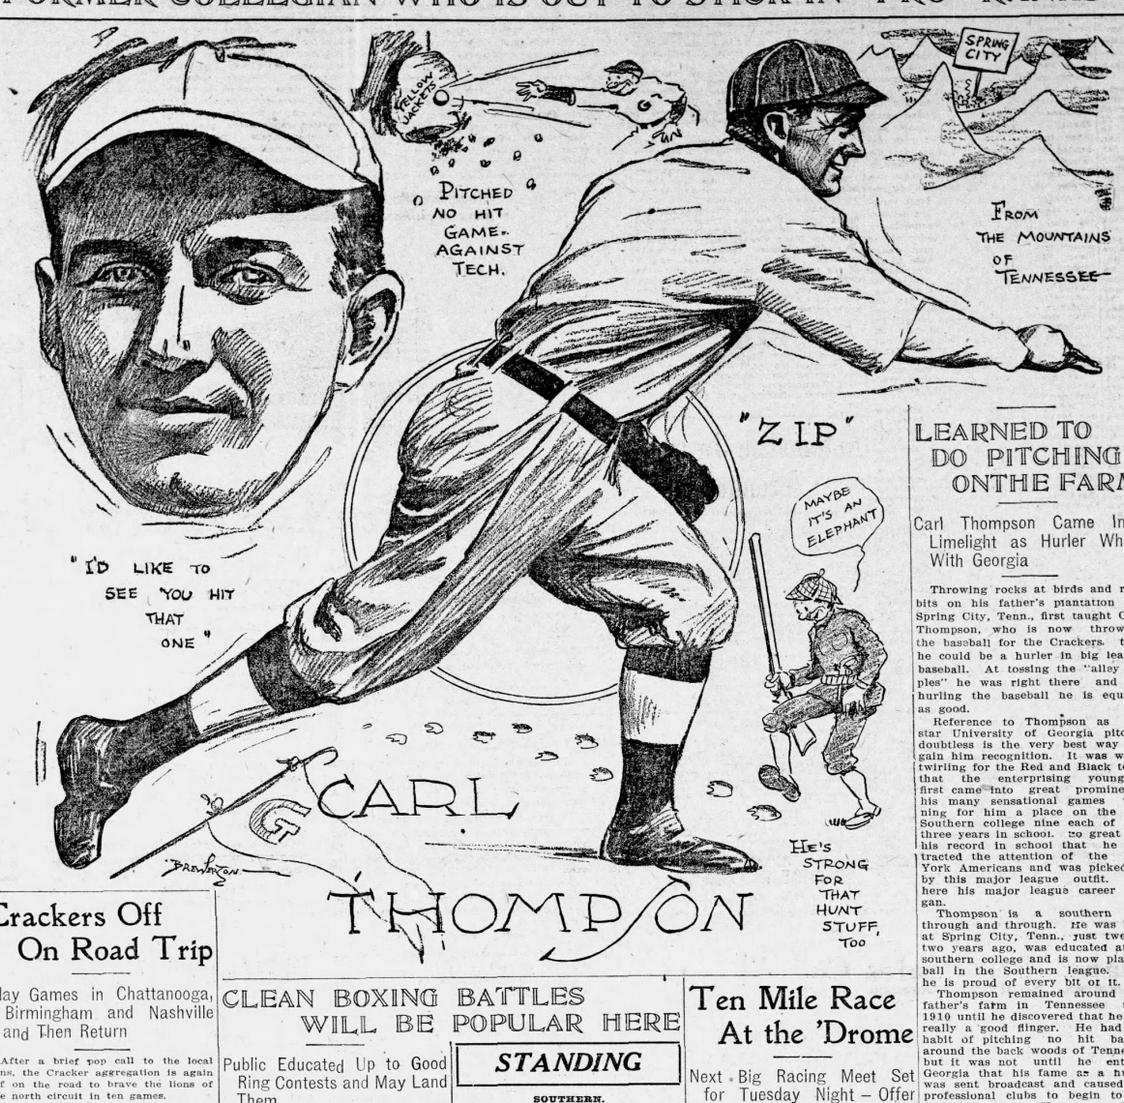
FORMER COLLEGIAN WHO IS OUT TO STICK IN "PRO" RANKS



Crackers Off On Road Trip

Play Games in Chattanooga, Birmingham and Nashville and Then Return

After a brief pop call to the local fans, the Cracker aggregation is again off on the road to brave the lions of the north circuit in ten games.

Should the Atlanta team get an even break on this road trip, they would then be in a position to make a bid for first place before the end of the season, but if they should slump off on this trip, then it will be a difficult matter for them to regain the lead of the league as the Billikens and Gulls are both going at a great clip right now.

The team is in excellent condition for this trip, as the new men have been broken in by their short home stay, and seem to be going good. Love's début on Saturday was more than satisfactory, while the playing of Holtz and Holland is sterling in quality. Clark is also steadying down into a good reserve pitcher.

This trip opens with a four-game series with the Lookouts, a double bill being scheduled for the sixth. From Lookout mountain, the Crackers adjourn to Nashville where they tackle the Vols again. Then they go to Birmingham for three games, and return home on the 14th of August.

The detailed schedule is as follows:

Chattanooga, August 4, 5, 6-6.
Nashville, August 7, 8, 9.
Birmingham August 11 12, 13.

The Lookouts are always keen rivals of the Crackers, while the Vols seem to have been effectually separated from their nanny during the last serie. With Birmingham, however, comes the real crucial test. The Barons have been fighting tooth and toe nail of late, and are th Crackers' closest rivals right at present. This will really be a C. S., meaning crucial series.

After tackling the Barons the Crackers return to their own ball lot once more, an sojourn there for a long while. In this home stay there are twenty-three scheduled games, with every team in the league except Nashville, and in addition to the scheduled games there will be quite a few postponed games played off.

CHANGES FOR JUST A DAY

Mobile took another space from between themselves and the top round by administering defeat to Montgomery in eleven innings. Atlanta passed Birmingham and is now in third place, by reason of her defeat of the Vols in both games of the double bill and of Birmingham's loss.

Jeff Tesreau pitched the Giants to another victory on Saturday. The Phillies also gained a victory.

CLEAN BOXING BATTLES WILL BE POPULAR HERE

Public Educated Up to Good Ring Contests and May Land Them

In local sporting circles the advent of a boxing club should be welcomed. The manly art of slipping the horseshoe into the mitt has suffered so many blows from the cruel hand of the promoters that the local fans have become pardonably cagey about attending a bout in the canvas covered ring. Within the last month a corking good card was staged at the autditorium armory, and but a few choice spirits attended. Why? For the simple reason that they feared another bunk, and remembered the old saw "a stung guy keeps his eye on the promoter."

This Abel-White bout, and in fact the whole card including the preliminary contests demonstrated that a good fight can be staged in Atlanta. Eddie Hanlon and Terrey Nelson were a little slow, but at that, Terry received his first knockdown in the local ring.

Charlie Lee and Kid Young went at things hammer and tongs, and from the standpoint of scientific boxing, their bout was nix, but from the standpoint of willingness and freedom from stalling, they were certainly there with the thrills.

In the main bout Jake Abel waded right into Charley White, but sad to relate, he was out of his depth and met a mule kick on the point of his jaw too quickly, however, the very fact that the knockout occurred so soon in the fight demonstrates that there was no stalling there.

The new club has made a wise move to put itself on the level with the local fans by staging Charley White here again. He is to meet another popular local man, Frank Whitney who in training is much more formidable than Jake Abel. In addition to this Charlee Lee and Kid Young have been staged for the windup again. This is also calculated to put a good taste into the mouth of the fight fans.

The necessary thing to remember, is, however, that this can be kept up. The taste for good boxing is like a taste for olives, champagne and loud cheese, it must be cultivated. If the fans are contented to see two boys assuming the nom de plume of Kid Leftey and Young Nasty step into the ring and lovingly fall into one another's arms and do a tango with their feet and a windmill with their arms, damaging only the atmosphere, why then the boxing game will naturally go down as it did before. As we have said, however, although Atlanta cannot support a champpionship bout, there are some mighty good championship contenders in all classes who are anxious to meet all comers. Young lads with the push of ambition and the sting of championship longing behind their blows. With a little reading fight fans can keep track of these and know a good thing when it is coming.

The new fight club gives the Atlantians a good opportunity to do this. When the home team is away it is a dead sport town. The motor races can't last forever, and then, too, it rains a good deal. The baseball season does not last long, and pinocle is not always interesting. We hereby enter a plea for a boxing club that will give the fight fans something to enjoy, an opportunity to appreciate a scientific fisticuff, and to give local sportsmen some stimulation other than that of alcoholics.

Ten Mile Race At the 'Drome

Next Big Racing Meet Set for Tuesday Night – Offer Good Card

The Motordome has another good program carded for next Tuesday night, and one which should appeal to all kinds of race bugs. This is the same program which was booked for last Friday night, but which succumbed to the rain.

There will be a special match race between Shields and Glynn, the race to be awarded to the winner of the best two in three heats. The heats are to be run for two miles.

Then ther will be a Motordome purse. The final heat for this purse will be two miles. To qualify for this final three trial heats will be held, the winner of all three qualifying, and the second man in the fastest heat also qualifying.

The big race of the evening, will, however, be the Atlanta sweepstakes, or the ten-mile race. This race will be contested in the final heat by five riders who will qualify in two one-mile trial heats.

This is as goo a card as has been put on at the motordome, with the possible exception of the marathon race of some ten days ago, and many speed bugs of the city are pulling against the rain which seems to dog the footsteps of all motor events at the local track.

Outlaw Club In New York

INDIANAPOLIS, Ag. 2.—Horace Fogel, former National league club owner, today submitted a proposition to the directors of the Federal League of Baseball clubs to place a club in New York City.

Philadelphia and Baltimore also made bids for clubs, and the directors began considering the advisability of making the Federal an eight-club league next year. No action other than the appointing of committees to consider the claims of each city was taken today.

Among today's conferees were John T. Powers, Chicago, president of the league; Lloyd Rickert, St. Louis, secretary; Colonel X. Simmerman and M. F. Bramley, Cleveland; Ed Steininger, St. Louis; W. T. McCullough, Pittsburg; J. A. Gilmore, Chicago, and J. Edward Krause, Indianapolis.

East Point Wins

East Point Scouts defeated Hapeville by the score of 6 to 5 Wednesday afternoon. The features of the game were the batting of Frank and Phil Boykin and Sidney Drive, the latter two getting three-baggers.

LEARNED TO DO PITCHING ONTHE FARM

Carl Thompson Came Into Limelight as Hurler When With Georgia

Throwing rocks at birds and rabbits on his father's plantation at Spring City, Tenn., first taught Carl Thompson, who is now throwing the baseball for the Crackers that he could be a hurler in big league baseball. At tossing the "alley apples" he was right there and at hurling the baseball he is equally as good.

Reference to Thompson as the star University of Georgia pitcher doubtless is the very best way to gain him recognition. It was while twirling for the Red and Black team that the enterprising youngster first came into great prominence, his many sensational games winning for him a place on the All-Southern college nine each of his three years in school. So great was his record in school that he attracted the attention of the New York Americans and was picked up by this major league outfit. And here his major league career began.

Thompson is a southern boy through and through. He was born at Spring City, Tenn., just twenty-two years ago, was educated at a southern college and is now playing ball in the Southern league. And he is proud of every bit of it.

Thompson remained around his father's farm in Tennessee until 1910 until he discovered that he was really a good flinger. He had the habit of pitching no hit battles around the back woods of Tennessee but it was not until he entered Georgia that his fame as a hurler was sent broadcast and caused the professional clubs to begin to bid for his services. He entered Georgia in 1910 and played on the baseball club for three years. At the close of the 1912 season he was grabbed by the New York Americans and in turn sent to Brockton in the Northeastern league. With the start of this season he came to Birmingham and because he got away to a bad start was released and signed by Atlanta and here he is doing nicely.

Probably the greatest work accomplished by Thompson while he was in college ranks was a no hit game against Doc Wilson of Tech during the 1911 season. In 1912 he again came prominently before the public by fanning twenty-two Auburn batters in a nine inning game.

During the off season Thompson is a great hunter and trapper. There are plenty of foxes, squirrels and birds on his plantation and he puts in many months tramping the woods hunting game. In this way he keeps down to weight and is always ready to begin work with the start of each baseball season.

Home Battles To Determine Club Position

Present Road Trip Should Prove Fair, With Batters and Pitchers Both Working in Their Best Shape

With Montgomery and Mobile fighting it out in a most important series, in which Mobile has already gained an edge, the Southern league race appears just as uncertain as ever. John Dobbs and Mike Finn are just about tied for the lead, with only a lead of five games over the Crackers and just half a game more over the Birmingham club.

As has been expected all along, the Birmingham and Atlanta clubs are bound to be right around the top at the very last, and it would not be at all out of the expected line of playing to see the Crackers and Barons fighting for the lead when the last game of the season gets here. Class will eventually tell in any class of work or play, and when two teams have as much baseball ability as the Smith and Molesworth clans they are sure to get in the thick of the fighting.

Right now the Atlanta club is off on a road trip of some ten games, but after that Billy Smith brings his men home for the longest stay of the year, and right here at Ponce de Leon, in a run of some twenty-four straight games, the position of the home crew will be learned Against Birmingham, Chattanooga and Nashville the Crackers should not fare so badly, and upon returning home in third or fourth place, the real fight to go higher will be commenced.

PLAY SIX CLUBS.

While at home from August 14 until the first of September the Atlanta club will have the chance of its life. The team is practically sure to finish one, two, three, but this is not what the fans are clamoring for. They all want a pennant to swing from the tall flag pole in center field, and nothing less than this will give them a bit of comfort. They have supported the club to the last ditch, and a pennant is what they think they are entitled to, and just what they will be handed if the efforts of the players and baseball officials count for anything.

In the past week the club has had several very bad reverses, but has been patched up sufficiently well to go along and show the way to many of the organizations making up the circuit. Holland, though appearing a bit nervous in his home town, has played good ball, and, with a change, should get right on the job and begin to hit. This has always been his strong point, and he is bound to begin to clout 'em when he gets accustomed to the game. In Holtz a good man has been landed, and he should fill in nicely in both the batting order and outfield. Love, too, seems to fill the bill and will take his regular turn on the hill.

HURLING MEANS MUCH.

The showing of the Atlanta club in the gruelling battle from now until the end of the season depends largely upon the way the hurling staff shows up. Should the Dent-Conzelman-Price-Thompson - Love - Clarke combination come through with the right class of work, the sailing should be easy; otherwise, it will go hard.

The batters have again rounded to form and will give the hurler plenty of runs to work upon, all that is necessary being for the pitching department to perform its work in tip-top shape. On the last road trip the hurlers and batters both went to pieces, and the result was a bad slump. With either end going at an ordinary clip, it would be half and with the two working together there can be nothing but a bunch of wins.

The road trip, though important, is not the main works in this race. It is the long home stay of the club through August, with a big winning streak, and there will be a good chance for the pennant, and only mediocre ball, and Birmingham looks to be the winner.

Western Star Takes Honors

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Clarence Griffin kept western tennis honors for California today by winning the final match of the western tournament at Onwentsia from "Joe" Armstrong, of St. Paul, 6-4, 6-0, 4-6, 6-1.

Maurice McLoughlin's non-appearance to defend his title leaves Griffin in possession of the western championship. Griffin is not of the same speed as McLoughlin and the latter's honors as national champion are hardly in danger, according to experts.

Griffin today played much the same brand of game which brought him winner through the week's battles. The coast boy's reliance today was on his steadiness. Opposed to Griffin's cross court shots was the left side line Armstrong spitted drives to the base line.

The western doubles championship match was won by Melville Long and R. H. Burdick, by an easy victory in the final round over Walter Hayes and John H. Winton, 6-1, 6-2, 6-4.

Races at Saratoga

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 2.—The spring's racing season opened today under ideal weather and track conditions. Sir Barry won the Saratoga handicap without being extended. A few rods before the finish Lahore attempted to overtake the leader, but it was a futile effort. Rolling Stone was a good third.

At the start of the feature event, Rolling Stone made the pace to the back turn, followed in order by Colonel Holloway and Cock o' the Walk. There Lahore rushed up even to Rolling Stone and the pair led by a length, turning into the home stretch.

COBB VS. JACKSON

Ty Cobb slumped on Saturday, while Joe Jackson took a big spurt, getting two hits out of four times up in the first game and three out of four in the second. This gives Jackson a 12-point lead over the Detroit star.

NAPS WIN TWO

BOSTON, Aug. 2.—Cleveland made it five straight victories over Boston today, winning both games of a double-header, 5 to 4 and 7 to 0.

CHICAGO WINS

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Chicago emerged from its long losing streak today and defeated New York 4 to 1. The visitors won on the poor pitching of Warhop, who opened for New York. McConnell relieved Warhop in the fourth and permitted only two hits. Scott pitched effectively for Chicago, and was ably supported. The feature was a marvelous running catch by Wolter on Berger in the fourth inning, which refired the side on a double play. Score:

NATIONAL LEAGUE RESULTS

GIANTS AGAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Big Jeff Tesreau retrieved himself today, pitching New York to a victory over Chicago, 2 to 1. The game was hard fought be*tween Tesreau and Larrry Cheney. Rog*er Bresnahan's bad throw to Evers in the eighth gave the visitors their winning run, Shafer scoring on it.

During the game Manager Evers and Outfielder Leach clashed because Leach signaled at first base for the hit and run by Evers, who was at bat, slowed up in order to avoid the batted ball and was forced at second. Leach made a rush at the manager, but was intercepted by Bridwell, who acted the pacifier. Score:

THREE FLIGHTS FILL IN CAPITAL CITY TOURNEY

Intense Interest Manifested in Golfing Tournament for the Trophy Offered by President Maddox

The qualifying round of the tournament for the handsome and coveted trophy offered by President R. F. Maddox, of the Capital City Club, was held on Saturday on the links of the Country club, and forty-eight golfers qualified.

This tournament is the center of very much interest, as the golf course is showing much improvement under the direction of the Capital City club, and as there are many good golfers among the entrants. In fact, three scores of 86 were made, one 87 and of 90 in the qualifying round. The makers of these scores were F. W. Hammond, C. A. Sciple, Clarence Knowles and Frank Adair, 87, and R. C. Atkinson 90.

Although the course at the Capital City Country club is only nine holes, the excellent condition in which it is kept attracts many golfers to the club. Its putting greens are as smooth as velvet, and the fair greens are well built up.

The first and second rounds in this tournament must be played by August 7, and the third round by August 8. In all future matches the club handicaps will prevail.

Here are the ten lowest scores:

P. W. Hammond, 86; C. A. Sciple, 86; Clarence Knowles, 86; Frank Adair, 87; C. R. Atkinson, 90; R. L. Reed, 94; J. W. Osborne, 95; P. T. Marye, 95; James P. Callaway, 96; T. A. Hammond, 97.

The flights fill in the following manner:

First flight: P. W. Hammond vs. J. B. Martin; Frank Adair vs. E. H. Moore; H. L. Reed vs. J. T. Jennings; C. M. Sciple vs. G. H. Usher; C. R. Atkinson vs. W. C. Spiker; P. T. Marye vs. T. A. Hammond; J. D. Osborne vs. J. P. Callaway; C. Knowles vs. Phil L'Engle.

Second flight: E. A. Thornwell vs. F. P. Graham; A. Schoen vs. J. R. Gray, Jr.; T. J. McGill vs. Hamilton Douglas, Jr.; R. L. Cooney vs. Macon Matlas, Jr.; R. L. Cooney vs. Macon Matlas, Jr.; J. P. Dick vs. J. G. Williams; E. P. Austin vs. J. P. Webster; W. T. Gentry vs. R. E. Hastings; Keith Conway vs. A. C. Godfrey.

Third flight: T. R. Gentry vs. John Aldridge; W. Frank Smith vs. Mr. Tenning; Jesse Draper vs. Mr. Greening; James J. Hagan vs. Eugene Dickey; John S. Cohen vs. Alf C. Newell; C. E. Sciple vs. A. S. Watson; J. K. Ottley vs. R. P. Maddox; J. Russell Porter vs. F. C. McDuffie.

Hildreth to Train The Belmont Stable

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—It is learned that August Belmont has engaged Sam Hildreth to train his American racing stable. Some time ago Hildreth sold his own string of horses to the late Charles Kohler and went abroad, the latter's stable manager scoring many successes on the French turf.

Charleston Wins Her Game

CHARLESTON, S. C., Aug. 2.—Charleston made it three straights from Jacksonville by winning today's game, 3 to 2. It was an exciting game all the way. Grover was batted from the box in the first inning. In the eighth the visitors tied the score when Hoffman tripled after Cueto and Melcher had singled. Kirby, the New York Giants' property, took Woolfe's place and retired the side. He fanned four men in two innings. Hoy got to first on a fielder's choice and Winston sent him home with a triple to left in the ninth, winning the game. McMillan's fielding again was a feature of the game. Jacksonville made a triple play in the first inning. Hamilton, the new manager, took charge of the Charleston team today and played well.

Smyrna Takes Game.

SMYRNA, Ga., Aug. 2.—Smyrna won in the ninth inning from J. M. High today in a very exciting game. Smyrna played an uphill game, overcoming a 11 to 2 lead.

The feature of the game was the batting of Hawkins and Howell. High defeated Smyrna three times last year, so today's victory was sweet revenge. Smyrna has not lost a game this season. Her boys are playing in jam-up style.

There was only one out in the ninth inning when the winning run was scored by Dunn, he scored on a three-base hit by Britt, a to deep left, by Hawkins. B. A. Jones and Williams played good ball for High team.

Welchonce and Long Leading Rival Batters

Elberfeld Holds Batting Lead, Long First in Run-Getting, While Welchonce Has Made the Most Hits

With a slight slump by Welchonce during the past week, both D. Robertson, of Mobile, and Gribbens, of Montgomery, passed the Cracker star stick wielder and are now right after Kid Elberfeld for the batting honors of the league. Elberfeld, by remaining out of the game, has kept his average at .346, and is ahead of Robertson, whose mark is .335; Gribbens, who is hitting .329, and Welchonce with .327.

At run scoring, Tommy Long holds the lead with 76 tallies in 97 games. Next in line is Callahan, of Nashville, with 71 tallies in 101 games. At slugging, D. Robertson continues to be the king bee. This boy's 127 hits have gone for 180 bases, among which are 17 two-baggers, 6 triples and 8 home runs. Most of the home runs were swatted on the Mobile field, where the right field fence is short.

Harry Welchonce has made more hits than any other player, having 129 hits. Net is Robertson with 127.

Prough Making Hurling Pace

Warm Race Is Being Waged for the Title of Southern's Best Pitcher

There is a nice battle going on now between Prough, E. Brown, Cavet and Covelesklie for the premier pitching honors in the Southern league.

Prough, who has recently taken a spurt, winning eight straight games, is now in the lead of the bunch. Gil Price is still well toward the front, and Dent is raising his average right along.

Playing Polo 1,000 Years

NEW YORK, July 26.—Comparatively few people have any knowledge of how polo is played. The main points of the game are as follows:

In the first place polo is supposed to have been invented in Persia some thousand years ago. India next took it up, then England and finally America began to play it.

Polo is played on a field 900 feet long and 450 feet wide, with a ten-inch wooden guard on the sides.

Five goal posts are placed twenty-four feet apart, are ten feet high, and are made of papier mache so that they break if collided with by pony or player.

A wooden ball, generally willow and painted white, and 3 1-8 inches in diameter and not over five ounces in weight, is used. Mallets of various shapes, most of them cigar shaped, though, are wielded by the players. The contestants are mounted on ponies that mustn't exceed 14.2 hands in height.

While the object is to send the ball through the opposing goal posts, each goal counting one, it is possible for a match to be won without a single goal being scored, as penalties are imposed for violation of the rules. In actual playing time one hour is consumed. The game is split into eight periods of 7 1-2 minutes each, with three minutes' rest between periods, this being extended to seven minutes after teh fourth period, or half time.

"WHAT WOULD THEY DO IF THEY COULDN'T PLAY BALL?" BY RIPLEY

Many Southern League Stars Have Climbed Up Ladder and Are Now Numbered Among the Three Hundred

McDonald, of Boston, is still the real leader of the National league batters, while Yingling, of the Dodgers, has a better average, but has participated in fewer games. McDonald has an average of .375 against Miller's average of .365.

Some ex-Southern leaguers who have climbed very much are as follows: Jake Daubert has been going fast lately and is in fourth pace with an average of .360. Red Smith also has a good average of .264. Zach Wheat is over the .300 mark.

ENGLISH SYSTEM NO GOOD; STICK TO THE HOME TALENT

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 2.—R. J. Jessup, Yale, '76, a brother of B. A. Jessup, the well-known Crescent A. C. rowing authority, who now resides in Salt Lake City, Utah, has just sent east an interesting comment on the recent Yale-Harvard boat race. Writing of what the Old Eli man calls a "fiasco," Mr. Jessup says:

"Now that the smoke of the battle has cleared away, and the cause of disaster can be discussed dispassionately, it is in order to consider some of the factors entering into the professional fiasco at the recent Yale-Harvard races. Captain Robert J. Cook, '74, father of the renaissance of American college rowing, was secured in the spring of 1912 as coach for the crew of that year, and he started in with every indication of making a good start toward turning the tide of Yale's annual defeat. But presently there were reports out here that Captain Cook was not allowed to have his own way, that he was being interfered with in the selection of men to have a seat in the boat, and even were given views in his judgment were better out of it.

"However, as it was, the crew made such an improved showing in the race over the crew of the previous year that there were just hopes of a still closer result in 1913. Suddenly Captain Cook dropped out of sight, and so suddenly J. O. Rogers and the youthful Mr. Harriman rose above the horizon. Mr. Rogers had been previously secured as coach in conjunction with Captain Cook, but had withdrawn from the field, owing to 'important business interests,' etc., and the ado made over his withdrawal in the college papers was laid on so thick as to naturally suggest 'What is there back of all this, anyhow?' Is it a case of 'my lady doth protest too much?' No reference was made to Cook; he was out of both sight and mind.

"Messrs. Harriman and Rogers are long appeared to become the entire thing, with the former as 'leading man' on the Yale aquatic boards. He spent a fair share of the year when he should have been in New Haven attending to his college duties, on the banks of the Isis in confidential relations with Oxford oarsmen.

Jimmy Calahan has, in his time, played many parts. Managing the White Sox is merely the last role that has grasped his whole attention. When James first broke into the big league, way back in 1897 under old "Pop" Anson and the Chicago Nationals, he tok the part of a pitcher. During the four-year engagement with the Nationals he understudied for every member of the team, and gave many performances before the public in each makeup.

Then again in 1903, when he was playing the American league circuit for Comiskey, it came about that he assumed the character of a third baseman, which he did with great success and much applause. The same year he was installed as stage director and manager of the entire company.

The following year he was booked as an outfielder, and playing big time for about half the run when he crashed his act by hitting the high lights and smashing the scenery. That night, when the curtain was rung down, he quit the show flat.

The following season found him an owner. He had organized a company of his own, the "Logan Squares" of the City league.

As a theatrical magnet Joimes got it over with as much success as had been his habit in the past. For several years the J. Calhan troupe of trained baseball acrobats showed to crowded houses. But the lure of the Big Time footlights proved too strong for our leading man, and the season of 1911 found him bowing his acknowledgment to Johnson Circuit applause.

So you see what we mean by saying that Jimmy played many parts. If you don't like these we will tell you another one—tell you a part J. C. used to play and would still be playing —IF he couldn't play ball.

Ring up the curtain on the well set stage of Fitchburg, Mass., and we have our hero playing the part of a plumber, and playing it often.

SYNOPSIS OF SCENE.

Fitchburg is James's "hum" town since March 18, 1875—the date of his birth. Little Jimmy was a tough kid from the tough part of town, and he didn't car who knew it. He was Irish then, same as now, and naturally fought and played baseball from breakfast to supper. And as he grew older it became necessary that he help provide for the extremes which bounded his youthful pleasures—breakfast and supper. That was what brought the plumber's trade a good helper, and you and I to the opening of the first act.

Ting-a-ling!

Curtain rises to find young Jimmy Calahan going to work with a kit of plumber's tools and a BALL AND GLOVE!

Second Act—Same.

Third Act—Same.

Fourth Act—Ditto.

Fifth Act—Dramatic scene in plumber's shop. Our hero is fired in cold blood for playing ball on the job!

CURTAIN.

Jackson Tops the Bunch, With Cobb in Second Place, Speaker, Collins and Lajoie Are Close Behind

Joe Jackson and Tyrus Cobb have begun to see-saw in their race for the American league batting honors. Several times during the past ten days Jackson has been relegated to second place, but right now he is at the top of the list, with an average of .405, while Cobb is next in line, with .388.

One of the sensations of the past week has been the rapid rise of Danny Murphy, the Athletic captain. He has jumped to the .378 mark and now ranks third, being ahead of Tris Speaker, who is hitting .376. It is the same old bunch that hangs around the top, all climbing one week and slumping a bit the next, but never enough to get far down the list. It is Jackson, Cobb, Speaker, Collins, Lajoie, Baker and Crawford who always maintain good marks.

Jackson maintains his lead at hitting, while Collins is the best run getter, Jackson has made 134 hits for a total of 206 bags, while Collins is best at the run scoring game, with 89 scores. Cobb has already outdistanced all the base stealers, except Milan, and figuring that he has been in only about half as many games as the Washington star, Cobb's base stealing average is the best in the game.

Here are the averages of all players over the .275 mark through the games of Wednesday:

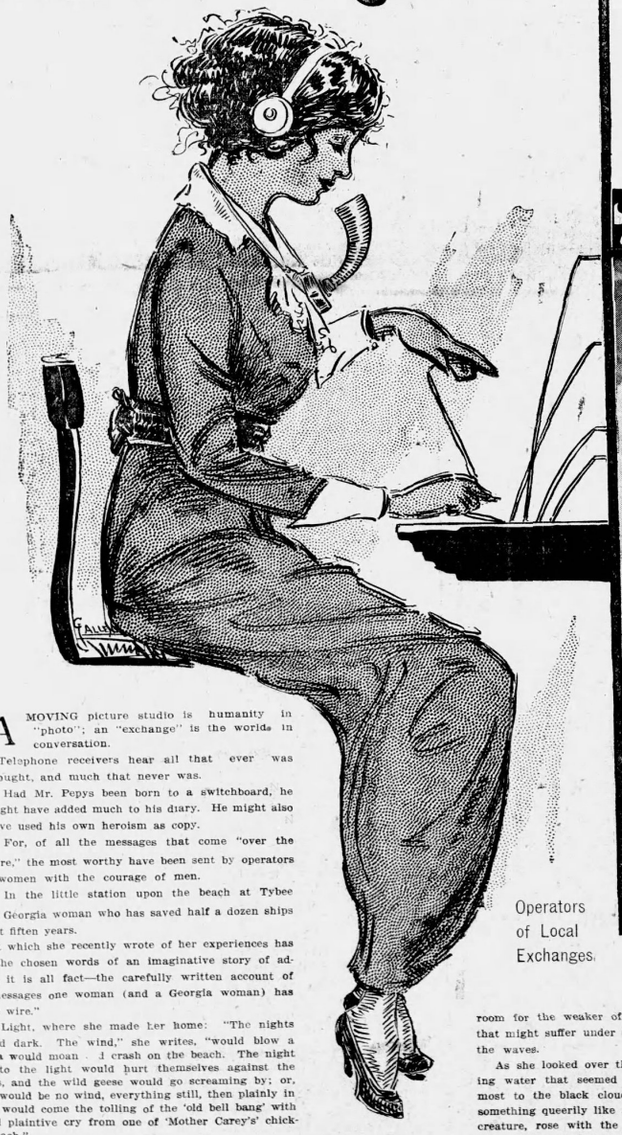
Over the Wire



Operators of Local Exchanges.

Telephone receivers hear all that ever was thought, and much that never was.

Had Mr. Pepys been born to a switchboard, he might have added much to his diary. He might also have used his own heroism as copy.

For, of all the messages that come "over the wire," the most worthy have been sent by operators —women with the courage of men.

In the little station upon the beach at Tybee Island, lives a Georgia woman who has saved half a dozen ships within the last fifteen years.

An account which she recently wrote of her experiences has the air and the chosen words of an imaginative story of adventure. But it is all fact—the carefully written account of what brave messages one woman (and a Georgia woman) has sent "over the wire."

At Tybee Light, where she made her home: "The nights were long and dark. The wind," she writes, "would blow a gale. The sea would moan and crash on the beach. The night birds flying to the light would hurt themselves against the window panes, and the wild geese would go screaming by; or, maybe, there would be no wind, everything still, then plainly in from the sea would come the tolling of the 'old bell bang' with an occasional plaintive cry from one of 'Mother Carey's' chickens on the beach."

THE NOVEMBER STORM.

Out of the northwest, one November afternoon, the wind came roaring, the sea piled in waves and the little station on the beach creaked in every timber.

Mrs. Short, this real, actual heroine, stood in the operating room, high on the top floor, searching the sea with spy glasses. She was looking for ships in distress, "her ships." During fifteen years' residence on the island she had come to look upon all ships which entered or left the bay as her wards. When the wind grew rough she searched the sea from the "exchange" room for the weaker of "her ships" that might suffer under the attack of the waves.

As she looked over the dark tossing water that seemed to reach almost to the black clouds, a clumsy something queerly like a hurt stupid creature, rose with the swell of the sea, and floundered into the trough.

The glasses told her the true story. This poor stupid thing was one of her fishing smacks sorely in danger. She had noticed it go out that morning, and had seen that it was one of the weakest of her ships and, when the wind began to rise, she had feared for it.

No one else knew of the ship floundering helplessly in the sea, waterlogged, hulking, likely to sink at any moment. No one else could offer aid. It was only her message "over the wire" from the little telephone station on Tybee Island that brought succor to the souls aboard the fishing smack.

But as her story tells it, there was one ship she

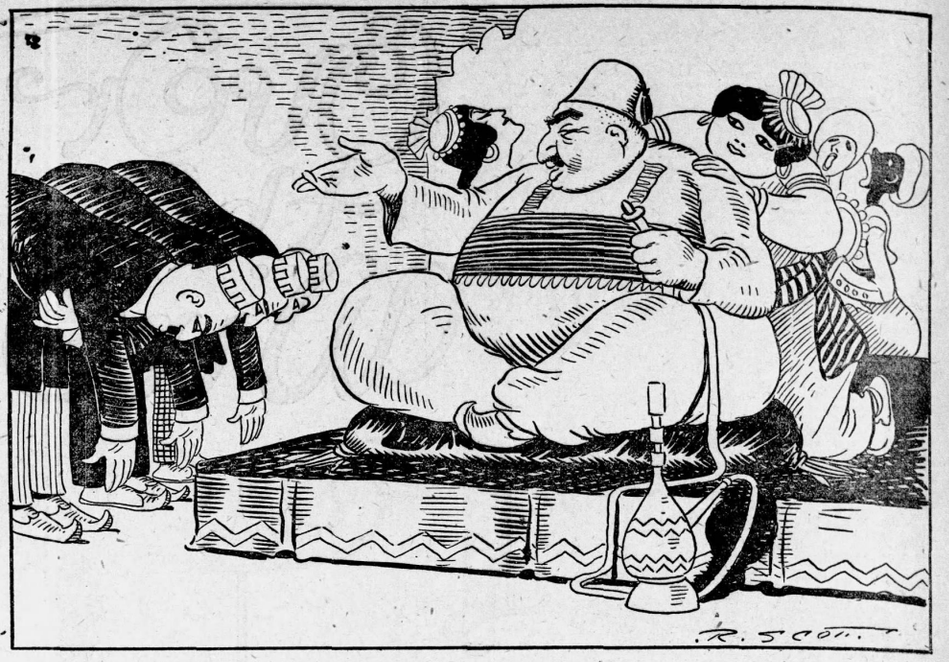
MR. DOOLEY ON SLANG

BY FINLEY PETER DUNNE.

"Th' prime ministher iv England may be gettin' up from th' tay table an' sayin, 'where's me lid? I mus' skiddo.'"



"Th' sultan iv Turkey turns to his grand vizyers an' says: 'I shud sob, but I've lost me pocket hankerchief.'"

"DEAR me, dear me," said Mr. Dooley, with a paper in his hand. "We're in throuble with th' English again. We're always in throuble with thim ongrateful people. There's no plazin' these cousins iv ours be marredge. Here's a fellow in this pa-aper, a profissor at Oxfurd colledge, that's about ready to declare war on us because he says we're corruptin' th' dilect they call th' English language in England with our slang.

"Yes, sir, 'tis thrue. An' to think iv all we've done f'r thim people. Haven't we staked thim to some iv th' most marredgeable fortunes in this counthry to arnamint their peerage an' put modhren plumbin' into their ancient castles that was built be arrystocrats that used musk whin th' spicifications called f'r a bath? Hasn't me frind Armour made it onnicissary f'r anny but th' poorest to ate th' roast beef iv merry England? Haven't we rescued thim fr'm th' stovepipe hat an' showed thim how an Englishman can be a gintleman in summer an' still not suffer a sunsthroke? Haven't we inthrajooced th' turkey throt an' th' tango so that manny iv Briton's fairest daughters that wanst wud blush in a quadrille can now festoon thimsilves around their partners an' have a fit as gracefully as anny American lady, no matther how colored she may be?

"We have. We're civilizin' that mis'rable little island, an' small thanks do we get f'r our pains. They make slow progress in westhern culture, to be sure. It's now more thin thirty years since we give thim th' tillyphone an' they're just beginnin' to larn to say 'Hello' into it. Whin Hogan wint over there on a secret mission to blow up th' house iv lords, which he wud've done if a careless porther hadn't dhropped his thrunk at Queenstown, he see a sign in front iv a saloon in London marked: 'American dhrinks sarved here.' With th' pathriotic idee iv encouragin' American art abroad he wint in an' pleaded with th' bartinder, who was a lady, f'r a gin fizz. 'I'm sorry,' says th' lady, 'but we have no olives. But I'll make ye a mint julep if ye'll wait till I sind out f'r some eggs,' she says.

"It's very disheartenin'. Still, they do make some pro-gress. I've often said an American with a rugged constitution, who can stand their climate an' their cheese, an' is used to roughin' it an' can put up with th' discomforts common to all new civilizations, an' doesn't catch th' sleepin' sickness can have a good time over there wanst he has masthered th' language. An' th' best way to masther th' language iv anny furrin counthry is to inthrajooce ye'er own.

"That's what we've been doin' an' that's what this Oxfurd pro-fissor is ravin' about. He says American slang is corruptin', degradin', an' mutiatin' th' ancyent British tongue. 'It is revoltin' to anny wan,' he says, 'who has quaffed at th' fount iv English ondefiled to see th' inroads th' patter iv these barbaryans has made in our island slang. It has penethrated all classes iv s'ciety an' its slimy thrail is over all our speech. Where we in th' goolden days befure th' American invasion wud speak iv "splosh," a sound an' hearty wurrud signifyin' th' ready, they compel us to use th' vulgar expressyon "dough." Ign'rant iv all th' laws iv good usage in language, they call a person iv less thin ordhinry intilligince a "boob" or a "bonehead," manin', iv coorse, that th' defective is a "mug." But if they mane mug, why don't they say mug? Th' common term, racy iv th' soil, f'r a prom'nent feature iv th' human countynance, was formerly "boko." Now, I undherstand, it is supplanted aven in th' best circles be th' ne—I can't pro-nounce this wurrud, Hinnissy — neealogism — "beezer." We had a thurly descriptive wurrud f'r an onruly person iv th' lower ordhers. We called him a "Hooligan," which conveys th' precise manin', besides indicatin' that all onruly persons iv th' lower ordhers is Irish. They use th' vulgar expressyon "tough." To suggist admiration f'r an action they coarsely say it is "bully," while our more refined term wud be "top-hole" or, in certain instances, "spiffing." We have a stately ol' name f'r an officer iv th' polis. We call him a "bobby." That describes him acerately. It is historically correct an' manes just what it says. That's what a polisman is. He's a bobby, an' no person who reveres th' language that Milton sung in iver thought iv callin' him a "cop." Th' other day I heerd wan iv these outlanders refer to a beautiful lady as a pippin. She was, indeed, a toppin' fine gal, but why pippin? Let Englishmen who have their counthry's slang at heart have a care. Already th' Goth has infected our music halls, our univarsities, an' aven more exalted circles. His rude speech is insidyously creepin' into our most refined convarsation, an' onless we make a determined stand his bloomin' cant will, as these Beotians wud say, put our noble English chatter on th' blink.'

"Ye can see he's cross about it. It's th' first time I've iver been called a Beotian. I'm goin' to look it up in th' ditchnry, an' if it's what I think it is I'm goin' to write to our corner-stone-layer exthraordinary an' afther-dinner-speaker plinipotinchry about it. I don't want to interrupt his officyal jooties as a parlor intertainer, but I'll have no man call me out iv me name without a protist.

"An' with th' best intintions in th' wurrurld not to deface th' English speech, what ar-re we goin' to do about it? I'd like to know. I'm th' last man to want to make Englishmen talk diff'rent fr'm what they do. There ar-re too few funny things in th' wurrurld as it is. I r-read th' article to Hogan an' he says it's a purely economic question. Here we ar-re on this side, he says, th' gr-reatest mannyfacthrers iv slang iver known. We projooce yearly more slang thin anny ten Euro-peen nations an' fifty times more thin we need at home. No American citizen is obliged to use th' same slang f'r more thin a day at a time. Th' poorest can find a fresh supply ivry mornin' in his favrite journal. If there was nawthin' else our common language cud subsist on th' game iv baseball alone.

"What ar-re we goin' to do with th' oversupply? We've got to find a market f'r it, so, says Hogan, we ship it all over th' globe ontil on th' plains iv Arabya th' camel dhriver addhresses th' ship iv th' desert as a skate; in far off Cathay, bedad, a mandharin is like as not to ordher th' executioners to bean a pris'ner; an' th' sultan iv Turkey, whin told that th' Balky Christyans ar-re murdhrin' each other over th' land they hooked fr'm him, turns to his grand vizyers an' says: 'I shud sob, but I've lost me pocket hankerchief.'

"Nachrally, Hogan goes on, our best customers ar-re th' English, because, he says, their language is more like th' parent stem thin anny other. They raise some slang, but it's iv a poor quality an' is mostly used be th' wurrukin' classes. Th' colonies ship over gr-reat quantities, but it is not taken because no Englishman wants people to think he comes fr'm wan iv thim colonies iv which ivry Englishman is proud, an' justly so. So they have to consume gr-reat quantities iv American slang, which they injye, although it chokes thim, because they don't know what it means.

"There's no way iv our previntin' thim fr'm debauchin' their ancyent language with our product, but we owe it to oursilves to see that they get it fresh. It's Hogan's idee that we mannyfacther slang in this abundant counthry so fast that be th' time wan iv our happy invintions gets goin' in England it's what he calls obsylete in this counthry an' is no longer used aven be th' clargy. It is mortifyin' to an American who is used to changin' his slang at laste wanst a week to go into a store in London where there's a sign marked 'American Spoken Here' an' find that there's nawthin' in stock but old, sicond hand, discarded jabber that he was usin' durin' th' Rosenfelt administhration. There's a group iv Americans in London who cillybrate th' Foorth iv July ivry year be weepin' over th' occasion f'r it. What cud they do betther, onless they wint to live on th' continint, to promote good feelin' between th' two gr-reat branches iv th' English speakin' race thin to see that our cousins-in-law ar-re supplied with fresh American slang ivry day? As it is now, at this very minyit th' prime ministher iv England may be gettin' up fr'm the tay table an' sayin', 'Where's me lid? I mus' skiddoo,' whin anny schoolboy in this counthry cud tell him that th' proper form is, 'I got to bate it. Where's me Kelly?' An' doesn't a fellow who rises in th' house iv lords an' says, 'Th' right hon'rable geezer has handed us a lemon,' want to bite his tongue out whin he gets a note fr'm Prisidint Eliot, who's in th' gall'ry, tellin' him that th' modhren Attic usage wud be, 'Th' right hon'rable mutt has tossed us the bunkerino'?

"Now, if this here London assocyation iv promoters iv good feelin' an' copper mines did their jooty they'd have an agent in New York, Hogan thinks, to cable over th' latest changes. They'd be posted on th' bulletin boord befure th' eager crowd: 'Speak—F'r chatter use bark ontil further notice, as, "Bryan Still Barkin'.—Daily Paper." 'How jolly bully,' says th' Hon'rable Algernon Fitz-Eustace. 'I'll make a note iv it. Rippin',' an' he hurries off to spring it on th' daughter iv th' jook who has taunted him on wastin' his oppurchunities. He doesn't let it go at wanst. No, sir. He nurses it in his bosom. He threasures it up till th' right moment. Fin'lly whin his rival Lord Topnoodle, who's supposed to be a leader iv fashion, vintures to remark, 'I didn't think Balfour's chatter in th' house las' night was such a much,' Algernon turns on him with a supeeryor air an' says icily: 'No? Why, I thought he barked pretty fair.' His rival dhrops th' taycup in his embarrassmint, turns crimson, an' laves th' room bitin' his nails. 'Ain't Algy wise to all th' new dope?' says th' lovely Lady Ethelinda. 'Sure thing, Mike,' says th' jook's daughter, her pale face flushin' with pride as she dhraws Algy aside an' asts him to take her f'r a buggy ride. An' th' nex' week th' Coort Chronicle comes out with a notice that 'Algy Fitz-Eustace, gintleman-in-waitin' to th' Main Uproar, will Take th' Count with his Lizzie at th' Bindery in Hanover Square on Choosdah.'

"Faith, whin us free born Americans get through with th' English language we'll make it look as though it had been run over be a musical comedy. I'm proud iv th' spread iv our slang. But, bein' advanced in years, I find wan fault with America's principal conthribution to th' lithrachoor iv th' wurrurld. It's too quick f'r me. I can't keep up with it. An', mind ye, I had a good idjacation. I thought I was thurly grounded whin I left th' docks. Our grajatin' class was supposed to be wan iv th' slangiest iver turned out be th' ol' colledge. We cud har'ly undherstand each other. But today all me idjacation goes f'r nawthin' an' ye'er oldest boy laughs at me attimpts to engage him in aisy convarsation. Nayether iv us iver knows what th' other is talkin' about. Still, it's good to have him around. With th' help iv th' deef an' dumb alphybet he can thranslate th' newspapers an' most iv th' short stories in th' magazines so that I can almost undherstand thim. But I wisht ye'd speak to Brother Ambrose an' have him lend th' child a few English wurruds ten years ol' an' upward to use outside iv th' schoolroom.

"Slang is a sthrange thing annyhow. Th' larned Hogan says what's slang today may be dacint language twinty years fr'm now. 'Wurruds ar-re funny things,' he says. 'Bad wurruds become good wurruds an' good wurruds become bad wurruds over night. A wurrud will start be manin' wan thing an' in th' coorse iv a few years it'll mane exactly th' opposite, an' no wan can tell why. Some iv th' best wurruds in th' language was dhreadful slang at wan time. Th' fact is,' he says, 'all wurruds was slang in a kind iv a way whin they started. Wan iv ye'er ancesthors frightens a hen an' sees she's left something on th' ground. He pints at it an' exclaims in surprise "Egg!" He happens to be a man iv standin' in th' community, havin' kilt a lot iv people with his stone hatchet, an' a fellow who hears him an' wants to be in style cries "Egg" ivry time he sees th' thropy, an' so it goes ontil an egg is a egg ivrywhere English is spoke. But th' Fr-rinch calls it a "oof," which shows that whin th' first Fr-rinchman see wan he started back in alarm an' cried "Oof!"

"'Now,' says Hogan, 'suppose ye'er revered ancesthor had happened to use some other exclymation. Issintyally,' says he, 'an egg is no more entitled to be called an egg thin I am. We're used to eggs bein' called eggs, an' we think th' name describes thim, but if ol' Granpa Stone Hatchet Dooley had said "Glub" we'd be ordhrin' scrambled glubs at th' prisint minyit. Father Kelly says he can remimber whin th' wurrud "scientist" was slang. Th' fellow that first used it was looked down on as low an' vulgar, an' whin he sprung it a famous grammaryan fainted an' siv'ral ladies left th' room. But today th' most innocint might say it without a blush. It's as good a wurrud as anny an' is often used about dentists an' prize fighters.

"'Slang is experimentin' in language,' says Hogan. 'If a slang wurrud sticks it don't take it long to lift its impydint head amongst wurruds that has a linage as far back as Chaucer (if I have th' name iv his frind right). If we didn't use wurruds that was slang three hundherd years ago no wan cud tell what we were talkin' about. But people wud be surprised if they knew where most iv th' slang they use comes fr'm. I'll let ye into th' secret,' he says. 'It comes fr'm th' thieves. They invint language to conceal thought fr'm th' polis. Afther a long time a polisman catches a thief an' larns a slang wurrud fr'm him. Th' copper tells it to a reporther, who prints it in his pa-aper. A theatrical manager reads it an' has a play wrote around it. A pretty girl hears it an' tells it to a pote an' th' pote puts it into a pome. A fellow that's gettin' up a ditchnry sees it in th' pome an' sticks it into his book, an' afther that it's a part iv th' officyal language an' is sildom or niver used in th' ballroom or on th' stage,' says Hogan.

"Me own idee is that we ought to be more careful in th' use iv this gr-reat gift to our favored nation. We ought to masther it so's to be able to keep up with new authors an' to convarse with th' young. Manny a misundherstandin' has arose between father an' son because th' parent was careless an' didn't go out nights to th' language classes in th' billyard academies. But I wud like to see our chats sprinkled here an' there with wurruds aged a month or two. In me own talk with you I thry to employ on'y th' purest English, as ye may've noticed. I sildom dhrop into slang excipt whin th' situation demands it. This bein' so, an' as th' night is wanin' an' th' hour iv midnight fast approaches, an' th' price iv gas is high, I wud feel obliged to ye if ye wud go chase ye'ersilf."

Raiding Darktown's Monte Carlos

BY

Ward S. Greene

"Natch'ral!—wop!"

Eight pairs of eyeballs rolled downward, eight black faces gleamed in the wavering lantern light, while Yaller Jim strained forward. His fingers snapped twice.

On the soiled mattress the two little ivory cubes spun for a second, cracked together, and carromed off. Five black dots and two black dots stared upward.

"Read 'em and weep," crooned Jim. His lean fingers swept up the nickels and dimes, closed over the dice; the palms of his hands rubbed together, the cubes of ivory rasped, the arm shot forward, the cubes spun once more, and again the black dots stared up, eleven of them. Yaller Jim had passed for the eighth time.

The room was close and heavy with the fumes of tobacco and cheap whiskey. The black faces were set, streaming with perspiration; somebody was breathing hard; the voice of the man with the bones as he pleaded with the ivories, was the only sound in a gripping stillness.

The eyes of the negroes were aflame with the lust of gambling, their ears were deaf to every sound save the rattle of the dice.

THE RAID.

Such was the scene which greeted the eyes of County Officer Walter Cheshire as he peered through the dirty glass window pane of the broken-down shack near Howell's station. It was winter, a bleak February night in the year 1908.

As the officer blew softly on his chilled hands and fingered the cylinder of his revolver he was wishing that there were more men outside the shack and less within. Tomorrow is the thirteenth day of February, he thought to himself, and just thirteen years ago tomorrow I became a member of the Fulton county police force. Officer Cheshire rather wished there was a rabbit's foot in his pocket.

He said something in a hoarse voice to the officer beside him and sneaked another glance through a crack in the battered window shade.

The scene inside had changed but little. He could see the ring of feverish faces still intent on the game. The lantern on the table cast long black shapes into the corners of the squalid room, flickered on the rows of white teeth and the woolly heads.

Officer Cheshire suddenly experienced the well known but disquieting feeling that unknown eyes were boring into his back. He shifted his gaze to the corner of the room and encountered that of the lookout, glazed with terror.

The policeman drove one hand through the window pane and crashed into the room. A man screamed, a well-aimed blow shattered the lantern into bits, the room was plunged in darkness.

Cheshire lurched into some one. Around him in the stifling blackness men were kicking and clawing at each other in an effort to gain the door. Panting and breathing oaths, gamesters and officers struggled hand-to-hand.

CHESHIRE IS WOUNDED.

Cheshire stumbled over two forms gripped together and closed his hand on a man's shirt collar. A whisky bottle whizzed by his ear. At the same instant a spurt of flame stabbed the dark, the roar of a revolver and the smell of powder smoke mingled together, and Officer Cheshire toppled to the floor.

When the lantern was lighted it revealed three trembling darkies clutched by the fingers of as many officers. On the floor the fourth policeman was prone, his uniform stained a deep red. He lay face upward, the crimson on his chest widening into a great splotch.

Officer Cheshire had been shot through the right lung on the eve of the anniversary of his introduction to the Fulton county police force, the 13th of February.

They say that when a man is shot through his lungs his hours on this old earth are numbered. But Officer Cheshire did not die. They nursed him for week after week as he lay helpless on the sick-bed, they probed for the bullet, found it, and put him on the high road to recovery.

Today Lieutenant Cheshire walks through the streets of Atlanta as jauntily as if he never saw a crap game and did not know what it meant to feel the flaming course of a bullet through his chest.

That night in 1908 was the first and last time he was ever shot while a county policeman, despite the fact that he has served for thirteen years and over on the force. The thirteenth anniversary came on the thirteenth day of last February, a day when Lieutenant Cheshire was mighty careful where he stepped.

His experience with the Howell Station crap shooters was not an exceptional one, for a policeman; for raiding crap games is the most dangerous assignment a Fulton county officer can have.

The old game of craps, which they say originated in Africa, but which makes the blood of the born gambler hum through his veins like old wine, is the passion of the negro.

A colored man could no more keep out of a crap game than he could resist a slice of red watermelon on the hottest day of July. Senator W. E. H. Searcy, who had a bill against dicing on the Sabbath before the general assembly, says that down in his country the negroes go to church and that most of the deacons slip off to the grove when the sermon begins to shoot craps.

Whether any Fulton county deacons shoot craps or not, we know not, but the lesser brethren of the community will walk two miles just to place their only nickel on one pass.

In the old days you couldn't walk a block down Decatur street without flushing a brave little crap game every two alleys. And you don't have to go far now to see 'em roll.

Crap shooting is not confined to the negro, of course, but the black man first brought the game to this country and has certainly made it his own.

He will play it anywhere and everywhere. Add to four negroes a quart of blind tiger booze, a nickel apiece, and a pair of bones, and the result is craps. In the country towns every secluded corner around the railroad is a gambling den, every bale of cotton hides a bunch of crap shooters.

In Atlanta it is no better. The county police are kept constantly on the jump to get the inveterate crap shooters. These offenders shoot craps in houses, in barns, in box cars, up alleyways, on street corners, in elevator shafts, anywhere there is a smooth spot and a promise of no interruption.

THE GAME'S FASCINATION.

Sometimes a game is raided and every negro in the bunch will back off against the wall and swear he was "jest lookin' on, boss." Again the shooters will pocket the bones, slap a big foot on the money, and assume innocence.

Most often it is a dive for a doorway, a window, a chimney, any opening that promises freedom. A darky will bolt straight through an officer's legs when he sees that khaki uniform coming in the door. He will dare death to escape arrest. County officers have raided crap games on the second floor of houses and have watched their prey jump to the street. Lieutenant Cheshire says he raided a game not long ago where three darkies leaped from the third story. They were all carried away in ambulances. One bit the sidewalk and broke his leg, another followed the second right out the window, and lit on top of him halfway to the ground. Both were considerably bruised.

But another method is resistance. The lure of the dice has so fired the shooter's blood that he is drunk with excitement by the time the game is raided.

A half hour of shooting and the negroes are dead to the world. There is nothing on earth for them but a pair of dice and the money. To flip the bones across the board and see a "natural" is bliss matched only when the other fellow rolls 'em out and "box-cars" stare him in the face.

Suppose a darky rolls a four on the first shot. He can keep on shooting until he repeats, "makes his point," or until he "falls off," that is, rolls a seven. Suppose he flips out the dice again and again, rolls "Phoebe," "box-cars," "Big Dick," anything but the two crucial points. He becomes so wrought up and "hot" that when he sees "little Joe" or a seven come out he is at fever pitch.

Suppose when that darky is "looking for a four" and has rolled again and again in vain that just as the four rolls out a cop sticks his head in the door and yells "hands up!" Will that negro quietly elevate his arms beside his ears and tell the policeman "how-do-you-do?" Not hardly. The chances are he will grab a dirk from his sock or pull a gun from his pocket. Then there is hot stuff to pay on both sides.

As a genuine fight promoter this crap game is worse than drink. It is dangerous to the shooters, dangerous to him who interrupts, a lure that will not let one go and that drives to deeds of devilry.

OFFICER CHESHIRE, WHOSE CLOSEST CALL WAS A RAID UPON A DICE GAME

WOMEN IN KANSAS STUDYING HOW TO VOTE INTELIGENTLY

KANSAS CITY—The women of Kansas are to be taught how to use the ballot intelligently. In the next state general election, which will be in November, 1914, three hundred thousand women of Kansas will be eligible to register and vote for all state and county officers and congressmen. It will be the first time that the women of that state will have had an opportunity to vote in a state election. For twenty years they have had the legal right to vote in municipal elections. A constitutional amendment adopted last fall gave the women equal rights with the men in choosing the officials in the nation, the state and the county.

That right was gained for the women of Kansas by the Equal Suffrage Association of Kansas, who conducted the campaign for equal suffrage and won it. Having got the vote for the women of Kansas, that association had no reason for further life, and at the last meeting of the organization in Lawrence, May 19-20, it was disbanded.

The women had been given the franchise, but of what benefit would it be to them, or others, unless they used it intelligently and rightly? And so the women of the Equal Suffrage association, disbanding the old fighting organization, created the Kansas Good Citizenship league, including in its membership all those who were members of the old militant association. The different districts of the old association remain with their same officers and working force and meeting places in every county in the state. And for them a new constitution and a new aim was adopted.

The same women who carried the fight for equal suffrage through to victory will now undertake to educate the women of the state how to exercise the franchise.

THE HEADQUARTERS IN LAWRENCE.

The headquarters of this school for women voters is in Lawrence. Its officers are: Mrs. T. H. Chalkley, of Lawrence, president; Mrs. W. R. Stubbs, of Lawrence, wife of former Governor Stubbs, first vice president; Mrs. Yaggy, of Hutchinson, second vice president; Mrs. Genevieve Munson, of Pittsburg, treasurer; Miss Helen N. Eacker, of Lawrence, formerly superintendent of schools in Ottawa, recording secretary; Mrs. W. T. Johnson, or Wichita, auditor.

All of those officers were active in the recent campaign for votes for women in Kansas.

The expenses for the campaign for educating the women how to vote is to be met from an annual fee of fifty cents from each member, and from free voluntary contributions to the cause.

To carry on the work, two committees have been appointed, one known as the outlook committee and the other the program committee.

The chairman of the outlook committee is Mrs. W. A. Johnston, wife of the chief justice of the supreme court of Kansas. The work of the outlook committee will be to keep constantly on the watch for bad legislation and try to head it off, and to work for the passage of beneficial legislation, and especially for legislation that will make the path smoother for the woman who must work for a living.

The chairman of the program committee is Mrs. Frederick A. G. Cowper, of Lawrence, wife of a professor in the state university. The program committee is already at work preparing a course of study and reading for the new women voters or the state.

Mrs. Cowper is now in Chicago with Jane Addams, studying the work of Hull House and getting ideas for the campaign of education.

SUBJECTS THE WOMEN WILL STUDY.

The program committee, at its last meeting, decided to send out as its first educational course a plan of study that would acquaint the women with the following subjects: The state department of health and pure food; home economics and sanitation; public ownership of public utilities; work and duties of the public utilities commission; proposed amendments to the state constitution; labor problems, minimum and maximum wage scales, and child labor.

The men politicians of Kansas already admit that the women control the situation. They wield the balance of power between the different political parties. A prominent politician said recently that 150,000 women would vote in the next general election. He thought a large per cent of them would vote as did their husbands and brothers. But he estimated that there would be enough independents voting all one way to swing any election.

Big Game Hunting Almost Like Slaughter

LONDON.—"Hunting in East Africa might be described as sometimes almost like slaughter," says Sir Thomas Dewar, former M. P., painter and author. "My best day's shooting was when I was privileged by the authorities to sit on the 'cow catcher' of the 'pay' train that once a month goes up the line of the Uganda railroad to pay the natives and bring them supplies of rice for the ensuing four weeks. We left Makindu, eighty miles from the seacoast, at daybreak. On the left was the game reserve and on the right the free shooting—free with the exception of the $250 paid for one's game license. We soon saw the spoor of rhino, packs of guinea fowl and covies of African grouse, smaller than the Scotch spurfowl—resembling a cross between a partridge and a pheasant—picking grit on the line, with hundreds of tulcan and African jays flying about. Monkeys covered the small mimosa trees. At one place there seemed more monkeys than trees.

"Within half an hour a herd of twenty-four water buck crossed the line from the reserve towards the free ground. I held up my hand and the train came to a dead stop. The water buck in an inquisitive sort of way looked at us from 100 yards distance. They were so accustomed to the train that familiarity had bred contempt. I selected the biggest and best and got him. It took several natives to carry him into the train and he proved to be the finest specimen I got in all my hunting in that country.

"The train started again and within another half hour a herd of impala—a fine buck and about fourteen hinds—stood and looked at us about seventy yards away. I performed the same operation. In the middle of breakfast a lion was reported. Before we could get in touch the driver had passed him by about four hundred yards. When I went back on the track I saw, to my intense mortification, the lion scampering into the bush some six hundred yards away.

"I took my place again on the locomotive buffers and my next shot was at a Coote's hartebeest. I was very proud of that as when the distance was measured it proved to have been at 530 yards. Next half a dozen hinds and a Grant's gazelle—a nice buck—were seen trotting along the line. The hinds crossed into the reserve and the train conductor, sitting beside me, dared me to try the experiment of hitting the buck, still trotting in front of the train which was traveling at about 20 miles an hour. I don't take any credit for the marksmanship, as it was the biggest fluke I ever made in my life, but I got the gazelle through the neck. The wheels of the train only missed his very fine horns by about a foot.

"That sort of thing continued until we steamed into Nairobi three hours late, but nobody complained as we had sufficient venison for everybody that cared to take it from the train.

The Black Hand Again!

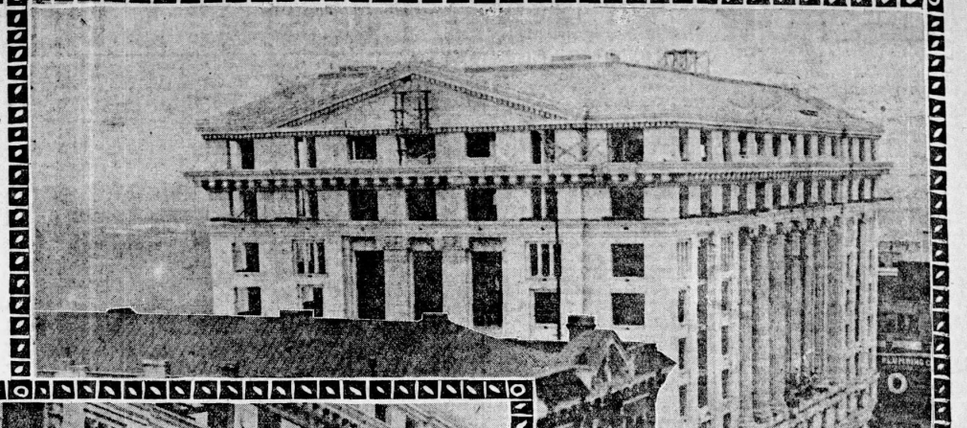
(From Judge.)

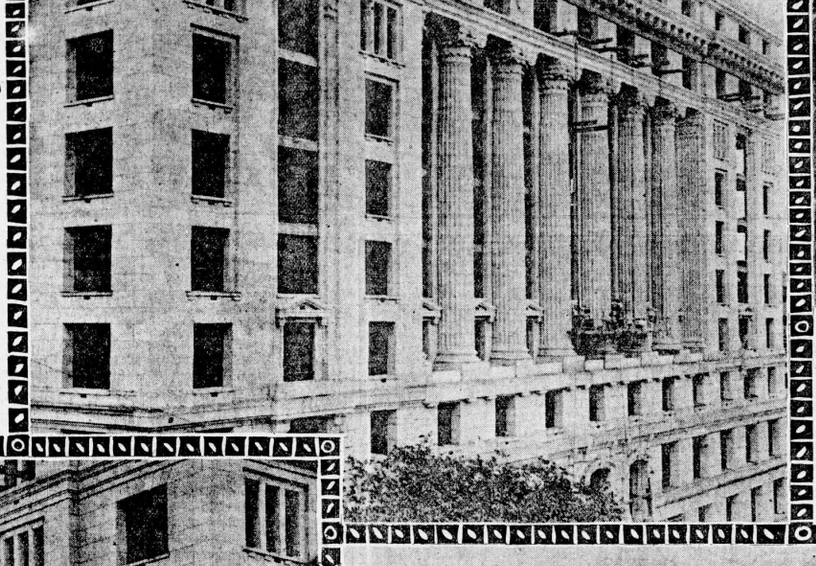
Mrs. Collins found the following Black Hand letter pinned to her door one morning:

"Deer Mis Collins—Onless you put a jar of jam, a hunk of chokolit cake, a apple pie an' a bag of candy down by the old well, we will steel your littel boy and keep him, onless you pas us a millyon dollars. The Black Hand."

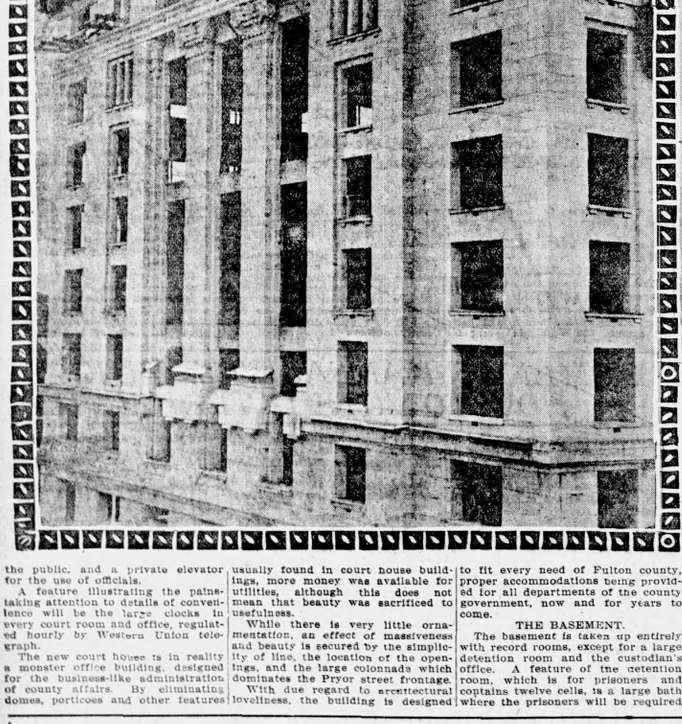
The letter has been handed to the police and the criminals will soon be brought to justice. To date, Mrs. Collins' little boy has been the only one seen in the vicinity of the old well.

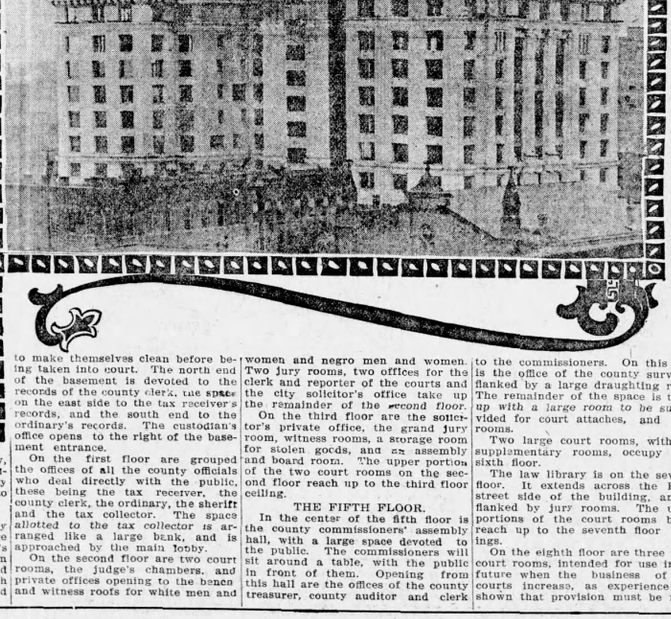
FULTON COUNTY'S MILLION-DOLLAR COURT HOUSE





VIEWS OF NEW COURT HOUSE





FULTON county's million dollar court house is nearing completion, and when it is finished will be the embodiment of the final word in court house construction. Fashioned outside of Georgia granite and terra cotta, and finished inside with shining Georgia marble, it will be a fit house of justice for the largest county in wealth and population of the state.

It is nine stories in height and contains approximately three million cubic feet. Its base occupies 26,000 square feet. The building is 116 feet wide and 230 feet long and rests on 1,250 concrete piles. There are ten court rooms, a grand jury room, and an assembly room for the county commissioners, each having an interior height of two stories and being large in proportion. The law library is a commodious room thirty-one feet wide and seventy-five feet long, and in time will house a splendid collection of books. There are five high speed elevators for the public, and a private elevator for the use of officials.

A feature illustrating the painstaking attention to details of convenience will be the large clocks in every court room and office, regulated hourly by Western Union telegraph.

The new court house is in reality a monster office building, designed for the business-like administration of county affairs. By eliminating domes, porticoes and other features usually found in court house buildings, more money was available for utilities, although this does not mean that beauty was sacrificed to usefulness.

While there is very little ornamentation, an effect of massiveness and beauty is secured by the simplicity of line, the location of the openings, and the large colonnads which dominates the Pryor street frontage.

With due regard to architectural loveliness, the building is designed to fit every need of Fulton county, proper accommodations being provided for all departments of the county government, now and for years to come.

THE BASEMENT.

The basement is taken up entirely with record rooms, except for a large detention room and the custodian's office. A feature of the detention room, which is for prisoners and contains twelve cells, is a large bath where the prisoners will be required to make themselves clean before being taken into court. The north end of the basement is devoted to the records of the county clerk, the space on the east side to the tax receiver's records, and the south end to the ordinary's records. The custodian's office opens to the right of the basement entrance.

On the first floor are grouped the offices of all the county officials who deal directly with the public, these being the tax receiver, the county clerk, the ordinary, the sheriff and the tax collector. The space allotted to the tax collector is arranged like a large bank, and is approached by the main lobby.

On the second floor are two court rooms, the judge's chambers, and private offices opening to the bench and witness roofs for white men and women and negro men and women. Two jury rooms, two offices for the clerk and reporter of the courts and the city solicitor's office take up the remainder of the second floor.

On the third floor are the sonicitor's private office, the grand jury room, witness rooms, a storage room for stolen goods, and an assembly and board room. The upper portion of the two court rooms on the second floor reach up to the third floor ceiling.

THE FIFTH FLOOR.

In the center of the fifth floor is the county commissioners' assembly hall, with a large space devoted to the public. The commissioners will sit around a table, with the public in front of them. Opening from this hall are the offices of the county treasurer, county auditor and clerk to the commissioners. On this floor is the office of the county surveyor, flanked by a large draughting room. The remainder of the space is taken up with a large room to be sub-divided for court attaches, and jury rooms.

Two large court rooms, with the supplementary rooms, occupy the sixth floor.

The law library is on the seventh floor. It extends across the Pryor street side of the building, and is flanked by jury rooms. The upper portions of the court rooms below reach up to the seventh floor ceilings.

On the eighth floor are three more court rooms, intended for use in the future when the business of the courts increase, as experience has shown that provision must be made in advance to take care of the county's growth.

The ninth floor, which is the top floor, is taken up by several unassigned offices, jury rooms, and the upper portions, or domes, of the court rooms on the sixth floor.

The entire building will be roofed with green tile, which will match with the strip of lawn, twenty feet wide, surrounding the court house.

The building is absolutely fireproof inside and outside, and contains every new and modern improvement. The first work started, something over eighteen months ago, and consisted in wrecking the old building. The actual construction has been under way about a year.

Most of the work remaining to be done consists of interior finishing. The reinforced concrete work is done and the granite work is finished except the steps. The terra cotta work is complete except for cleaning down and pointing. The wiring, heating and plumbing systems are installed except for the fixtures.

INTERIOR WOODWORK.

The interior woodwork will be mahogany, and the furniture will match. Approximately $100,000 will be spent for furniture and interior decorations. In the large two-story rooms, particularly handsome and dignified finishings will characterize the walls and ceilings. The corridors and stairways are Georgia marble.

All in all, Fulton county's court house is the largest and most modern in the south Atlantic states. When it was decided to erect a new building, the architects, A. Ten Eck Brown and Morgan & Dillon, together with the county commissioners made trips to the principal court houses of the county in search of ideas, and for a year before work was commenced the architects were busy on the plans and blueprints.

The county and court officials, the lawyers, the employes, were all invited to make suggestions for the convenience of the rooms they were to occupy, and were urged to visit the architect's offices and look over the plans and feel free to point out changes and improvements which occurred to them.

Thus in a sense the new court house expresses the ideas of the people who will use it, as well as the architects who designed it; and for this reason more than ordinary personal pride is felt in the building.

It was the aim of the county commissioners to make the building a public monument, a building of beauty and efficiency; and no pains or toil have been spared in the effort.

Best of all, perhaps, is the fact that the court house was designed by Atlanta architects, that mainly Georgia material went into the making of it, that Atlanta concerns had the various contracts, and that men of Atlanta supplied the labor.

Wellsville, Kansas, Which Has Never Had a Saloon

WELLSVILLE, a Kansas town of 750 population, has never had a saloon in all its forty-three years of existence.

It has never had a murder, nor a crime against woman, nor a criminal, nor a lawyer, nor a pauper, nor a thief, nor a town drunkard.

There is not a pool hall in the town, nor an unpainted house, nor a plank sidewalk, nor a weed patch, nor a loafer, nor a blackguard, nor a tough boy.

It is only forty-eight miles from Kansas City and yet it has grown men and women, and many young men and boys who never saw even the outside of a saloon or a pool hall.

It has a $25,000 schoolhouse in a 6-acre playground. It has brick and cement sidewalks and brick crossings on every corner. It has brilliant street lights at every crossing.

It is a town without vice—clean, wholesome, uplifting, with a fine moral tone; a town "where peace and plenty reigns."

An agent for a mail order liquor house went to Wellsville once and began to nose around among the men, seeking for orders. The women heard of it and fifteen of them got together, each with a horse-whip, and marched down to the Commercial hotel, where the whisky drummer was staying. He was eating dinner when they came in and asked for him. From his seat at the dining room table he saw those fifteen women with their horse-whips, and he heard them inquiring for him.

He did not stop to finish his dinner. He went out the kitchen way, and over a back fence, and around to a livery stable where he ordered a rig, double quick, and drove over to Baldwin. He sent back for his sample case.

One of the conspicuous things about Wellsville is its town pride. Everybody brags about the cleanliness of the town, the moral tone of it, the fine school, and especially about the fact that the town has never had a saloon, and never will have one.

NO SALOONS AS AN ASSET.

The Wellsville mother never has to worry about where her boy is at night. There is no place of vice nor evil way that he can get into unless he takes a train and goes far away. The wives of Wellsville don't have to sit and wonder where their husbands are. There are no drinking places to entice them.

"We consider that our best advertisement and most valuable asset is the fact that our town has never had a saloon," said Asa Converse, editor of the Wellsville Globe. "That one thing has brought more people here to live than any other. The fact that it has always been impossible to get a drink in this town has done more to make it a great trading point than any other. You ought to see this main street every Saturday when the farmers drive in from miles around to trade. Why, we had to spend $300 last year to put a hitch rack on both sides of the whole length of Main street, and on Saturdays there is not room to hitch another team. The street is packed, and you might spend the whole day there and never hear a rough word spoken."

Last term the high school in Wellsville had forty-eight pupils that came in from distant towns and surrounding counties and paid extra tuition and board for the privilege of attending school in a town without a saloon nor a joint.

"The guiding spirit of this town is to have it so clean and wholesome, physically and morally, that every other town will be jealous of us and copy after us," said C. A. Smith, who is building a $15,000 residence there.

The town is governed by a mayor and five councilmen whose only pay is fifty cents apiece for each council meeting they attend. As the council meets only once a month, each of these six men draw $6 a year.

And these men lay out sidewalks and see that they are built according to contract and look after the lights and streets and trash and health of the city, and keep a vigilant lookout that no joint nor bootlegger creeps in unawares.

JACKETS FROM THE COLORED REMNANT

THE short end, whether of silk, linen, cretonne or sheer fabric, demands an attention today that is as decided as dress patterns, for it is now a jacket possibility. The separate jacket, or the little coat incorporated with the dress, has had undisputed sway in summer styles, and is a feature that decidedly contributes to the appearance of a frock. Here is a group that promises becomingness to all types.

The military jacket at the left is of sulphur-colored satin. A long collar in front has white charmeuse ends, which are decorated with olive-shaped buttons of the yellow. A slanting line to the belt fastens the blouse, while a straight peplum is trimmed with buttons in groups of three on the edge. Three-quarter-length sleeves have deep cuffs of white, trimmed on the outer seams with buttons. Any plain silk in satin or ribbed finish can be made on this plan, trimmed with white or black satin on collar and cuffs.

The figured jacket in box cut is of foulard in white, with a design in eggplant purple. It is attractive when worn with white voile or linen dresses. The sleeves and jacket are in one, deep turned-back cuffs edging the three-quarter-length sleeves. Long, narrow revers are trimmed with corbeau-blue velvet on the edge, used as a narrow binding. The jacket is cut in a point at the center of the back, extending down in an easy line from the hips.

Nattier-blue mousseline de soie forms the third little jacket with a very shallow peplum. Fullness at the waist line is easily worn, for the sheer material allows it without bulk. The dropped armhole is pointed up and cuffs edged with pleated mousseline finish the sleeves. Long, narrow revers edge the bodice and a belt two inches wide defines the waist line.

A model suitable for early fall is the next jacket, which shows serge in a bright blue made on simple lines. It has pointed collar, tasseled at the ends, and the kimono cuffs are pointed also. These, by the way, are of pique. The side fastening is becoming, swinging from the revers to the belt. There are points on the peplum, dropping over each hip.

Heavy strawberry-pink linen or tissue eponge is the main part of the coat that has a figured collar and vest. These are of light-weight linen in dark blue with a pink dot and are edged at collar and cuffs with a narrow ruffle. Dropped armholes are defined by a cording, and the vest has the widest part at the belt. The coattails swing back in cutaway line from each side of the front. Fullness above the sleeves is evident.

Of heavy linen, the last design is made in a figured pattern in shades of mauve and nattier blue. The Russian lines are emphasized, the side fastening being shown by ball crocheted buttons on both blouse and peplum. The revers and cuffs are of white linen. This is a model especially attractive when worn with linen skirts in white or ecru.

Ever interesting is the question of millinery. In the group before you is emphasized the use of tulle, which, in its airy force, has swept Paris under a cloud. And Paris is smiling under the new style. Velvet is combined with tulle or maline on the majority of models which are represented here.

The hat with the upturned brim at the back, in sugar-scoop style, is the hat of the moment. It is shown in the first model in dark blue velvet, trimmed with a deep yellow rose and a pleating of dark blue tulle.

In the next model a double pleating of corbeau-blue tulle is held in by a band of blue velvet, which is tied in butterfly wings and two high wired loops at one side.

There is a decided increase in the brim of the garden party hat, or the hat for afternoon. It is shown in the large one with the straps of black velvet. A pleating of tulle finishes the edge and a pink tulle rose is placed on the side. Black tulle and a blue velvet crown are used.

In the last hat brown tulle is used for the large shirred brim. The crown is puffed and a bow of nattier-blue velvet trims the front.

Black net, tulle, blonde or maline—whichever you wish—is the vogue in millinery. It is lightweight, easily fashioned into becoming shapes, and is inexpensive. The rest is your own choice.

WHAT THE DRESSMAKER WANTS TO KNOW

WITH the earliest fashion items for spring came elusive whispers of a new style influence, but they were vague and went no further than a general reference to "far eastern tendencies."

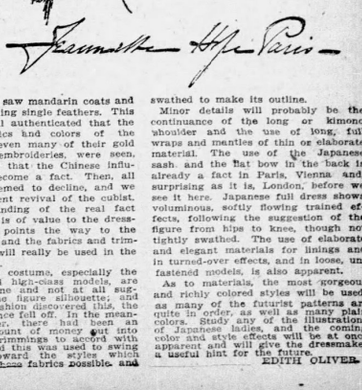
Then the costumes of the play, "The Yellow Jacket," began to be talked of as typical of a coming vogue of oriental styles, and we saw mandarin coats and hats with nodding single feathers. This seemed so well authenticated that the gorgeous fabrics and colors of the Chinese, and even many of their gold and colored embroideries, were seen, and it seemed that the Chinese influence would become a fact. Then, all at once, it seemed to decline, and we saw an apparent revival of the cubist.

An understanding of the real fact of the matter is of value to the dressmaker, as it points the way to the style features and the fabrics and trimmings which will really be used in the coming season.

The Chinese costume, especially the mandarin and high-class models, are straight in line and not at all suggestive of the figure silhouette, and as soon as fashion discovered this, the Chinese influence fell off. In the meantime, however, there had been an enormous amount of money put into fabrics and trimmings to accord with this mode, and this was used to swing the vogue toward the style which would make these fabrics possible, and the Japanese took the place of the Chinese.

The fundamental difference between these two lies in the fact that the Chinese is straight and the Japanese is draped. We are not overparticular nowadays about adhering strictly to conventional lines; therefore we shall see a great many incongruous, but nevertheless very charming, features which are not at all Japanese, but, in the main, the styles will follow at least the general idea of the Japanese in effect and color for the coming fall and winter.

The best guide for the dressmaker will be the use of full, long-line draperies, arranged to follow the figure, not



French Fashion Notes

PARIS, July 24.

WITH the season at Deauville at its height the promenades, casino and tearooms are thronged with a holiday crowd so perfectly attired that the tourist longs to linger and feast his eyes upon each one.

Almost every gown worn is a symphony of brilliant coloring or of plain white unrelieved save for a sash of some daring hue.

A well-known member of English society appeared to excellent advantage in a gown of lettuce-green silk brocade. The loose blouse of tete-de-negre mousseline de soie was arranged in surplice fashion over a triangular chemisette of raspberry-pink velvet. The elbow-length sleeves were finished at the bottom with bands of the velvet tied in a flat bow over the hips the brocaded silk was looped up in pannier fashion and the lower portion of the skirt was slashed directly in front.

The note of contrast is sounded stronger than ever and it is surprising how many odd colors are combined harmoniously to produce a wonderful effect.

A Poiret creation worn at the casino was developed of orange crepe de chine draped in a most complicated manner. About the waist was drawn a wide bayadere sash of dark blue silk brocaded with yellow and rose-colored flowers. The square-cut neck line of the bodice was outlined with a ruching of rose and blue ribbons, with dashes of black tulle.

Among the novelties noticed is the tapestry sash, which is a decided change from the Bulgarian belt with its bright coloring, since it imitates the antique tones of the tapestries.

Many of the smart summer gowns are adorned with wool embroidery, and red, terra-cotta, violet and orange are successfully combined in a conventional design on one model of white voile.

On another frock of blue crepon scarlet geraniums embroidered with wool form the only decoration, and a third model of cotton etamine has bunches of plums in artistic arrangement on the blouse and skirt.

The lingerie blouse of tulle is worn almost exclusively, though now and again a blouse of voile, transparent crepe or mousseline de soie is noticed. Narrow pipings of colored silk edge the V-shaped neck line and sleeves and trim the blouse front. The sleeves are either short and rather full or long and close-fitting, with cuffs extending far over the hands.

Flounces are playing an important part in the drama of style at present, for an extremely dainty frock of palest green silk has three flounces of lace covering the skirt. The bodice is fashioned to produce a bolero effect, the edges of which are outlined with pleated frills of green tulle.

A white mousseline de soie frock is composed entirely of pleated flounces beginning at the waist and ending at the hem. The bodice is of the picturesque fichu type, the ends crossing in front and tying at the back. Lupin-blue silk forms the broad girdle and a large black rose is tucked in at the corsage.

There is always something especially attractive in millinery, and hats composed entirely of black or white tulle are more in demand than any others. Flat folds of the tulle project beyond the brim and butterfly bows are poised at the back. One attractive hat of black tulle has the brim lined with a soft shade of pink and a double bow of pink and black moire ribbon and a pink rose form the trimming.

Among the hats of straw the smartest are those turned up sharply at the back. A delightful Georgette model is of currant-red tegal unadorned save for an immense black velvet bow placed flat against the upturned brim.

One of the handsomest picture hats seen at a garden party was of biscuit-colored chip covered with ivory chiffon. A wide band of sapphire-blue velvet ribbon encircles the crown and caught to the brim at the left side was a large pink rose.

There is a marked change in gloves caused by the revival of the short sleeves. They are exceedingly long, so that when pulled up to the required height they will continue to wrinkle about the arm. For this reason suede gloves are more in favor than kid.

The well-dressed woman has returned to the black shoe, which is decidedly more becoming than the colored varieties. Smart buckles adorn the shoes and they are worn with stockings to match the gown.

There are predictions that the crinoline tunic will be worn by the majority very soon, for many of tulle and mousseline wired at the bottom and worn over a scant underdress have already appeared.

Mantelets of biscuit-colored tulle or chiffon bordered with lace are extremely fashionable, and those of taupe-colored moire, with neck and sleeve frills of deep ecru lace, are equally smart.

The redingote promises to demand much attention this fall, for many designers are displaying models emphasizing this feature. Moire handbags are the rage of the moment. They appear in all sizes and shapes. White moire bags are decorated with bunches of small flowers embroidered with colored beads.

Bags of eyelet embroidery, with frames and handles of black velvet, are also among the novelties shown on the Rue de la Paix.

Heavy ribbed pique and ottoman silk are also considered smart for separate skirts.

The minuche hat has caused quite a furore in the millinery circles, for it appears in all phases—small, large, much turned up at the back or with just a slight roll held in place with bands of ribbon.

Moire ribbon or faille with a picot edge trims many of the dainty mid-summer hats. The popular colors are tapestry blue, dull rose and lemon yellow.

The popularity of plaid silk as a trimming will extend into the fall styles, for street costumes of serge, poplin and wool crepe designed for early fall wear have collars, cuffs and vests of this material.

Changeable faille, taffeta and moire fashion many of the fall costumes now on display. Vest effects of lace, tulle, contrasting silk or embroidery are a dominant feature.

Woolen fabrics of a rough knotted weave and others of lighter weight in the jacquard designs will be popular this fall and winter.

The loose fitted Japanese coat just below the hips in length is used by Cheruit in several handsome models developed of crepe, crepe de chine or charmeuse.

Many of the skirts in the fall models are draped, or have tunic overskirts arranged to disclose a pleated flounce about the feet.

COMMON SENSE in the HOME
EDITED by MARION HARLAND

CALLERS WHO LACK CONSIDERATION.

A LETTER has come to me from one of our constituency which I wish to talk over with the rest of you. The questions it contains are among those which touch all of us rather closely, and I would be interested to know the views upon them of some of the Cornerites. It follows:

"Here are some questions I would like to ask through your Corner. Why cannot our friends make their frequent calls on the busy housewife in the afternoon, instead of in the morning. In the afternoon most of the necessary work of the day is over; in the morning the time is full and yet callers come at that time and stay long, long hours, to the distraction of the overworked housewife. Why, too, will the thoughtless caller, when she comes in the winter, stand at the outer door and detain the housekeeper, who is only thinly clad for the house, while the visitor is heavily cloaked. I have known women to become thoroughly chilled in that way and take a heavy cold.

"Why, also, will mothers make calls, accompanied perhaps by two or three 'enfants terribles,' who upset the entire house with noise and quarrels, petitions for something to eat, and drive every one wild, without receiving a word of reproof, until the dearest friend of the mother is brought almost to despising a woman who was once her best friend?

"Why will women who know, or who ought to know how to save precious time for overworked housekeeping friends so often go Sunday visiting, sometimes with their entire families, with no thought of the added labor they are causing? To my mind Sunday visiting is a great nuisance as well as a sin. Surely a busy housekeeper has as much right as an ox or an ass to the day of rest! What do my sisters in the home say to this? L. L."

The word "thoughtlessness" is a partial reply to some of the queries. How far such thoughtlessness can go before it becomes absolutely criminal is a matter I hesitate to decide.

Morning for Hardest Task.

Times have been in my life—and they are by no means past—when I could not have applied so charitable a word as "thoughtless" to the course of any one who took my mornings from me. The old saying, "The morning hour has gold in its mouth," conveys a deep truth. It is the time to get hold of any piece of work, while mind and body are still fresh after the night's sleep and do your best with it.

I have known of some persons who claimed their brains and hands were in as good order in the afternoon or evening as earlier in the day, but such people are the exceptions. As a rule, we all of us count on the morning to do the hardest tasks that fall to us, to discharge the most exacting duties, and if there are lighter labors not to be disposed of then we postpone them until later in the day.

I do not mean to be harsh in my judgments, but when women take the morning hours for calling I am always tempted to feel either they have little to do at home or else they neglect their work. I have nothing to say of the women who go to classes in the morning or who stop in on their way to or from market to leave a necessary message. But I agree with my correspondent in censure of the callers who, as she says, "stay long, long hours, to the distraction of the overworked housewife."

Years ago a friend of mine used to inflict me in this way. She was a good friend, too, clever and one of the most delightful talkers I ever knew. She never came without bringing inspiration and stimulus with her. Yet with all my heart I wished she could have bestowed these at some other hours of the day than in the forenoon. In the afternoon or evening I would have welcomed her with much greater enjoyment and without the feeling of guilt that oppressed me even in the midst of her liveliest chat when I thought of the unfinished work awaiting me—work which I would have to crowd into time I had mentally set aside for other duties.

Do you recollect the story of the writer of the hymn beginning:

"I love to steal a while away
From every cumbering care,"

And of her reply to the unpleasant neighbor, who had the habit of breaking in on the writer's hours of work? "I wonder who helped you write that hymn?" said the neighbor spitefully, irritated at the success the verses had won. "I think you did!" said the writer, quietly.

Not all of us find relief from the irritation caused by ill timed visitors and delayed duties by pouring out our thoughts in song! I am afraid our vexation seeks other outlets and that the thoughtlessness of our callers provokes evil sensations in our breasts. The trouble our interruptions give us would not be wasted if we could learn from it not only lessons in patience and long suffering but also consideration which would deter us from breaking in on the hours of work held sacred by others.

So I come back to the word "thoughtless" as expressing the state of mind of most of those who steal our golden hours from us. They do not think we have claims upon our time which they are forcing us to disregard—claims we must meet later and at a heavier cost. I used to have one caller who calmly asserted she thought it was all folly on my part to stick to the house and my desk in the morning, and that she liked to come and call me from my pursuits.

Impertinent was the adjective that suited her case better than thoughtless, but I am glad to believe there are few like her. Lack of thought is also at the bottom of the habit of standing warmly clad in an open door and holding a lightly dressed hostess in talk.

Even charitable a term as that can hardly apply to the course of the mothers who take their unruly children to call with them and suffer them to indulge in the conduct described by my correspondent. It would be hard for me to believe even the most careless parent would permit such behavior did I not have memories to confirm her statements. I have sat in my own drawing room and seen a child scratch the varnish on an inlaid table with a pin. Jump up and down on the sofa with a force which endangered the springs, handle choice ornaments as he would his own toys, while the mother looked on unheeding the damage he was doing.

She Says She Can't Bear to Punish Them.

This is something I find it impossible to comprehend. I have never been able to grasp the measure of patience which will tolerate disobedience, noise, unruliness, or rudeness in small children, with only a weak protest or feeble apology.

Unruly Children a Nuisance.

I was discussing the subject the other day with a woman who displayed to me with pride the pictures of her five grandchildren.

"What good times you must have with them!" I exclaimed.

"Y-e-s," she said, rather doubtfully. "They are dear little things, but they don't come to visit us often, and when they do it rather wears me out."

"What is the matter with them?" I inquired.

The grandmother hesitated a moment.

"Well, the truth is, my daughter doesn't bring them up in the way I raised my children. She says she can't bear to punish them, and they just have their own way. She said to me one day she was punished too much when she was small, and I said: 'Indeed, you weren't! You needed every bit you got, and it did you good!' But she says she'll teach them to mind when they get older—and you know what that means.

Well I know what it means. Illustrations abound on all sides in the form of unruly children who make life a burden to all who come in contact with them. A mother may possibly have a right to make a martyr of herself to her children's lack of decent conduct, but she has no business to compel others to endure the nuisance of unruly youngsters, such as are described by the writer of the letter beginning this talk.

"I never like to go to that house until after the children are in bed," a friend said to me the other day when we spoke of making a call in the neighborhood. "There is no such thing as coherent and uninterrupted conversation as long as they are up. They chatter all the while, and quarrel among themselves, and the mother has absolutely no authority over them. When their father speaks they obey, but they pay no attention to anything the mother tells them to do."

Every one of us could recall plentiful instances of the kind, and yet be no nearer answering our correspondent's query as to why mothers take insubordinate children to call with them, or the question to which I would like to have a rational and satisfactory reply. Why do mothers permit their children to be unruly and disobedient in the first place? Will some of the Cornerites supply responses to both inquiries, that we may print them and discuss them?

Selfishness of Sunday Visiting.

The third question—as to Sunday visiting—I am afraid must be answered, not merely by the excuse of thoughtlessness but also by the charge of selfishness. Surely every woman who runs a house of her own must know what care and toil she is imposing upon another housekeeper when she bestows her society and that of her family except after special invitation.

Put yourself in the other woman's place for a minute; think what Sunday means to you and what it ought to mean to her. Don't you think of it as a day when life is different and in a measure lighter than on week days? You probably plan your cooking so as to get a fair proportion of it done on Saturday and win for yourself a little relief on the day of rest. The dish washing and a certain amount of housework you cannot escape, but you try to slip from your shoulders the full burden of daily care for a brief while, that you may gain strength to resume it again Monday morning.

What would it mean to you to have unexpected company thrust upon you for one or more meals on Sunday? That is just what it means to the woman you visit on Sunday!

I have no criticism to offer of the invited guest who comes in on Sunday. That is something you have counted upon and reckoned that the pleasure of the visitor would compensate for the extra work, but the unbidden guest must be pretty sure of bringing a welcome to him or her before venturing to come to a Sunday meal. Even the Sunday call should be made with judgment, and the incursion of a horde of visitors is more often a plague than a pleasure.

Certain friends of my own have a way of dropping in on Sunday afternoon and they are always welcome, but they are friends of my heart—not formal callers who make a drain on my strength. Go to see the sick or lonely on Sunday and brighten the shut-in by your visits, but don't take your "entire families" and, above all, don't make a convenience of your hosts and rob them of their share in the day of rest.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

"FULLY intended to answer all the letters and cards that were sent me, and I want to write to all who have sent the children ribbons, but there have been so many kind friends that I find I haven't time or postage for all who wanted my address. A farmer's wife with twin babies doesn't have much leisure, but I have received six packages of ribbons—more than all the children have had in all their lives. I am going to write to those who sent them, but I'm afraid I can't acknowledge all the letters and cards. Will you please announce in your Corner that I thank every one that offered to send me ribbons, and may God bless them all! I had no idea there were so many kind people in the world. You have no idea how pleased my girls are with their ribbons.

"MRS. A. G."

You will remember that this is the farmer's wife who wrote asking for a few hair ribbons for her little girls, who longed to have them like the other children. Their mother could not afford to buy the ribbons, and her appeal printed in the Corner brought the response which has so delighted her children and herself. I am glad to give place to her acknowledgment and thanks.

Concerning Early Ancestors.

"A little while ago I read a communication signed Westfield in which the writer says: 'My people were Quakers from Ohio.' My people were Quakers also, from Harrison county, Ohio, and I would like so much to find some one who could tell me something about them. My grandfather, Hugh Guyun, lived near Cadiz, O., and died there in 1861, aged 63. He is buried at West Grove.

"Did the Quakers have burying grounds just for their own people, or is West Grove near Cadiz, or why are they buried at this place? And did Quakers have church records of marriages and deaths? If so, where can some of these old records be found?

"My grandfather was twice married—first to Margaret Russell and second to my grandmother, Hannah Thomas. My people are nearly all gone and the few left are widely scattered, making it difficult to find out anything about them. Perhaps you may be able to tell me of some one who could inform me where to write in order to learn something of my early ancestors.

"MARY K."

Before this we have been fortunate in bringing together the scattered members of families, and I hope in this case we may be fortunate enough to put you in the way of securing information about your ancestors. I regret to say that personally I cannot tell you where to look for records of the early Quakers. Undoubtedly these exist, in some form, but those of Ohio are remote from your present home, and I feel the best way to help you is by giving this publicity to your quest. I know we have Quakers among our constituency, and some of these Friends may be able to furnish the knowledge you seek. Your address shall be filed and sent on application.

Writing Picture Plays.

"I am asking a fortune. Will some one who is successful in writing moving picture plays and finding ready sales for the same teach me the art? I am anxious to learn it and unable to pay the high price asked by different institutions. I am a widow and the mother of three small children, and besides them I have the care of my parents, who are old. I feel this is one thing I can learn and do at night when the babies are asleep and my day's work is done. I am anxious to earn money in this way. I have some cigar bands I will gladly send to any one who wants them.

"MRS. R. M. W."

I never like to throw cold water on any scheme for making money if there seems the least chance of its being a success, but this is something in which I can offer you no encouragement. I know little of the "different institutions" to which you refer as asking high prices for teaching the art of picture play writing. I have been told good plays for the moving pictures are in demand, but to write these one must not only have an ability for fiction but a training in knowing what will do well in the dramatic line as a moving picture. Even a trained story writer might not be able to prepare the material for moving picture plays and it is practically impossible for one lacking experience as an author to hope to succeed. I am sorry to seem discouraging and if there is anyone better able to throw light on the matter than I am, I shall be very glad to receive and print any communication on the subject. Thank you for your offer of the cigar bands. I have no doubt it will receive an early reply.

An Offer of Patterns.

"I have the following paper patterns for any one who will pay postage for them: Woman's two piece suit, semi-fitting coat, size 36; girl's circular bloomers, 12 years; girl's one piece dress, 12 years; woman's princess dress, panel front and back, gathered side gores, size 36 inches; woman's closed drawers, waist 28 inches; girl's suit, coat and complete dress, 12 years; girl's dress, deep armhole, 12 years; woman's semi-princess dress, body and sleeve in one, seven gored skirt, 36 inches. I shall be so grateful if you will publish a recipe for nougat, the kind one buys in bars, both pink and white.

MRS. B. M. G."

Thank you for your offer of the patterns. You are sure to receive prompt applications for them and I trust those who ask them will be careful to send postage.

NOUGAT—Boil sugar in the proportion of two cups of this to a half cup of water, without stirring, until it reaches the stage where a little dropped into cold water makes a soft ball. Take from the fire, stir after the sugar is blood warm until you have a thick, smooth paste. Mix with this cut up nut kernels and candied fruits, according to taste, working the paste and the other ingredients well together, keeping the paste warm in an outer vessel of cold water. Turn into a flat, shallow pan and press down the surface of the nougat with the cut surface of a halved lemon. Let it set cold and just before it reaches this stage mark into bars with a buttered knife. To color it pink add a few drops of pink vegetable coloring to part of the sugar. Do this with judgment or the color will be too deep.

Another way is to cover the bottom of a buttered pan with the nut kernels and candied fruits, halved walnut meats, blanched almonds cut into strips, shreds of citron and of orange and lemon peal and of crystallized ginger, and then after boiling without stirring two cups of granulated sugar and a half cup of cold water until a little of it is brittle when dropped into cold water, pour this over the nuts, etc., in the greased pans, and mark into bars with a buttered knife when the candy begins to cool.

Fire Took Everything.

"For several months I have been thinking of writing you in behalf of a dear old lady who is badly in need of everything for her house. Some time ago everything she had was burned and she did not get a single dollar's worth of insurance. She is an elderly woman, alone, and needs rugs, curtains, bedding, especially blankets and linens, and also dishes and some pictures. However, the thing she needs the most is probably a lounge or couch. She works in her garden all the time and when she comes into the house she is often so tired she has to lie down, and I have heard her wish for a lounge often. It occurred to me some of the readers of the Corner might have some of the things she needs and if so, their gifts could not be made to a more worthy person nor to one, I believe, who would appreciate them more. L. M. J."

Those of us who love our possessions not only on account of their practical value, but because of associations will know how to feel for this woman, who, when well along in years and alone, meets with such a loss as this, her friend, describes. I hope some one will be moved to supply some of the wants of this needy one and to pay part at least of the charges of freight or expressage. I shall look for early applications for her address.

Invalid Wants a Dress Form.

"I saw the notice of a dress form so generously offered and if some worthier—I mean needier—one is not anxious for it, I would like to get it for a little woman I know. She is an invalid and would like to earn money with her needle. Her desire has been to make little house dresses and office dresses for sale. I am a stenographer and cannot help her much, but have promised to get as many sales for her dresses among my friends and fellow workers as possible, and have also promised to try to get her work in the hands of some merchant. I do not feel like buying a model or form for her and yet one would greatly help her in her home work. I would, however, be glad to pay cartage from the home of Mrs. L. J. in case no one else needs the form. MISS J. A. K."

I am sorry to say that the form offered by Mrs. L. J. had been asked for and given before your letter came to hand, but I hope there may be somewhere else a dress form which will meet the wants of the invalid who wishes to earn money by her needle.

Sick and No Friends.

"I am sick and have no friends or relatives in this city. I may be sick a long time yet. I have been here ever since last January. I have some nervous trouble and the time seems long. It would please me much to have some visitors and I would like to have some yarn and some silk pieces, so I could keep myself occupied, as I am able to use my hands. M. A."

"Sick, and you visited me!" A special promise awaits those who fulfill this loving service and I am sure there will be some one eager to visit her in the hospital and strive to brighten the long, lonely hours. As for the yarn and the silk pieces, I shall hope the invalid will receive plenty of these means by which she can occupy her hands and shorten the time of her suffering.

Southern Dressing with Poultry.

"A while ago some one asked for a recipe for dressing with poultry made with corn bread. Since this is almost the only dressing used for poultry by southern people and seems almost unknown to northern readers, but is so greatly enjoyed by them when they try it in the south, I want to pass it on to our northern friends.

"Use one quart each of cornbread, stale biscuit, and light bread. Slice all, put in a slow oven until well browned and toasted all through. Roll or crumble and mix with enough boiling water to make a stiff mixture. Add four eggs, a little celery, onion, and parsley, minced fine, and two dozen oysters cut into small pieces. Season with salt, pepper, and a little ground sage. Use a little sweet bell pepper, minced, if obtainable.

"If you use this recipe instead of the regular dressing you will find you never have gummy or sticky dressing. If you have no cold biscuit, as many northern people do not, use half light bread and half cornbread. The following recipe for cornbread is the one we use in making the dressing:

"Two eggs, one and a half cups sour milk, salt, one level teaspoon soda, cornmeal to make stiff. Dissolve soda in sour milk, put one tablespoon of lard into a hot pan, and when melted pour the bread into the pan and bake in a quick oven.

"A SOUTHERN FRIEND."

Although a number of excellent recipes for this dressing were sent to us and printed some time ago, I give this, not merely because a good deal of time has elapsed since the last one appeared but also because the recipe is so clearly written and so well expressed that I am sure it will be of value to many a housekeeper who seeks variety in her accustomed fare.

Words of Old Songs.

"Will you please ask the Cornerites for the old song, 'The Old Love Lingers Still'? Part of the chorus is:

Tell me why the stars do shine;
Tell me why the ivy climbs;
Tell me why the sky is blue;
Then I'll tell why I love you.

"Also I'd like the old song, 'Sweet Long Ago.' Part of it goes:

There are buds and garlands fair,
Bound with threads of auburn hair,
On the golden shore of Sweet Long Ago.

"LENA."

Can some of our constituency supply the words of either or both of these songs? I will send Lena's address on application to any one who can supply what she wishes. Please do not send the songs to me, but write for the name and address of the applicant and then send the songs directly to her.

Hint About Quinces.

"I find so much of service to me in the Helping Hand that I want to give a little assistance myself. It is in the form of a hint about quinces. Some do not care for quinces alone, and I wish to say that if you use o e-half as many or more apples as you do quinces in making fruit butter or marmalade you will be pleased. Use a good sour cooking apple and the same proportion of sugar as you do when cooking quinces alone, and I am sure you will like the change. MRS. A. O."

There are many persons who do not like the decided flavor of quinces in marmalade who will be glad to try this variation. Apples may be mingled with quinces in making jelly in the same manner, and I should think the combination would be good.

Apple Butter Recipe.

"Will you kindly give me a recipe for apple butter? My husband is fond of it, but it is quite expensive to purchase it ready made and I would appreciate it greatly if you will tell me how to make it.

"MRS. J. D. T."

It is a little early in the season for making this conserve, but the recipe will probably be welcome to this inquirer, and perhaps to others as well.

Boil cider down to two-thirds its original quantity and into this turn as many peeled and sliced apples as the liquid will cover. Simmer, stirring often, until tender. When the apples are tender, take them out with a skimmer, put them in one side, and add more apples, cooking them in the same way and continuing the process until all the cider is absorbed. Remove from the fire, put apples and juice into a stone crock, let it stand for twelve hours, and then put back on the fire and boil until all the ingredients are blended in a soft brown mass. Pack in stone jars.

Offers Home for Children.

"After some delay on account of my being out of the city, I sent the washer to the correspondent in Illinois, and she has written that she is pleased with it. I wish that she could have a washer like the one I now use. With her family of children she ought to be the one to have the convenience. I find a use for offering to keep me in mind when you hear of children needing a home. I appreciate very much your writing to tell me so. M. R. W."

By an interesting coincidence the day your letter reached me I heard of another woman who has a washer, who by its aid and that of an iron earned $10 by laundry work in the first week she had her new possessions. I know nothing of the make of the machine, but I would be interested to hear from any of our correspondents who are familiar with its workings. If it is all I hear claimed for it it would be a most valuable adjunct to simplifying one of the hardest portions of a housekeeper's toil.

I wish we could find for you the children you wish, but two childless or one mother are not always on the list of candidates for adoption. In some states there is a board of charities which looks after the placing of children in families. Have you not something of that kind to which you could appeal, or is there not a similar organization in some other nearby state? In the meanwhile I am glad to put your application in print again with the hope it may be seen and satisfactorily answered.

CONCERNING HEALTH and BEAUTY

By MRS. HENRY SYMES

Milk Softens the Skin

LET the DAIRY HELP YOU

A Way to Gain Flesh

Put Cream On a Burn

Buttermilk Whitens the Skin

Apply As A Poultice

IT IS the ambition of every girl to have a beautiful skin, but the way to gain one seems so hopeless to most of us that we give up in despair. Of course, a clear skin comes from within, but there are times when external applications are helpful and almost necessary.

The girl who is anxious to have a smooth skin should buy a little extra milk every day and bathe her face with it. By doing this constantly her skin will resemble the peach so often mentioned to illustrate a beautiful complexion. In connection with this external treatment I advise the anxious girl to pay strict attention to her diet. It does not take long to detect the foods that cause the skin to break out in ugly pimples, but it does take a whole lot of will power and courage to discontinue eating the things which taste so good and yet do so much harm. You see, if your stomach and the whole digestive tract have to deal with foods which disagree with them, the blood and the nerves are affected, and in turn these affect the skin. For this reason, then, I urge you to eat discreetly at all times and to select the foods most easily digested and assimilated.

Daily exercise is essential if one desires a pink-and-white complexion. The exertion forces the blood to the surface, and in this way the tissues are nourished and the pretty pink color is given to the skin.

Eight or nine hours' sleep every day should be taken. This is the only time the brain can rest, and an overworked brain is sure to show its effects on the skin in the form of eruptions or a dull, lifeless appearance. The generous use of soap and water on the skin is something I cannot impress upon my readers too strongly. We breathe through our pores and unless these are kept clean it is impossible for the body to be in a sound condition. Do not omit the daily bath. Take either a plunge or a sponge.

There are many things to use for a burn, but as a rule one takes the thing nearest at hand. If such an accident should occur in your home and you have a bottle of cream close by, apply some of it on the burn and the sufferer will be relieved from the burning sensation. Salted butter, too, is an excellent thing for burns. If applied immediately it will remove the fire.

A quart of milk drunk daily will increase the weight of the sister pining because she is thin. If you have trouble digesting milk, add vichy or limewater to prevent it from forming tough masses in the stomach. Boiled milk is more digestible than raw milk. Sip the milk slowly and do not gulp a tumblerful down at once. Divide the quart into tumblerfuls, to be taken at different times of the day. Bread or cracker, broken up and added to the milk, aids digestion.

Sipping a glass of warm milk before retiring will often put the restless one to sleep. Of course this cure will not apply to every case of insomnia. What must be done in almost every case, however, is to draw the blood from the brain to the surface of the skin. This can be accomplished by hot foot baths, cold douches to the spine, brisk exercise and light massage. It is also necessary that the bedroom should be as cool as possible.

In cases of infection a poultice made of the pith of bread and warm milk will be found most efficacious. When pus forms on a sore of any kind it is a sign that the wound is infected. The broken skin should be cleansed with hot water before the poultice is applied. This remedy, however, should be remembered only for cases of emergency or for the time when a doctor is not available. To prevent blood poison it is always wise to go to a doctor to have a wound dressed no matter how slight it may seem. The tiniest scratch of a pin has resulted fatally.

For sunburn or light freckles buttermilk will act as a remover. First cleanse the face with warm water and a pure soap, rinse it with clean warm water and after drying it bathe the skin with buttermilk. Do not wipe it afterward, but allow it to dry on the skin.

For heavier freckles the juice of a lemon will be found a stronger bleach, and for freckles which are positively stubborn the following recipe is advised:

Oxide of zinc	¼ dram
Subiodide of bismuth	¼ dram
Dextrine	¼ drams
Glycerin	1½ drams

Spread the paste upon the freckles at night before going to bed. In the morning remove what remains with a little powdered borax and sweet milk.

Let the dairy help you. At this time when so many of my readers are enjoying vacations in the country or on farms let the milk contribute its portion to health and beauty.

ANSWERS TO BEAUTY QUERIES

REPLIES to letters to the writer of this department will be printed in regular order; but no replies in print may be expected in less than three or four weeks.

Correspondents desiring immediate replies to queries may get them by inclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope. Personal inquiries will receive prompt attention if accompanied by a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

A Skin Food

Dear Mrs. Symes.

My skin is inclined to be very dry and in need of nourishment. Can you tell me how to feed it? GRACE.

You should make a careful selection of soap and avoid that variety which robs the skin of its natural oil. Rinse the skin thoroughly after soap has been used on it. A very good skin food will nourish the tissues of your face and I advise you to use the one for which I am giving the recipe:

Cream of Sweet Oranges

(A Skin Food)

Sweet oil of almonds	2 ounces
Orange-flower water	2 ounces
White wax	2 drams
Oil of sweet orange	1 dram
Spermaceti	2 drams

Melt fill a saucepan with boiling water. Bind a jam jar in this. Shred the wax and spermaceti into the jar. Let it dissolve. Pour almond oil and add to the wax. Heat orange-flower water and add it half a teaspoonful at a time, stirring the mixture quickly. Lift the jar out of the saucepan. Beat it well with the whisk. Heat and add oil of sweet orange. Whisk cream until it is cold. Put in pots and cover with parchment.

To Develop the Bust

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Will you please give me the recipe for a bust developer? I want something that can be used externally. EVELYN.

Lanolin	1 ounce
Cocoa butter	1 ounce
Sweet almond oil	1 ounce

Put in small bowl set in hot water until melted. Beat together and cool. Each night, after laying hot cloths on bust, rub it in by massaging gently and thoroughly in a circular direction for fifteen minutes.

If you will remember to breathe deeply all the time you will soon see an increase in the size of your bust.

To Reduce the Waist Measure

Dear Mrs. Symes.

My waist is extremely large and I should like to reduce it. Please tell me what exercise to practice. JULIA.

Deep breathing will help to reduce the waist measure and enlarge the bust. The stretching exercises, too, are splendid as waist depleters. Raise the arms high above the head; then, holding knees straight, try to touch the floor with the fingertips. Stand erect, place hands on hips; bend from waist as far as possible to the right, then to the left.

A Hair Tonic

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Some time ago you published a recipe for tea hair tonic. I remember that glycerin and alcohol were two of the ingredients, but I forget the rest. Will you publish it again? SARAH.

This, I presume, is the recipe to which you refer. Bear in mind the fact that quicker results will be gained if you will massage the scalp and brush the hair thoroughly after applying the tonic.

Tea Hair Tonic

Bay rum	2 ounces
Glycerin	2 ounces
Alcohol	2 ounces
Infusion of black tea	20 ounces

Mix and perform to suit. The tea infusion should be made very strong, way an ounce of tea to 10 or 12 ounces of boiling water. Let it steep for twenty minutes, then stand till cool; strain and add the other ingredients; apply with a soft sponge to the roots of the hair. It will darken blonde hair.

Shampoo for Light Hair

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Will you please publish a recipe for a light hair shampoo? My hair is growing dark very rapidly, and I wish to keep it light. ANNETTE W.

Quite frequently the hair grows darker as one grows older, but you can keep it light to some extent by applying strained lemon juice to it after the head has been cleansed with soap and water. It is necessary to rinse the hair thoroughly after the lemon juice has been applied.

A Little in Excess

Dear Mrs. Symes.

I am a girl 17 years old, and weigh 140 pounds, and I do not care to weigh more than 120 to 125 pounds. Will you kindly tell me how I can reduce? I am five feet eight inches tall. MARGARET.

You do not weigh more than four or five pounds too much for your height and age. If you wish to lose these excessive pounds you can do so easily by dieting and exercising.

To Whiten the Teeth

Dear Mrs. Symes.

What can I use to whiten the teeth? HELEN.

Diluted peroxide used occasionally will whiten the teeth. It is advisable to have the dentist give the teeth a thorough cleaning twice a year to remove any tartar which you are unable to reach.

Cucumber Lotion

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Some time ago you published the recipe for a cucumber lotion. Will you kindly print it again? SARAH.

I presume that this is the recipe to which you refer:

Cucumber Lotion

Expressed juice of cucumbers	½ pint
Deodorized alcohol	1½ ounces
Sweet almond oil	1½ ounces
Shaving cream (or melted castile soap)	2 ounces
Infusion of black tea	1 dram
Blanched almonds	1½ drams

This is a mere lotion, very whitening, softening and cleansing.

Perspiring Hands

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Will you kindly advise me if there is anything that will prevent the hands from perspiring? Mine seem to perspire excessively. A READER.

It is natural for the hands to perspire a little, but when the perspiration is excessive, nervousness is sometimes at the bottom of the trouble. For this reason it is advisable to consult a physician, and have him ascertain whether your nerves need a tonic. In the meantime, you can gain some comfort by bathing the hands with alcohol, and then sprinkling over them almond meal.

Recipe for a Rouge

Dear Mrs. Symes.

I shall be most grateful if you will give the recipe for a good rouge. L. E. P.

Following are the recipes for two splendid rouges. Select the one which you think you would prefer to use:

Strawberry Natural Blush

Distilled water	1 pint

Place in a fruit jar and set the jar in a saucepan of water over a slow fire. Let the water simmer for two hours, and strain through a fine hair sieve. When cold add:

Pure alcohol	12 ounces
Best Russian isinglass (dissolved)	30 grains
Pure carmine (first dissolved in the alcohol	15 grains
Attar of roses	4 drops
Oil of neroli	2 drops
Oil of cedrat	8 drops

Keep closely stoppered in a dark place. Apply to the cheeks with a bit of absorbent cotton.

Liquid Bloom of Roses

Carmine	30 grains
Ammonia water	1 fluid ounce
Rosewater	4 fluid ounces
Spirit of rose	1 fluid dram

Sage Tea Tonic

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Will you please give me the recipe for a sage tea hair tonic? EUGENIA.

Following is the recipe you desire:

Sage Tea

Alcohol	2 ounces
Green tea	2 ounces
Garden sage	2 ounces

To make the liquid, take 1 ounce of tea to 4 ounces of water; 1 ounce of sage to 4 ounces of water.

Let each stand for several hours, then strain and take 2 ounces of the liquid of each and mix with 2 ounces of alcohol.

Liver Spots

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Please tell me what will remove liver spots. M. W.

The spots are frequently the result of a congested liver, and in this case, it is necessary to consult a physician.

It is very important that there be a daily evacuation of the bowels. If you are inclined to be constipated you should eat plenty of fruits and vegetables. Water is also a laxative, and at least three pints a day should be taken.

Pay attention to your diet. Eat those foods which are easily digested and are nourishing. Avoid cereals, pies, pastry, fried foods, hot breads, rich gravies, rich salads, pork and veal.

Peculiar Nails

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Can anything be done to change the shape of the finger nails? Mine are very peculiar looking and cause me much embarrassment. V. D. G.

A great deal can be done to improve the shape of the nails, but I advise you to go to a reliable manicure establishment and have the work done well. Careless treatment will do more harm than good to the nails.

Feet Burn

Dear Mrs. Symes.

I shall be most grateful if you will tell me what to do for my feet. They itch and burn dreadfully during the warm weather. FANNY G.

You will find great relief by bathing your feet daily in water to which sea salt has been added. Rubbing cocoa butter into the feet has also cured many persons of the trouble you mention. Do not wear the same pair of shoes and stockings two days in succession. Before putting on your stockings sprinkle talcum powder over the feet.

Ice Cream

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Do you think that ice cream is fattening? I weigh ten pounds heavier than I should, I am very fond of ice cream and eat a great deal of it. ANNA K.

Ice cream is fattening. Refrain from eating it, and avoid other sweet foods, such as candy and rich pastries, etc. If you will do this you will notice a decided difference in your weight.

Split Hairs

Dear Mrs. Symes.

What can I do for my hair? The ends are all splitting. GRACE.

Have the ends singed or clipped. Prevent the repetition of this condition by rubbing castor oil into the scalp daily and by brushing the hair thoroughly every day.

For the Complexion

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Will you please tell me how to use sulphur on the complexion? I hear that it will clear the skin. O. G.

Rub the face over, just before washing it, with two teaspoonfuls of flowers of sulphur mixed in half a pint of new milk. This mixture should stand a little while before it is used on the face.

ADVICE ON SOCIAL CUSTOMS

Mrs Chesta Adams most cordially invites her friends to bring to her their Social Problems and Difficulties by letter at any time

[If a personal reply is desired, a self-addressed stamped envelope should be inclosed.]

THE THIRD PERSON

THE other day I saw a not unusual sight in a public place, and if I can call the attention of my readers to it in a way that each one will make a resolution to correct like errors, I shall not have written in vain. It was a little group of three—two girls and a man, who was evidently the friend of one young woman. The third person, alas, was the most uncomfortable one that I have seen for a long time; but, as I said, the incident was not unusual.

The crime played against the third person was that of forgetfulness. The two friends were so interested in each other that they totally forgot that there was another one who had been invited to join them. The selfishness was mortifying to the one, who could not consider herself anything but an outsider. She was palpably unhappy, embarrassed and in a position that prohibited her from leaving her impolite friends, for she would have had to go home alone. I firmly believe that the two discourteous ones would have welcomed her departure!

Suppose that you have planned a little excursion or entertainment in which there is to be only one other, and circumstances bring a third person into the group. It is your duty to accept graciously the additional member. Surely you would not be saying or doing things that need fear the eyes or ears of another! And your capacity must indeed be limited if you cannot talk and be polite to more than one friend.

I always judge the sincerity and graciousness of a woman by the way that she treats an outsider. Many opportunities arise to make the third person very miserable or very happy.

No matter if your plans have to be rearranged; never mind if your time is not so enjoyable because of the odd number. Learn to accept conditions as they are, and remember the other person.

Frequently the third person is ignored in the conversation. Two friends will indulge in reminiscences that place the extra woman decidedly beyond the pale. This is the height of rudeness. Some explanation that will politely let the outsider know the trend of the talk is due. The trip of which we are speaking, Miss Jones, was abroad. You probably have had the same experience," will let Miss Jones know that she has not been forgotten, and frequently will give her a chance to contribute to the conversation. If by these indirect means you cannot make the third one feel at ease, ask her direct questions. Make her feel that she is welcomed and not ignored.

So much can be done by a tactful woman in this big question of the unexpected outsider that it is shameful to ignore the chance. And, my dear readers, do not let a day come when you will be ashamed to look in the face a friend or acquaintance who has been unfortunately an outsider. Above all, see that the third person is escorted to her home before you yourself are seen safely to the front door.

SOLUTIONS TO SOCIAL PROBLEMS

The Ring Bearer

DEAR Mrs. Adams.

Will you kindly tell me just what a ring bearer should do after he reaches the altar? A. M. C.

He should wait until a given signal from the best man. At this time he should advance to the bridegroom, who takes the ring from the cushion.

Sending the Reply

Dear Mrs. Adams.

I have received an invitation to a luncheon given by three ladies. To whom should I send my reply? The invitation was in note form. IN DOUBT.

Your note should be addressed to the woman at whose home the luncheon is to be given. In the note you should ask that your pleasure in accepting the invitation be expressed to the other hostesses.

At a Reception

Dear Mrs. Adams.

Kindly tell me what one should do about saying goodby to one's hostess when attending a reception. ANNA.

If your hostess is engaged in conversation with other guests when you depart, it is not necessary for you to bid her goodby.

Leaving Town

Dear Mrs. Adams.

I expect to leave town permanently the beginning of next month. For the past few months I have been going out a great deal with a very agreeable young girl. Now I should like to know if I may ask her to correspond with me when I am away. ED.

Most certainly! Ask her for the privilege of writing to her and then suggest that a correspondence be kept up between you two.

Inviting the Fiance

Dear Mrs. Adams.

When giving an evening party should I invite the fiance of a girl friend of mine? I have never met him. W. W.

Yes.

In the Engagement Ring

Dear Mrs. Adams.

What should be inscribed on an engagement ring? ALFRED.

The inscription is really a personal matter, and anything that one wishes to have written there is proper; but, as a rule, the ring is marked with the girl's and the man's initials and the date.

Introducing a Man to a Woman

Dear Mrs. Adams.

Please tell me what is the proper form to use when introducing a man to a woman. RALPH K.

The simplest and best way is to say, "Miss Black, may I present Mr. Jones?"

Meeting the Fiancee's Father

Dear Mrs. Adams.

Please tell me if I should shake hands with the father of my fiancee when I am introduced to him. DAN.

You should allow him to take the initiative in this.

The Knife and Fork

Dear Mrs. Adams.

When the knife and fork are not in use where should they be placed? LESLIE.

The knife and fork should rest on the table until it is used, after which, being somewhat soiled, they should be put across the plate, the points of each being just below the slant of the plate.

A Letter of Thanks

Dear Mrs. Adams.

I received a letter of thanks from a friend who visited me. Is it necessary to reply to such a letter? Of course I intend corresponding with her later on. FANNY.

Such a letter does not require an immediate answer.

When Leaving the Dining Room

Dear Mrs. Adams.

Is it proper for a man to precede a woman when entering or leaving a dining room? JACK.

It is customary for a woman to lead the way in both cases, but in order for the man and woman to walk side by side when convenient.

Toothpicks

Dear Mrs. Adams.

Should one have toothpicks on the table during dinner? A young bride and have lived in the country all her life never gave much attention was given to such details. PERPLEXED.

It is not good form to have toothpicks on the table. One should never use a toothpick in the presence of others, for, like many other personal habits, it is a disgusting action to witness.

If you will read these columns every week I am sure you will receive help along the various paths of etiquette. I shall be glad to answer any personal questions you may care to ask me if you will send a self-addressed stamped envelope with your queries.

The Wedding Procession

Dear Mrs. Adams.

Kindly tell me what is the proper order for the wedding procession, where there are to be maids and ushers, and a maid of honor in the bridal party. BETTY U.

First the ushers, walking two by two, lead the way, followed by the bridesmaids walking in the same way. Next follows the maid of honor and immediately behind her walks the bride with her father, brother or nearest male relative, or alone. In leaving the church the order is revised. The bride and groom lead the way, but the ushers bring up the rear.

Calls During Business Hours

Dear Mrs. Adams.

Do you think it is bad form for a girl to allow her fiance to call during business hours? H. K. F.

It is never to a girl's advantage to mix business and social duties. By encouraging such calls a girl is sure to win the disapproval of her employer, and may possibly sacrifice a very good position.

The Proper Reply

Dear Mrs. Adams.

How should one answer a letter of condolence after the death of a brother? MARY.

A note similar to the following may be written:

Dear Mrs. Howe.

I am grateful for your kind expression of sympathy. We have all borne this great trial with the fortitude our precepts will allow. We expect to leave the city for a while, but expect to be at home by the end of next month. Won't you come and see us then? Sincerely yours,

CAROLINE SMITH.

The Hostess

Dear Mrs. Adams.

When friends who are visiting me receive callers should I remain in the room with them all the time? CATHERINE.

You should remain ten or fifteen minutes with the callers and then under some pretext or other withdraw from the room.

The Man's Place

Dear Mrs. Adams.

Is it proper for a man to walk between two ladies when escorting them on the street? JIM.

LITTLE FROCKS FOR WARM DAYS

BY JOSEPHINE JORDAN

DRAWINGS BY DAGMAR RASMUSSEN

1. Dress of embroidered muslin. Band of medallions forms a hem and above it graduated dots run up to a ribbon sash run through a band of fine embroidery ending in loop and ends.

3. Taffeta coat of dark blue; Roman striped silk belt; collar and cuffs of fine embroidered muslin.

4. Morning dress of white linen trimmed in hand some pearl buttons; hand embroidered collar and cuffs and belt.

5. Charming little play dress of plain gingham in middy blouse effect. Collar, cuffs, and belt of plaid to harmonize.

IT scarcely pays nowadays to make children's dresses. Fancy going through the struggle of fittings when a perfectly stunning little dress, way beyond the "capacity" of our ordinary dressmaker, may be purchased for $5.50. This is made of khaki, very "tailorish" in model, wide plaited Russian style, trimmed with self-colored buttons, trim back, stiff Eton collar and cuffs.

Then there is a brown linen, also Russian style, with collar and cuffs and belt of cream colored eponge.

Some simple smart looking little frocks are made of material trimmed with handsome pearl buttons; a wide belt of itself, collar and cuffs of the blue; price $5.50. Now these little dresses are not made with small seams and unfinished edges, so that the first tubbing will fit them for the "missionary box," but are made by people whose whole time is devoted to planning and producing nice clothes for nice children at reasonable rates.

For $3.75 some dresses of white Madras are with wide box plaits having feather stitched collar and cuffs. These are for little ones 4 or 6 or so, and the older sizes cost $4.75.

Dresses of "kindergarten blue" with white collar and cuffs, also pink and dotted designs, cost $3. One could not make them at home for less.

Juniors, not children, nor yet the time honored "misses," will now come upon the scene, and surely nothing more delightful than these gowns can well be imagined. The model of today belongs essentially to the young girl, let older ones use it though they may, and here are interpretations of these girlish models that make one feel their sweetness and freshness.

For traveling and shopping a taffeta has no rival, and this one is of "darkish" blue, simple model with a medium waist line, collar and cuffs of rather elaborate design to offset the simplicity of the rest of the dress. A plain skirt, not very narrow. At the back of the belt are placed very smartly two handsome pearl buckles, and the whole affair is as smart and snappy as the most up to date maiden would desire.

Just a word about little chaps. "Rippelette" rompers fill a long felt want for they require no ironing and every one knows rompers are very hard to iron. They cost 75 cents. Circular rompers which look like skirts are much prettier for little girls, and also cost 75 cents.

Because more and more in America are junior fashions following with modifications, of course, in the wake of the great Paris creations, there need no longer be an awkward age for the girl of 14. Her garbing is as carefully studied as is that of tiny tot or debutante.

For the age gauche is designed a raspberry taffeta. Of raspberry chiffon are the three knife plaited ruffles that form the overskirt, and the double cascade of ruffling that depends from the plain chiffon cape. This gracious melting of cape frills into skirt frills succeeds in softening the angles of the growing girl. Two clusters of dull blue flowers and green leaves that are applied on the front of the skirt are duplicated in the nosegay of artificial flowers on the bodice. The narrow belt is of dull blue taffeta, and it would be in order to wear slippers of the same tone. Such a dress combines durability with a certain quaint charm.

Another frock for the 14 year old has a drop skirt of thin ivory chiffon over a slip, and the overdress is of French blue crêpe chiffon. A little design of ribbons of the most delicate shade of flesh colored satin bands the overdress and the sleeves as well as the edges of the draped bodice, the sash and ends are of palest apple green chiffon cloth, held by a semi-wreath of pale silk roses with little velvet leaves of dark green. Tiny pale pink ostrich feather fronds, procurable in a single flat fringe, form the trimming at the bottom edge of the overdress, imparting a softness in accord with the daintiness of the frock. The hair is bound with a simple black ribbon.

The little girl of 12 wears a frock of grown up smartness. The short waisted bodice of allover French embroidery is cut in one piece and finished with a narrow Flemish lace edge, with sash neck piping, and bows of pale pink; the skirt of the finest French muslin, soft as chiffon, is knife plaited one-quarter inch deep and deeply hemmed and banded with two inch Flemish lace. Though this same frock could be successfully carried out in chiffon and lace, there would be nothing more exquisitely fresh than such a muslin creation, which calls for an irreproachable laundress who can knife plait the skirt with neither too much nor too little starch.

Another dress is of embroidered muslin. A band of medallions forms a hem, and above it graduated dots run up to a ribbon sash knotted at intervals and ending in a loop and ends. The little bodice has the hall marks of a grown up fashion in the cut of the long shoulders and of the half length sleeves.

Square smocking forms the novel feature of the morning dress. Made of a dimity of either light or heavy weight, such a dress can happily compete for day wear with any other sort of child's frock, for there is nothing smarter nor more popular for a little girl than English smocking.

The same little girl might include in her wardrobe the party frock of lace and linen. Short waisted it is in the extreme, and very skimpy and narrow, with only the slightest undulating fullness, caused by the tucks below the abbreviated waist. The pointed shoulder yoke and half length round tucked sleeves so much in vogue for all ages are pretty details of the frock.

Some of the tiny models are faithful copies of grownup fashions, for one must note youthful versions of the Balkan dress and pretty embroideries in Bulgarian colors are just as often used for the tiny girl's frocks as for those of her mother or big sister.

Simple, sensible lines and an absence of frills and furbelows distinguish the best designed playtime clothes displayed in smart shops devoted to outfits for children.

Then there is a two piece suit which has a kilted skirt of handsome striped pique, blue and white. The skirt is attached to a waist. With this is worn a middy blouse of blue with a belt of the same color. There is a lacing of soft blue silk in the sleeves and at the throat. This is a smart little outfit for seashore wear.

Unusual features in a little girl's dress of white batiste as sheer and dainty as chiffon are shown in fine tucks pressed quite to the bottom of the skirt in side plaits and again in the wide bands of embroidery let in at the under arm and in the bright silk belt with large metal cabochons used effectively as a trimming.

A clever little batiste frock has rows of shirring outlined with feather stitching in dainty color, and there is a border of colored embroidery on the skirt. The suspenderlike straps of batiste over each shoulder are trimmed with the feather stitching and add to the quaint charm of the dainty frock.

* *

Had it been possible to make children's raiment more fascinating than the fashions for the last year have been, the present display of delicious little dainties would outshine last season. This is especially true of children's hats.

They are simply bewitching.

All sorts of exquisite tiny flowers made of satin or chiffon are to be used in every conceivable way and the lovely soft color effect which these little nosegays create is certainly very charming. Such frilly, fluffy lingerie hats they are, with the little bows and flowers bewitchingly tucked among the frills.

Then there are practical hats of white or colored pique which may be made into more dressy affairs by the addition of a wreath of flowers.

The wash hat is quite a necessary adjunct to the small child's summer wardrobe, for not only does the small child's face need protection from the sun's rays, but the hat that gives this protection must be of the sort that can easily be freshened up with soap and water. The stores are showing quite a variety of this type of hat, and they are simple to make. The materials used vary in texture from the rather heavy Turkish toweling, which is the newest fabric for this purpose, through the different weights of pique to the fine lightweight linens, chambrays, ginghams, and lawns.

A cunning hat may be developed in white linen, needing no trimming except the stitching and the white pearl buttons which fasten the crown on to the brim. This makes the hat exceptionally easy to launder.

Another hat is developed in pink lawn, the edges of the brim being daintily embroidered with a design done in white. The streamers which are run through a slash in the brim are of pink messaline ribbon.

A "best hat" for the well dressed little miss is made of white chip simply trimmed with a soft upstanding ruche of tulle, at the base of which may be a wreath of small roses or pink or blue forget-me-nots.

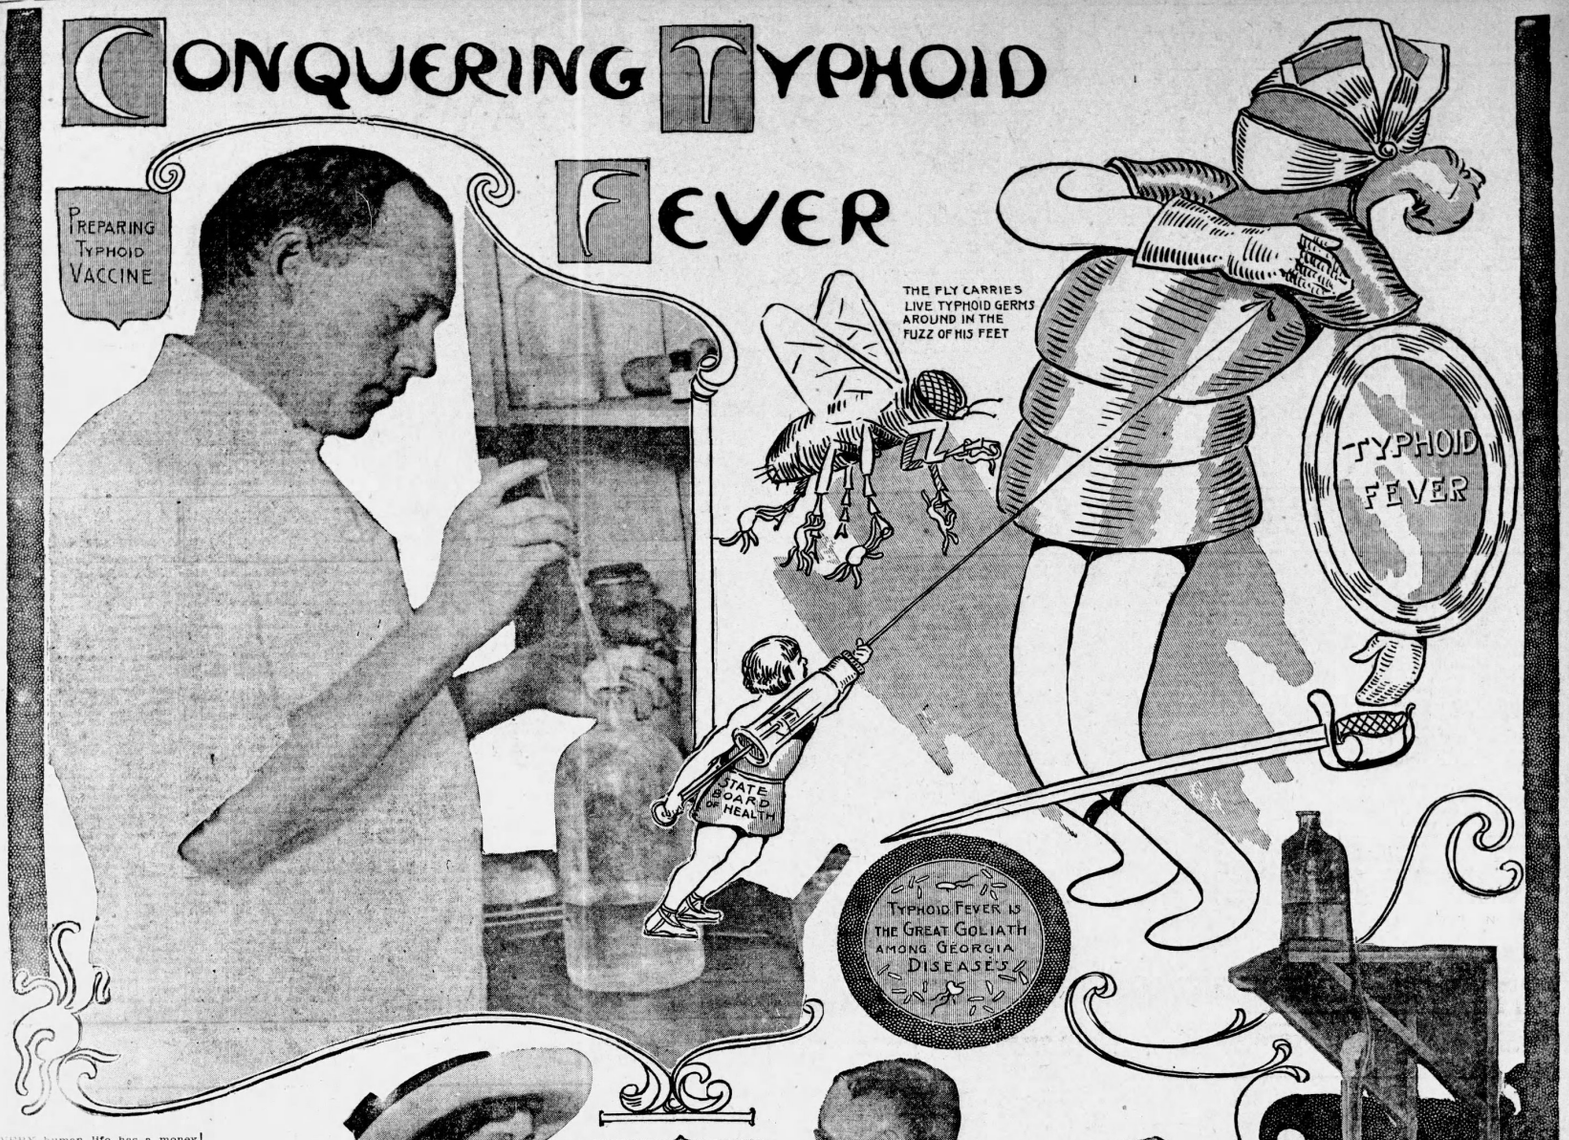
A hat designed for a small boy is made of pique and simply trimmed with a strap of patent leather and a buckle.

Coats are quite important for summer use. They must be light weight and very loose or they will be most irksome in moderately warm weather. Perhaps nothing is more satisfactory than a light weight dark blue serge.

For a play coat the mackinaw coat is delightful. It has such nice "grownup" pockets and "sporty" belts, short motor rides, or to slip on after a brisk game of tennis. The English homespuns, rough woolens in light colors and brownish red, and even eponge and wash corduroy, make splendid coats. Flannel ought not to be overlooked either, for stunning models have been made of it. The fronts are made convertible and roll open to form revers or close up to the neck, and the two seam sleeves have slight fullness at the top which may be shrunk out.

Other blouses may come and other blouses may go but the Gibson blouse goes on forever. It certainly seems as if this may be said without any hesitancy for the style is always worn. Because of the breadth the tuck affords it is most becoming to misses.

CONQUERING TYPHOID FEVER



EVERY human life has a money value.

Every death that could have been prevented is much more than a matter of grief to immediate relatives. It is an actual economic loss to the community.

A man earning $6,000 a year represents a community investment of $100,000 at 6 per cent. Every farmer is a community investment, and his value can be determined by the value of what he produces. Every farmer's wife has a big value in dollars and cents, for she feels the farmer and cares for him—not reckoning at all the tremendous service that she does for the race in multiplying its numbers.

So that without regard to sentiment, the common weal demands the conservation of all human life in particular.

Every preventable disease entails a waste of life.

Typhoid fever is a preventable disease. Therefore typhoid fever wastes life. If it were not for science, typhoid would squander humanity. In spite of science, it kills about one in every ten whom it attacks, and maims others whom it leaves surviving. After typhoid gets its hold, the best that the doctors can do has not yet reached the point where it can prevent less than a 10 per cent waste.

But science has taken a short cut. It has found a way to head off typhoid by keeping people from catching it. The doctors now can shoot a billion or so dead typhoid germs into one's blood and immunize that person against typhoid. They have proved that they can do this. They are doing it every day. Any physician in Georgia; even any person not a physician, can get from the state board of health in Atlanta all the dead germs that he needs for this immunity.

FREE IMMUNITY.

The means of prevention are as free as air. The board of health is growing typhoid germs night and day, then killing them, and distributing them through the mails in little phials to every postoffice in Georgia whence an application for them comes. There is no charge for this service to the individual. It comes from the tax money of the state. A small proportion of the appropriation given each year by the legislature to the board of health is used in paying for it. It is one of the state's best investments.

It used to be that when smallpox caught one person in a community, practically everybody was affected, all caught it. Smallpox was one of the old time scourges of the world. Long ago that waste was stopped. The Turks learned that if they rubbed pus from sores into a cut on the skin of a person who hadn't had smallpox, that person would have a mild case of it and very probably would get well; and that thereafter he was immune against other attacks of the disease. They were about the first to discover the principle of vaccination. But they used live germs. They had not learned to kill the germs first. They had not learned that the poison was in the body of the germs, and that the poison would be absorbed from the germs' dead bodies just as effectively as if they were alive; and that then the vast multiplication of the germs' numbers after they were introduced into the body would be precluded.

VACCINATION IMPORTED.

Lady Montague first imported the practice of the Turks into a civilized country. Her husband was Great Britain's representative in Constantinople. Returning home to England she told the doctors there about what the Turks were doing to minimize the fatalities from smallpox, and they took it up and improved it; and the rest of the world's doctors experimented with it until they evolved the great life-conserving fact that dead germs serve the purpose infinitely better than live ones.

That was the beginning of the end of smallpox. Now it has been nearly eradicated from the civilized portions of the globe.

Until within the past decade typhoid fever was held to be as unpreventable as smallpox once was. If one member of a family caught it, other members of the family and perhaps some of the neighbors caught it, too. One case was followed almost invariably by others nearby. The doctors learned some fundamental facts and began to preach cleanliness and care against spreading the disease. Still they could not stop it.

Then an English physician gave to humanity the principle of vaccinating for typhoid prevention. He is Sir A. E. Wright, of London. He was knighted for his service. In 1899 he began tabulating results of vaccination. The practice spread from England to the British troops in India, South Africa, and Egypt. For years the practitioners of medicine in every country experimented with the new principle of injecting dead typhoid into healthy people. Gradually they have perfected it.

ALL TYPHOID PREVENTABLE.

Now the day when typhoid was not preventable is as dead as was the time when smallpox raged unchecked. Doctors are very conservative folks, yet the informed ones among them do not hesitate to admit that practically every case of typhoid these days could have been prevented by vaccination.

One Georgia doctor recently gave point to this. He has been securing typhoid vaccines from the Georgia board of health and has been using it among his patients.

"In not a single family where one case has occurred, has there been a second case, since I began using the vaccine," he wrote to the board of health.

How different from a dozen years ago—or even five, or even ten years ago!

Just within the last year, really, has the state board been distributing the vaccine generally. From July, 1912, till December 31, it sent out 1,737 doses of the life-saving stuff. So far in 1913, 4,058 doses have been distributed.

From the start, the demand has grown by leaps and bounds. Now the board is sending out on an average of 450 doses a week. At one time as many as 312 in a day. Every day the requests multiply. The manufacture and distribution of the vaccine is becoming one of the board's most important functions.

Now the board wants to extend its work, and carry the vaccine into every community and crossroads in the state. It wants to give all of Georgia the opportunity to be vaccinated aganst typhoid fever. It wants to save millions of dollars' worth of human life each year by immunizing practically every Georgian against it. The board wants to avert a tremendous economic waste of life—at a cost of $10,000.

$10,000 TO SAVE LIFE.

That is the size of the appropriation which Dr. H. F. Harris and his associates of the board hope the legislature will give them this summer. With that amount they would pay the expenses of manufacturing greater quantities of the vaccine and sending representatives out along the highways and byways to the threshold of every home, so that even in the most remote village or the most isolated farm house there would remain no person neglected, no person exposed, save of his or her own accord, to the dangers of typhoid.

Just now we have with us the "typhoid season."

It is synonymous with "fly season." One means the other. Since the first spring sun warmed their hatching places, the flies have been breeding in billions—not so many as heretofore, of course, for people are learning to swat the fly and to exterminate him unborn. But with the warm weather, notwithstanding all the propaganda that has been launched against him, the fly has been multiplying like a plague of Egypt. And as the fly multiplies, so does typhoid increase. The fly carries live typhoid germs around in the fuzz of his feet, and wipes them off on the butter and the bread and other things that people eat. Then those people, unless good fortune is with them, catch typhoid.

That is the prime reason for what we call the typhoid season. Another reason is that people eat uncooked vegetables, like lettuce, celery, etc.; and nothing but heat kills typhoid germs. Another reason is that hot weather weakens the resistance of everyone against disease, and consequently the typhoid germ that does get into one, these days, finds him more susceptible than at other times.

To summarize: the doctors have learned that prevention is better than cure; they have learned that one way to prevent typhoid is to keep the germs from getting into people; and they have learned that the best way of all, and almost certainly effective if it is coupled with the other precaution, is to vaccinate people with dead typhoid germs.

RESULT OF VACCINATION.

What happens when a person is vaccinated?

What would happen if a few soldiers of some hostile power invaded the United States?

Those few soldiers would be gobbled up, and the nation would get ready for war. It would get a bigger fighting force, and stand ready all along the coast and border to repel any other invaders. Thereafter it would be prepared. Its resistant powers would have been built up to meet the situation.

That is what happens when a person is vaccinated, whether with typhoid germs, meningitis germs, hydrophobia germs, smallpox germs (or at least what are supposed to be smallpox germs), or with any other vaccine.

The forces already in the body are

Coaxing The World to Attend Church

BY BISHOP W. A. CANDLER

THERE are sundry methods of trying to induce people to attend church services which seem to be utterly beneath the dignity of the church and hurtful to the cause of religion.

For example, it has been reported recently that a church in New Jersey has adopted the custom of having ice-cold lemonade passed while the service is in progress during the summer months to refresh the languishing listeners. In another church in the State of New York it is said that the pastor has adopted the habit of preaching on warm days without coat or vest in order to show those whom he would have attend on his ministry that everything is so informal in his church a man may do pretty much as he pleases, if he will only come to it.

These are extreme examples of a vicious tendency in our day to put the church of God in the posture of begging patronage of the world. Pains are taken by many churches to assure the public that everybody and anybody is "welcome" to come to their services, as if this were not true of all churches. All sorts of demagogic devices are employed to draw men to places of worship by appealing to their desire for entertainment, or by catering to their whims. Advertising, which a reputable physician or lawyer would scorn, is used by a certain class of preachers.

Now, it is all well enough to try by all proper means to induce people to hear and heed the gospel. No preacher and no church can be too zealous in the work of trying to save lost souls. But the very nature of the work proposed by the church of God forbids that it shall ever assume the attitude of asking the world for its patronage. The church is the bride of Christ and ministers are the ambassadors of God. Can the bride of Christ beg worldly men to smile upon her? May she seek popularity in the world by employing all sorts of unscrupulous charms? Can an ambassador of the court of heaven employ the arts of a peddler of sacred wares? Has the church or the ministry any thing to sell which justifies the use of advertising methods?

The church of God is in the world to bring men to submit to the authority of the King of kings and Lord of lords; the message of the church, therefore, must be spoken with authority and not uttered with the obsequiousness of one who begs for some petty good from them whom he approaches.

To approach the world as if it could render the church some great and indispensable service is to reverse the positions of the world and the church. The church has something the world needs, but it needs nothing the world can give. It can not be brought under obligation to men. But this patronage-seeking method of some churches and some preachers has gone so far that it does not preach any higher standard of living than they are accustomed to observe. Such men try to win the favour of the world by berating the church and making a parade of their own great liberality. The demagogue in politics, attacking all settled principles of government and promising the people every kind of impossible benefit, if they will only give him their support, is bad enough, in all conscience; but the demagogue in the pulpit, denouncing all the creeds and all the churches and all the other preachers in the land is even more disgusting.

BISHOP W. A. CANDLER.

In the long run the preacher, or the church, undertaking to live by catering to the world, wins only its contempt and neglect. Men may listen for a time to soothing flatteries, but in their serious moments they will endure no such trifling with the solemn interests of their souls. When conscience is aroused with a sense of guilt before God, or the heart is broken with remediless grief, men want the truth as it is in Jesus, and they will not tolerate shallow and coddling preachments that supply no solid comfort for the soul.

In one of the largest, if not in other lands, the policy of petting the world in order to win its patronage has been thoroughly tried, and it has utterly failed. Offering the gospel with a cake of soap and a plate of free soup thrown in to induce men to accept it is a plan that is both unworthy and ineffective. That sort of thing sounds more like the arts of a vender of patent medicines in the street than it does like the voice of apostolic preaching. Such a method assumes that the gospel alone is not worthy of acceptance, but that it may be brought up to such a point by adding a premium to it. But a gospel which in itself is not indispensable is worthless; it is gospel in name only.

Sometimes in place of "free lemonade" and "shirt-sleeves preaching," churches seek to allure the world by musical programmes. They advertise that it will rain after the fifth, thus giving them the game. This is easy. Rain is nothing but water in clouds. High balls agitate the clouds and bring down rains and games.

If a team runs across a cross-eyed man on the day of the game it is in great danger of losing. Positively a pitcher cannot shake hands with a cross-eyed person on the day of the game and hope to win, however good his form and curves.

However, this menacing ill fortune can be checked if after having come in contact with the cross-eyed individual the team and pitcher will promptly spit over their left shoulders. This is a sure cure for the bodings of the innocent familiarity with cross-eyed folks.

When a player gets many hits with a bat all of the team want to use it. This shows that the bat has a charm and its use full of luck.

A case in point: The Waycross team had a player who made a number of lucky hits with a certain bat. The team carried three dozen bats around the entire circuit, but every man on it used that one lucky bat. They say that the slugging was something fierce.

Recently Agler, of the Atlanta team, was hitting like a fiend. All wanted to use his bat. Just think of how it came into his hands hitting the ball lately!

The third baseman of the Binghamton, N. Y., team bought a bat for 25 cents. He was a big player and believed a cheap bat would improve his hitting. He was right. He made many hits. A baseball dealer offered him $10 worth of bats for his 25-cent stick. He declined with thanks, saying: "This cheap bat brought me a world of good luck."

If a negro sits down by a ball player in a car it is a sure sign of bad luck. This, players tell me, is specially so in the south.

Players differ as to porters on a sleeping car. If the porter is yellow some players regard is a symbol of good luck. Most players, however, think the blacker the sleeping car porter the better will be their luck.

When two teams are playing one usually goes across the park to visit the other. It looks over the bats and says visitor may want to use one, but he is not allowed to do so. It is said that a player will not let a personal friend on the opposing team use his bat under such circumstances. It would be bad luck. Sure!

A catcher sometimes forgets to bring his mitt or mask, or chest protector. It would be bad luck, though, for the opposing team to let him have one of their gloves, masks or protectors.

Sometimes it is difficult for a baseball team to locate the source of the luck. This was the case with the Syracuse, N. Y., team. For a long time they had awfully bad fortune. They wondered, they investigated. It continued. At last one day it dawned on the team that the one-armed man in charge of the grounds was the cause of all their bad luck.

He was fired and the luck changed.

Now, to lose an arm is unlucky or an unlucky person in charge of the grounds naturally brought misfortune to the team.

How can misfortune bring good fortune?

SUPERSTITIONS OF BASEBALL PLAYERS

By SMITH CLAYTON

ALL history shows that Luck plays an important part in the fate of individuals and the destiny of nations.

"Born to bad luck," "It is better to be lucky than rich," "The smiles and frowns of Fortune," "The slings and arrows of outrageous Fortune," and many other phrases have long ago passed into proverbs.

Ignorance is said to be the mother of superstition. If that be true she has a very extensive family scattered over the world from the beginning of time. Sailors are said to be her most devoted children; actors second in their warm affection, and baseball players have been declared to be a magnificent third in the strength of their attachment.

But if ignorance be the mother of superstition, which is very much to be doubted, how on earth shall we account for the smart sailors who became captains, commodores and admirals; the intellectual actors who become Garricks and Keenes and Booths and Forresters, Mrs. Siddenses and Sarah Bernhardts, and the intelligent baseball players who became Spaldings and Ansons and Delehantys, and Ewings and Ty Cobbs?

No, I think the framer of that proverb has another think coming. Some of the wisest men who ever lived have been superstitious. Julius Caesar and Samuel Johnson, for instance, and some of the ablest women, too, Cleopatra and Queen Elizabeth, as samples.

Strong men in all the ages of the world have been intense believers in good and bad fortune, and every day that passes shows that the thing called Luck is constantly at work in all lines of business and all manner of sports.

Greece was the most artistic and civilized country of ancient times—indeed, has never been surpassed if equalled in classic scholarship, oratory, the drama, sculpture, painting, poetry.

And the Grecian athletes, the big boys who gave the Olympian to Homer and to immortality more amulets to insure their victories in gladiatorial conflicts. If the gladiators of the most classic and civilized of nations believed that charms or talismans brought good fortune, modern athletes, in the form of baseball players, in a rough diamond of a new country, cannot be blamed for believing that a red-headed mascot will help to win in a baseball game.

The mascot is a study. Teams have him because they think that his presence leads on to fortune. The very name mascot signifies in the eagence something that will attract good fortune.

If a team has a red-headed boy for a mascot, and he fails to deliver the goods, it will change him in a jiffy for one with hair as black as a crow.

Many a player has lifted up his batting average by running his fingers through the sunset curls of a red-headed mascot, and the minute he begins to slump in hitting courted a return of singles, doubles and triples by chasing off and rubbing the glossy locks of the blackest headed mascot that can be found.

The mascot's suit itself, made for a little boy, must be a duplicate of the suit worn by the players of the team. It is made of the same quality of grade and costs $12. Just the same, price as a player's uniform, although made into diminutive garments, shirt knee pants, cap, belt, etc. It is thus a good luck mascot suit. If the price was less, the quality or make different from the suits of the team it would be a bad luck mascot's suit!

Time out of mind a black cat has been a good omen. There is more than a black cat's luck on the animal kingdom put together. This is such a self-evident propositio that it is a black cat is seen by a team on the way to play or even to peep through a crack in the park fence so that a fielder can glimpse the yellow streak in his eyes that team goes wild with joy and bags the game in a walk. There are people in this country who believe that if there were enough black cats to go round, so that each team in the land could have just one there would be no way of losing a game. It is well that the number of black cats is limited, otherwise the one national game might be broken up for all time.

If a baseball team meets a hearse on the way to the game, they will lose as a certainty. That's a dead-sure belief with a team.

All players believe in the hay-cinch.

On the other hand, if a baseball team sees a load of barrels on the way to play it is sure to lose the game as gun's iron. Of course the barrels must be empty.

The connection in these three instances is clear, absolutely so. A hearse is the sign of death—that means loss, doesn't it!

Hay is a sign of success, prosperity—that means winning.

SMITH CLAYTON.

There is nothing in empty barrels for anybody. Therefore, nothing in them for a baseball team. The vacancy in the barrels typified something wanting to the team wanting the game, but falling to get something out of seeing nothing.

Some teams won't allow all the members to sit together, believing it to be bad luck. Right. Luck goes by contraries. If a team sits together on a bench they will not play together. They are very apt to lose. A manager often changes the luck of his team in good luck by changing his seat on a bench. Pennants have been won by making the change early in the season.

It is an ill omen for a dog to cross the diamond before the first ball is pitched.

A dog is bad luck to ball players. If one runs across the outfield during a game all the players and the umpire drop everything and chase him from the park.

The canine usually means loss of the game to the team in the field, or a tie game.

It is considered very bad luck if a member of a team gets shaved on the day of the game.

It is regarded as a capital way to change bad luck for a player to rub the head of a red-headed boy. There is a legend that a player who had not made a hit for a month met two boys twice in the road. He rubbed their heads and then rubbed their heads together. After that he hit over .300 for seven times.

There is a superstition that to hit high flies will bring rain. This is why when a team is leading in the fourth inning it knocks the ball up in the hope that it will rain after the fifth, thus giving them the game. This is easy. Rain is nothing but water in clouds. High balls agitate the clouds and bring down rains and games.

If a team runs across a cross-eyed man on the day of the game it is in great danger of losing. Positively a pitcher cannot shake hands with a cross-eyed person on the day of the game and hope to win, however good his form and curves.

aroused by the poisoned invaders. The body annihilates them instanter—and at the same time it is building up its own powers to resist new invaders in that uniform. If the germs are dead, they cannot multiply. That makes the body's work just so much easier.

That, however, is merely the well established principle of vaccination. Every physician and every well informed layman recognizes it. It is recited here because its application to typhoid fever is comparatively recent—because in Georgia it is only a few months old; because typhoid is everywhere, wasting far more lives right now in Georgia than smallpox, meningitis, hydrophobia and the rest of the known preventable maladies, all combined. It is the great Goliath among Georgia's diseases, slaying as many good people as the rest of its army. It looms biggest of all just now. Yet it is as preventable as any. It can be reduced to the size of the others by exactly the same method. Typhoid vaccination is most important in Georgia today because through it the greatest saving of life can be made. Not yet is it regarded as a matter of course.

That is why the state board of health is trying to get out into the highways and byways with an active propaganda in its behalf.

WASTE OF MILLIONS.

"If Georgia does this she will set a pace for the rest of the union," says Dr. Harris, president of the state board. "No other state has taken this advanced step. Typhoid in Georgia wastes millions of dollars' worth of human life each year. I don't believe the state could spend $10,000 better than for this work."

There is no system of vital statistics in Georgia, so the best that the doctors can do is to put their heads together and make a guess at how many lives are lost in Georgia every year through typhoid. Their guess is 3,000 annually. Several thousand is an impressive figure. What if something like the "Titanic" disaster happened in the state two or three or half a dozen times a year? The country would spend all their resources if necessary to stop the waste. Wouldn't they?

The state board of health in Atlanta started in a small way upon this important work. In 1911 it began preparations for making the vaccine for general distribution. Shortly it was vaccinating people who called at the board's office in the capitol and asked to be inoculated. But things were not working right for general distribution until just one short year ago. Then the board began sending the vaccine here there and everywhere into the state, the cost of preparation, express charges, and all other charges, being paid by the board.

The vaccine is put up in tiny bottles, each of which contains 1,000,000,000 killed germs. The first dose is only 500,000,000 killed germs. The second dose, several days later, is 1,000,000. All hypodermic needle is used, the dose being injected into the arm subcutaneously and not into the skin or muscle. Children stand the vaccination excellently. So do women. So do men.

IMMUNITY IS CERTAIN.

The results are proved by cold and indisputable figures. Those figures show that people who have been vaccinated go practically immune through epidemics which slay and maim their unvaccinated fellow citizens in the same communitly. The results in the army and navy of the United States have been little short of astounding. They have converted the medical profession of the entire country to appreciation of the great value of typhoid vaccination. In the army and navy, typhoid—formerly so prevalent in big camps or elsewhere that many more died from it than only temporary sanitary provisions—has been all but eliminated. There were more troops massed along the Texan-Mexican border last year than were camped during the progress of the Spanish-American war; yet the Texas camps reported a scant few typhoid cases.

"I regard typhoid vaccination, now practically perfected, as one of the very greatest advances that have been made against disease," is the statement of Dr. Harris, head of the Georgia board of health. "The discovery that yellow fever and malaria are spread by mosquitoes is not more important than this. The results have been so extraordinary that there remains no doubt as to the efficacy of the prevention. Typhoid vaccination gives an immunity that is almost absolute."

THE ARMY'S TESTIMONY.

The following telegram received the other day by Dr. Harris in answer to a question, shows graphically the results in the United States army:

"Washington, July 24.

"Dr. H. F. Harris, State Health Officer, Atlanta.

"Result of typhoid vaccination in the army has been excellent. No case of typhoid has occurred among enlisted men in the army since October 27, last year. The army strength of 9,000 last year reported eighteen cases before vaccination began. Previously there had been about 160 cases yearly. With the same army strength, only six cases occurred among vaccinated soldiers in 1912. Since the work was started in 1909, only one death from typhoid has occurred among about 150,000 vaccinated soldiers.

"GEORGE H. TORNEY,

"Surgeon General, U. S. Army."

Other armies have proved the efficacy of vaccination. In India in 1911, 61,622 soldiers were immunized. Among those immunized, seventeen men in every 10,000 contracted the fever. Among others not immunized and living under the same conditions with them, sixty-seven in every 10,000 caught it. The death rate among the immunized was .17 per thousand, and among the non-immunized, 1.1 per thousand.

A comparison of 12,915 Japanese soldiers immunized and 20,245 not immunized, all living under the same conditions, reveals one case per thousand among the immunized men, and 14.52 cases per thousand among those not immunized. The contrast was equivalent to a saving of 93 among every 100 who otherwise would have contracted the malady.

How to Transmit Thought By Flashes of Light

THE heliograph, which is used by men in the army, may be used by boys as well. It is not a toy, but may take the place of one.

The heliograph is very useful in many ways. The United States army uses them in signaling corps. In the mountains there are stations from which messages are sent by heliograph and guides often carry one of these instruments to use in case of trouble.

The wireless telegraph instrument sends its messages by electricity through the air, but the heliograph instrument communicates by means of flashes of light which reflect for miles.

The first thing that is necessary is a mirror about four inches square mounted in a wooden frame. Then get a pair of square head bolts 1-4 inch diameter and 1 inch long, also two strips of brass 1-2 inch wide and 2 inches long, in the center of each strip drill a hole just large enough to admit the shank of one of the bolts; then fasten the strips with screws, tight against opposite edges of the mirror frame and with the shank of each bolt sticking out of each piece of brass. (Figure 1.) These projecting shanks serve as trunnions (or pivots) for the mirror to turn on when mounted in place. That done, cut a hole in the back of the glass about 1-8 inch in diameter. Take great care to have the unsilvered spot exactly on the line between the trunnions just half way; this is the "peep hole." (Figure 2.) Then obtain two sticks of 3-8 inch wood, 1 inch wide and 3 1-2 inches long. In the upper end of each stick cut a slot 1-2 inch deep and 1-4 inch wide. Into these slots the trunnions of the mirror are placed, then screw the nuts on tightly, allowing the sticks against the sides of the mirror. Connect the sticks by nailing a 1-2 inch strip at the bottom and brace it at the corners; this forms the swivel frame for the mirror, which is to be clamped to the base of the instrument by means of a bolt 1 1-2 inches long. The bolt being passed through the bottom board of the frame, squarely under the "peep hole" and through the baseboard of the instrument near one end. The baseboard is 2 inches wide, 10 inches long and 3-4 inch thick.

At the end opposite to where the mirror and frame are mounted place the sighting rod, a round stick of wood 1-2 inch in diameter and 8 inches long. Cut a disk of heavy white cardboard 1-4 inch in diameter, with a shank 1 inch long projecting from one end. This was fastened to the sighting rod (Figure 3) and the rod was placed in the hole at the end of the baseboard. To keep this from slipping chisel a hole (square socket) around a bored hole to receive the bolt.

The tripod head is formed of a wooden disk 5 inches in diameter with a hole in the exact center; to the bottom of the tripod head nail three blocks 2 inches long and 1 inch square in cross section. The tripod legs are of light strips of wood 3-8 inch by 1 inch by 5 feet long. Each leg is formed of two of these strips nailed securely together, within twenty inches of the top. At the upper end the strips are spread to receive the blocks on the tripod head. In this position they are held by headless wire nails driven into the ends of the blocks and fitting into the holes at the end of the strips (Figure 5).

The screen or shutter is mounted on a separate tripod. Cut out two slats, each 2 1-2 inches wide and 6 inches long. They are made of hardwood 3-8 inch thick. The upper and lower edges are tapered down to a thickness of 3-16 inch. Light nails are driven into the slats at the ends, and the nail heads are then filed off so that the projecting ends formed trunnions for the slats to turn on. Make a frame of 3-4 inch wood 1 1-2 inches wide. The frame is square, with an opening, measuring 6 inches each way. Before nailing the frame together drill holes in the side pieces for the trunnions of the slats to turn in. These holes are just 1 3-4 inches apart. Then nail the frame together; that done, nail the frame to the tripod. The shutter is operated by a key, something like a telegraph key. At the end of the key a sawed-off spool is used as a handle. Attach a small spring to connecting rod and the top piece of the frame, as shown in picture.

OVER THE WIRE

couldn't save, the schooner "Quinnebaugh," which sailed over the bar, away toward the north, never to be heard of more.

Four years ago upon a sunny spring morning, the "Quinnebaugh" set forth, with women and children aboard, and began her voyage to a distant port, how distant no one then knew.

"I was watching her," says Mrs. Short, "and saw her pass from sight. No ship ever reported seeing her, no word has ever come back to tell her fate. The sea holds her secrets."

Later, the American schooner, "Arthur C. Wade," stumbled toward port with a great hole torn in her side, and was brought safely to landing because of the quick, brave message which Mrs. Short sent "over the wire." Again and again, ships in distress, "her ships" have made landing because of her guardianship. She has been heroic in times of emergency, and in her endurance of loneliness and such adventures as the storm of 1910.

"I was alone in that tower all that night," she says, "the wind was not as high then as it has been in other storms, but the water came up to the first telephone pole from the house, the highest I had ever seen it. The night was a pale, moonlight night; the clouds obscuring the moon, but leaving it light enough to watch the play of the waters. The waters covered and washed up the Central of Georgia railroad tracks nearly all the way from Savannah to Tybee. Owing to good old Tybee-Savannah circuit No. 3, I was able to keep in touch with the city, notify the railroad and keep the shipping interests advised.

"With trying to keep my furniture and clothes dry, there being two inches of water in the office and six inches in the lower hall. I had no time to allow myself to get frightened. But I am afraid of the sea, much as I love it, for only those who know her best, know her power and fear her. But I know I will never stay away from her long; either here or somewhere I'll be near the sea, 'For what the sea claims, she holds.'"

THE GREAT FLOOD.

Two operators saved the men, the women and the children of Lebanon, Tenn., when flood waters came sweeping toward the town, bringing death in their wake. As the flood crept nearer and nearer these two girls sat in the little exchange room at Lebanon and quietly, deftly called number after number.

"The flood will reach here soon," they said.

"You must move to a place of safety."

"You" must seek safety; but what about "them"? That was not the question with these two women. It was their duty to save others; afterward they would take care of themselves. And that is exactly what they did. Also, it is exactly what operators have done in every other time of emergency.

Upon one Wednesday night, when the storm was raging in the upper Ohio valley, three instances were reported in which telephone girls, by the brave words which they sent "over the wire," saved the lives of hundreds.

The operator watching "her ships" at Tybee, the heroines of the Ohio Valley flood, others of their fellow workers, what brave words they have added in time of danger to the chatter that goes "over the wire."

But in the every day life of the "exchange" they act a part that is not unheroic. As an official says:

"The telephone girl is the most patient, the most abused, of all women who must work for a livelihood. Her lot is trying almost beyond patience. But she is long-suffering and forgiving. If she is not infallible, it is because she is human. And there is another side to this matter. Operators are prohibited from listening to telephone conversations, and they observe implicitly, rules to this effect. But nevertheless, intimate facts of business and home life come to their knowledge. Yet, the operator is the woman who doesn't tell secrets; all in all she is the heroine of every day life."

The Ideal City Home

INTERIOR VIEWS OF HOME

By W. E Browne

THE planning of a city home is a real test of an architect. What with broad acres and the growth of trees stupid indeed is the architect who cannot plan an interesting home. But given a small plot of ground, with little, if any, natural beauty, the planning of an artistic and practical place becomes infinitely more difficult. In the old days we had much of the "hit and miss" style of building in city residences, whereas today the city home must embody all of the art of the really clever artist. A small lot admits of no waste. But spaciousness is the effect sought after in a city home. Plain lines with little ornamentation is the safe rule, bringing all things into order, making one part to harmonize with another, until a regular systematic whole is constituted.

In the home of Mr. Bowling Jones on Peachtree street is to be found an ideal town house. It is thoroughly successful and practical as well as a distinctly asthetic home. The rich tones of tan and brown brick, with simple ornamentation and trimmings in sandstone, with the old brown blinds in an attractive design go to make up an interesting and harmonizing exterior.

Living Room

The living room is done in a rich mahogany, finished in an eggshell gloss. The walls are hung in one of the famous Shann Kydd coverings. The colors are very mellow tones of golden brown and gold. While the walls are in design they lend a very harmonious background for pictures. The bookcases are built in on all sides of the room, and are filled with interesting volumes. The beam ceiling is an attractive feature of this room as well as the mantel, which has a soft golden brown Rookwood tile for its coloring. The hangings are all in golden brown; the curtains at the windows are unlined and admit a soft glow of light. The doors are hung in a rich velvet. The furniture is mostly antique colonial mahogany. Here is a room which denotes all of the practical features of a comfortable li-

Bedroom

The guest room is a thoroughly attractive and perfect room in every detail. It is done in pure colonial style, and the walls all in a cafe-au-lait tone, with a soft coloring decoration around the top of the room. The chintz hangings are in perfect harmony with the color scheme. The furniture is thoroughly attractive and appropriate, and the old needlework bedspread lends true character to the room. Here is a room that is attractive to the smallest item, pleasing to the eye, and perfect in all its appointments.

Dining Room

Here we present a light, airy dining room, large in proportions. The trimming of the room is in dull mahogany. The walls are hung in a pongee grass cloth effect, with attractive decorative frieze at the top of the room. The windows are hung in a floral chintz. The doors are hung in a rich velvet. The principal feature of this room, aside from its coloring, is the furniture which is in the old brown Chinese Chippendale mahogany. The lighting fixtures are an attractive feature of the room. The rugs are in soft green plain Axminster and afford an excellent background for the furniture. Two large French doors on one side of the room give entrance to the sun parlor, which is a charming room in every detail.

Of the architecture of homes, Barry Parker and Raymond Unwin, authorities, say:

"The way we run in ruts is wonderful. Our inability to find out the right principles upon which to set to work to accomplish what we take in hand, or to go to the bottom of things, is simply astonishing, while the resignation with which we accept the recognized and usual as the right and inevitable is really beautiful.

"In nothing is this tendency more noticeable than in the art of house building. We begin by considering what, in the way of a house, our neighbors have; what they would expect us to have; what is customary in the rank of life to which we belong; anything, in fact, but what are our actual needs. About the last thing we do is to make our home take just that form which will, in the most straightforward manner, meet our requirements.

Comfort Lost

"It is too often evident that people, instead of being assisted, and their lives added to, by the houses they occupy, are but living as well as may be in spite of them. The house, planned largely to meet supposed wants which never occur, and sacrificed to convention and custom, neither satisfies the real needs of its occupants nor expresses in any way their individuality.

"The planing having been dictated by convention, all the details are worked out under the same influence. To each house is applied a certain amount of meaningless mechanical and superficial ornamentation according to some recognized standard. No use whatever is made of the decorative properties inherent in the construction and in the details necessary to the building. These are put as far as possible out of sight. For example, latches and locks are all let into the doors leaving visible the knob only. The hinges are hidden in the rebate of the door frame, while the real door frame, that which does the work, is covered up with the strip of flimsy moulded board styled the architrave.

"All constructional features, wherever possible are smeared over with a coat of plaster to bring them up to the same dead level of flat monotony, leaving a clear field for the erection of the customary abominations in the form of cornices, imitation beams where no beams are wanted, and plaster brackets which could support, and do support, nothing. Even with the fire the chief aim seems to be to acknowledge as few of its properties and characteristics as possible; it is buried as deep in the wall, and as far out of sight and out of the way as may be; and it is smothered up with as much uncongenial and inappropriate "enrichment" as can be crowded round it; and, to add the final touch of senseless incongruity, some form of that massive and apparently very constructional and essential thing we call a mantelpiece is erected in wood, stone or marble, towering it may be even to the ceiling. If we were not so accustomed to it, great would be our astonishment to find that this most prominent feature has really no function whatever, beyond giving cause for a lot of other things as useful and beautiful as itself, which exist only that they may be put upon it, "to decorate it."

What is Possible

"Could we but have the right thing put in the right place and left alone, each object having some vital reason for being where it is, and obviously revealing its function; could we but have that form given to everything which would best enable it to answer the real purpose for which it exists; our houses would become places of real interest.

"The essence and life of design lies in finding that form for anything which will, with the maximum of convenience and beauty, fit it for the particular functions it has to perform, and adapt it to the special circumstances in which it must be placed. Perhaps the most fruitful source whence charm of design arises in anything, is the grace with which it serves its purpose and conforms to its surroundings. How many of the beautiful features of the work of past ages, which we now arbitrarily reproduce and copy, arose out of the skilful and graceful way in which some old artist-craftsman, or chief mason got over a difficulty! If, instead of copying these features when and where the cause for them does not exist, we would rather emulate the spirit in which they were produced, there would be more hope of again seeing life and vigor in our architecture and design.

"Let us have in our houses, rooms where there shall be space to carry on the business of life freely and with pleasure, with furniture made for use; rooms where a drop of water spilled is not fatal; where the life of a child is not made a burden to it by unnecessary restraint; plain, simple and ungarnished if necessary, but honest. Let us have such ornament as we do have really beautiful and wrought by hand, carving, wrought metal, embroidery, painting, something which it has given pleasure to the producer to create, and which shows this in every line—the only possible work of art.

"Let us call in the artist, bid him leave his easel pictures, and paint on our walls and over the chimney corner landscapes and scenes which shall bring light and life into the room; which shall speak of nature, purity and truth; shall become part of the room, of the walls on which they are painted, and of the lives of us who live beside them; paintings which our children shall grow up to love, and always connect with scenes of home with that vividness of a memory from childhood which no time can efface. Then, if necessary, let the rest of the walls go untouched in all the rich variety of color and tone, of light and shade of the naked brickwork. Let us have rooms which once decorated are always decorated, rooms fit to be homes in the fullest poetry of the name; in which no artificiality need momentarily force us to feel shame for things of which we know there is nothing to be ashamed; rooms which can form backgrounds, fitting and dignified, at the time and in our memories, for all those little scenes, those acts of kindness and small duties, as well as the scenes of deep emotion and trial, which make up the drama of our lives at home."

Scraps of Evidence Undo the Criminal

BY FRANK PARKER STOCKBRIDGE.

(Copyright, 1913, by the Newspaper Enterprise Association.)

IT is "the little things" the criminal overlooks that send him to prison or death. Little things—habits, a torn scrap of paper, forgetting to notice the weather.

A little past midnight on March 13, 1866, the west-bound Rock Island train stopped at Morris, Ill. The brakes had not ceased grinding before Brakeman Harry Schwartz came running through the train.

"The messenger has been killed!" he shouted to Conductor Danforth.

All the train crew excepting Conductor Danforth and Brakeman Schwartz remained at Morris to guard the evidence until detectives arrived from Chicago, while the rest of the train went on west.

And these are the clews the detectives found next morning:

The poker, for instance—whoever had used it to beat the messenger's brains out had hung it carefully in its accustomed place behind the stove. ONLY A RAILROAD MAN would have done THAT, reasoned Pinkerton.

It was one of THE LITTLE THINGS—a habit—that the criminal had overlooked.

Newton Watt, the messenger in the second express car, was the only one of the crew who had seen the robber. A heavy man in a black mask had warned him not to move, while a hand had shoved a revolver through the ventilator glass in the car roof. The glass was broken, but—

THERE WERE NO FOOTPRINTS IN THE SNOW ON TOP THE CAR!

Nowhere between Joliet and Morris, in fact, were there footprints beside the railroad track, such as an escaping robber and murderer must have made.

Another little thing — THE WEATHER—that the criminal had overlooked.

Brakeman Schwartz "dead-headed" back from Davenport with Conductor Danforth and they called on Pinkerton. If Schwartz had not been so reluctant to remove the gloves, perhaps, the detective might not have noticed the scratches on the back of his hands—scratches that recalled the SHREDS OF SKIN under the dead man's finger nails.

Schwartz spoke of an old valise the conductor had found in a washroom on the incoming train. The conductor remembered it—he had thrown it away, as it was torn and empty. But the detective hunted it up—and to him it was far from empty.

Down in the bottom of the old valise was a three-cornered bit of paper—a scrap that fitted the torn draft found in the express car!

Another LITTLE THING the criminal had overlooked.

Some one who had been on the robbed train had traveled back from Davenport with Conductor Danforth and Brakeman Schwartz.

Every passenger on the train that brought the valise in from Davenport was hunted up and questioned. The very last one, found after weeks of search, remembered seeing Schwartz come out of the washroom just before the valise was found in there.

BUT THE DETECTIVES DECIDED TO SHADOW SCHWARTZ!

They unearthed the secret of the wife and child he had left in Philadelphia when he married another woman in Chicago. Finally he was arrested, charged with bigamy, and, on giving bail, was flatly accused of murder and rearrested.

His Chicago wife, under pressure, admitted that he had "found" $5,000 of the stolen money.

"You've put a rope around my neck!" he exclaimed when she told him what she had admitted. They did not know that witnesses were hiding where their conversation could be heard—there were no dictographs in that day. "Where did you hide the coat you cut the mask out of?" he finally demanded of her.

"UNDER THE WOODPILE," SHE REPLIED—and there the detectives found it. And on the strength of what Schwartz and his wife had said to each other they arrested Newton Parr, the other messenger, and the two got life sentences in Joliet.

THE little stone house is the home of the Burns club, of Atlanta, and is built after the home of Robert Burns, the poet. The club house is on the Soldiers' Home car line, in a green spot where all surroundings seem to combine in making this little house a replica of the home of Robert Burns.

"We twa hae run among the braes
And pu'd the gowans fine;
But we've wandered mony a weary foot
Sin auld lang syne.
We taw hae paidl'd in the burn,
Frae morning sun till dine;
But seas between us braid hae roar'd
Sin auld lang syne."

Chief Beavers is the officer standing at the blacksmith's anvil, but his purpose is not to sing the "Anvil Chorus" or to fashion shoes for an honest Georgia mule. He is smashing pistols taken from the gun pockets of Darktown "characters," who really had violated no laws whatever; but whom the police just arrested and Judge Broyles just sentenced to the stockade.

At the top of the page, Governor Slaton shows how a Georgia roast'n-ear ought to be eaten. Just beneath the governor, members of the legislature and Lee Barnes, who was a member for the time being, are illustrating the sweetness of song. All these demonstrations took place upon the legislature's recent visit to Augusta to inspect the state medical colege.

In August, when the sun shimmers and shines and the temperature thinks nothing of 90 degrees, football seems as distant as next year's vacation when you've just finished with this year's. But, soon the days will begin to hint of autumn and the talk will be of moleskin and the promise that the football year holds. The train, which has collapsed in face of the gridiron warror, suggests a scrimmage. Its smashed-up state is the result of a wreck Friday morning, July 25, of the Seaboard train from Athens. The wreck occurred just as the train was entering the Atlanta Union depot yards.
